SOVIET PARLEY ON RELATIONS TO U.S. HALTED

SEIZURE OF BRITONS STOPS NEGOTIATIONS

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Preliminary negotiations for the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States suddenly have been halted here and chances for the exchange of diplomatic envoys by the two countries have sensibly diminished, high official circles concede.

The most immediate cause of American official reticence is the arbitrary arrest and imprisonment by the Soviet government of the British engineers. Since that incident American engineers and other Americans under contract in Russia and with no diplomatic representation in case of emergency have been precipitately quitting Soviet soil as fast as they can.

However, there is a more fundamental objection to American recognition of the Soviets at this time when the Far Eastern situation involving the United States and Japan is at such a critical juncture. Japanese public opinion, according to official reports reaching here, is in a constant state of irritation.

Japan Blames U. S.

This irritation is chiefly directed against Soviet Russia and the United States. However as long as these two countries have a Chinese wall of nonrecognition between them, Japanese susceptibilities will be more alert to the danger of Soviet invasion in Siberia than to any gesture of the United States. Russia is still regarded as the traditional enemy of Japanese expansion in the East. The feeling against the United States is a resentment springing from the recent decision of the League of Nations, which Japan believes was motivated by the United States.

Observers who have been in Geneva during the entire process of the Lytton report and its subsequent acceptance by the league, declare that Japan sees in the league's action the hand of the United States. The League of Nations is believed to be so ready to accede to the demands of the United States that when the United States indicated its interest in the settlemen of the Shanghai incident and the more recent Manchurian adventure of Japanese military forces, the league authorities promptly came over to the American side and even Great Britain suddenly changed its opinion on the Japanese responsibility and voted the censure of Japan.

Russia Under Suspicion.

Japan has always looked with suspicion on Russian encroachments in the Far East. The sudden awakening of the Soviet general staff to the Five Perish When Fire Traps Alabama Family

Florence, Ala., April 2 (A.P.).—A family of five was wiped out early today when fire destroyed the home of Bayless Pomeroy in the Gravely Springs community.

The victims were Pomeroy, his wife, each 55, two daughters, 13 and 16, and a young son. Sheriff G. W. Mitchell said his investigation indicated the family was trapped by the falling roof as they slept.

Woman Buried Alive, 8 Cult Members Held

Filipinos Are Accused in California; Victim, Kidnaped, Allegedly Confessed Being Unfaithful to Husband.

Stockton, Calif., April 2 (U.P.).—Eight Filipinos were arrested today, charged with the "voodoo" burial of a living woman.

The body of the woman, Mrs. Kahelain Navarro, was exhumed today.

The burial, authorities charged, took place last November 18.

The woman, said to have been an expectant mother, allegedly was buried alive in a three-foot grave dug in an asparagus garden. Police said she was executed for alleged betrayal of her husband and for departing from the tenets of her cult.

L. Kintanelli, said to be the chief of the secret society, was arrested with Navarro.

Others held were Mrs. Kintanelli, V. Kang and F. Cadoza, of Jersey Island; Mrs. Albert Asia, of Vallejo, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Santellan, of Pittsburg, Calif.

Pablo Busbriuante, police said, revealed the slaying and directed them to the body after he had quarreled with Kintanelli.

Charged with being unfaithful to her husband, the woman was kidnaped, officers said. In weird midnight rites, she was accused and allegedly confessed. She was pushed into the hastily dug grave and her belongings thrown in after her, police declared. Then the grave was closed.

Taken to Martinez, Kintanelli allegedly admitted the execution.

"It was justice," authorities quoted him as having said when they demanded a reason for the slaying.

RED SOX SAVED AS CRASH KILLS TWO TRAINMEN

Railway Officials Charge Switch Tampering Caused Wreck.

SEVEN PASSENGERS ARE SLIGHTLY HURT

Team Badly Shaken Up, but Proceeds to Jersey City and Plays Ball.

Dover, Del., April 2 (A.P.).—Members of the Boston Red Sox Baseball Club escaped injury early today in a Pennsylvania Railroad wreck, which, officials said, was caused by a tampered switch and which killed the engineer and fireman.

Three sleepers, occupied by the Red Sox, were derailed. Seven passengers in other cars were hurt, none seriously.

The train was the night express from Norfolk to New York, and the accident occurred at Wyoming at 3:10 a. m.

The engineer was C. A. Burkhard, of Wilmington, Del., and the fireman, E. L. Poulson, of Delmar, Del.

Those Hurt in Crash.

The ball players and other members of their party were shaken up, but they proceeded in a special train after several hours delay to Jersey City, where they played an exhibition game today.

The seven persons treated at a hospital here, four of whom remained for observation, are:

Mrs. Alice Prysinger, 43, Philadelphia, and her son, William, 13.

Charles Weidner, 26, Philadelphia.

Louis Sarna, 66, Philadelphia.

John J. McCarthy, jr., 27, Norwood, Pa.

Howard Hoffman, 29, Philadelphia.

Samuel L. Walker, 62, Negro, Salisbury, Md.

The train, made up of twelve cars, was running north on the southbound track around a freight train standing at Wayoming, three miles south of Dover, when it was derailed at a siding switch.

Locomotive Turns Over.

The locomotive turned over on its side and the express car immediately behind it crashed into the concrete storage building of the Libby & McNeil Canning Co., partly wrecking it.

A combined car, two coaches and the three pullmans in which the ball players were sleeping were derailed. They remained upright, but were scattered over the roadbed. The five other cars in the train did not leave the tracks.

Ball players and others of the 73 passengers on the train piled out to render assistance. The engineer and firemen were caught under the wreckage of their engine and were beyond help.

Word was sent to division headquarters at Wilmington for relief and wrecking trains. A special train was sent to the scene and the players and other passengers continued on their way north.

Official Report.

Late today General Manager W. C. Higginbottom, of the Pennsylvania, gave out a report of an investigating

MICHIGAN VOTE ON RUM TODAY; IS FIRST STATE

Governor Says Decision Will Determine Fate of Prohibition.

CHIEFS GIVE WARNING ON OVERCONFIDENCE

900,000 Will Cast Ballots; Several State Offices Are at Stake.

Detroit, April 2 (A.P.).—Michigan voters—an estimated 900,000 of them—will mark their ballots tomorrow with the knowledge that they are the first in the Nation to give a verdict on retention of the eighteenth amendment.

Voting as they will be on the clear-cut issue of whether their respective legislative districts shall be represented at the April 10 convention by delegates pledged to support or oppose the repeal amendment, the electorate will have determined the State's position by Tuesday morning.

On the eve of the election Gov. William A. Comstock said that Michigan's decision would determine the ultimate fate of national prohibition.

Overconfidence Warning.

"If we vote wet next Monday we'll lead the way," he told a Democratic rally in Ann Arbor last night. "If we turn about by going dry, the country will never get the amendment off the books."

Notwithstanding the fact that Michigan last November voted 1,022,508 to 475,265 to repeal the State prohibition amendment and set up a State liquor control system, State leaders of the Crusaders and the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform have warned their followers against overconfidence.

Dry leaders have pointed out that the delegates to the repeal convention are to be named mostly by counties and that the issue will not have the benefit of a popular vote as was the case last fall. The delegates are being chosen on the basis of one from each of the 100 legislative districts.

County officials selected the candidates for seats in the convention from each district. Of the 200 whose names are on the ballot, 100 are pledged to vote for the repeal amendment and 100 for retention of prohibition.

Another Big Feature.

The convention, a week later, will have no deliberative function; it will only ratify the will of the voters as expressed at the polls.

That fact was one basis of an injunction suit filed by prohibition leaders to forestall action, but the State Supreme Court overruled them.

There was another feature of the election which was considered momentous. That was the fact that the delegates chosen for the State convention will be the first ever to act for the people directly on a Federal Constitutional change.

Besides the dominant repeal issue the election will mark the first contest since Democrats took over the State government last fall. Several State offices are at stake in the contest.

King Acts to Set Up Democracy in Siam

New Council Organized and Liberals Are Put Into Offices.

KING PRAJADHIPOK.

Bangkok, Siam, April 2 (A.P.).—The first change in the Siamese government since its conversion in last year's coup d'etat from one of the world's few remaining absolute monarchies to a democracy was effected peacefully and without bloodshed today.

By the change, the Young Idealists, led by Luan Pradit, instigator of the coup last June, whose tendencies have been more toward the extreme left forces, were replaced by older men who are regarded as Liberals, but not Socialists or Communists.

The crisis arose when Luan Pradit presented an economic plan which the older and more conservative elements in the government regarded as a compromise between democracy and communism.

King Prajadhipok from his seaside resort at Huahin issued a decree which said that present members of the state council have communistic convictions "which can not possibly harmonize with the policy of any nation not wholly communistic."

The manifesto further declared that "a situation now exists which would force any government and any

FIRST "LINDBERGH LAW" ARREST HERE

Hawkins, Worker in G. O. P., Had Just Put Bundle at Intersection.

Acting in conformity with a plan arranged by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, detective sergeants early yesterday arrested Alfred Aelorious Brockenborough, colored, for allegedly attempting to extort $4,000 from John R. Hawkins, member of the board of directors of the Industrial Savings Bank and a nationally known worker for the Republican party.

Two detective sergeants waited until 1:20 a. m. yesterday for Brockenborough to appear and pick up a dummy package Hawkins had carefully placed in a secret hideaway at Sherman avenue and Irving street northwest.

The package, supposed to contain $4,000 in cash, was placed in the cache by Hawkins shortly after 1:15. Five minutes later a taxicab drove up, Brockenborough stepped out and when he lifted the package from its resting place was confronted by police.

Statement Signed.

He broke away, headed for his cab and was stopped at pistols' point. It was understood that shortly afterward he signed a written statement after having been questioned by Mr. Rover and John J. Fitzpatrick in the District Supreme Court Building.

Information gleaned by The Post shows that two weeks ago Hawkins, who, in addition to his other duties, is national financial secretary of the A. M. E. Church, received a letter. This letter threatened him with bodily harm if he did not deposit $4,000 in a certain place.

Ignoring the letter, Hawkins was somewhat impressed when a second letter was delivered to him. This threatened death if he did not deposit a package containing $4,000 at Sherman avenue and Irving street. The second letter impressed Hawkins with its businesslike tone, and he communicated with Mr. Rover, who arranged for the "planting" of Detective Sergeants Earl P. Hartman and Harry Britton.

The two waited yesterday morning until 1:20. They saw Hawkins alight from his car, place the package where the letter directed, and watched him reenter his machine.

Scraps in Package.

Then Brockenborough drove up and as he attempted to snatch the package was placed under arrest. It was revealed that nothing but scrap paper was in the package, which was wrapped in a newspaper.

Hawkins, during the last Presidential election, was in charge of solicit-

RUM-DRUG CONTROL MERGER IS STUDIED

Dalrymple Drawing Plans for Submission to President.

(Associated Press.)

Creation of a huge, consolidated machine for enforcing jointly the prohibition, narcotic and industrial alcohol statutes is being considered by the administration.

At the direction of Attorney General Cummings, the new director of prohibition—A. V. Dalrymple—is making this the focal point of his first days in office and it was understood in official circles yesterday that the plan shortly will be laid before President Roosevelt.

The Attorney General, taking his cue from the Roosevelt edict to merge executive agencies wherever possible to effect economies and coordination, has asked for specific recommendations from the new enforcement chief as soon as possible.

Dalrymple, who served several years in the prohibition service and was chief of the narcotic division in the Philippine Islands, is known to agree with the Attorney General that the combined organization would be more effective. He will, however, give it more intensive study before formally suggesting the new set-up.

The activities of each of the enforcement agencies often interlock, it was pointed out yesterday, and Dalrymple feels that greater efficiency would result if information uncovered came to a central office instead of being passed from one agency to another.

This combination would be similar in principle to another proposal receiving consideration from the administration for bringing together in a more cohesive organization the various investigative bureaus of the Government, including the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Postoffice Inspection Unit.

Nicholas Roosevelt Quits As Minister to Hungary

Ball, Counsel Plans To Appeal Verdict

Will Move Today to Upset Jury's Finding in Case of Former Official.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy at 10 o'clock today will rule on a motion to set aside the verdict in the case of E. Wade Ball, former Arlington County treasurer, who on Saturday night was found guilty of failure to turn over county funds totaling $515,959.92. Counsel will also ask for a new trial.

Ball, who had held the office for more than 24 years, for eleven days faced the jury. He would make no statement following the verdict.

WETS ARE FEARFUL OF BEER KICKBACK

(United Press.)

Beer will go on sale Friday in many parts of the country with "drys" hopeful and "wets" fearful of the effect this Volstead act modification will have on the movement to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Declaring continued warfare against what he called the "new deal" beer, Dr. F. Scott McBride, Antisaloon League superintendent, expressed the belief in a statement last night that the effect of beer legalization will be to turn public sentiment against it and outlaw the beverage.

Privately, dry organization leaders claim beer will be the means of saving the eighteenth amendment.

It is no secret here that some outstanding "wet" leaders look dubiously upon the beer experiment. They are afraid that it will militate against the repeal drive by one or both of two possible effects—either that beer will satisfy and thus assuage the clamor for repeal, or that excesses may accompany its return, which will excite public opinion against the change.

"If the courts do not invalidate beer legislation," McBride said, "public sentiment which originally outlawed beer will again pronounce sentence against it.

"The effects of beer and the methods of the beer trade make it inevitable that beer, even on its best behavior, contrasted with prohibition, even where most flagrantly mistreated, will quickly convince forgetful voters and mandate-misled politicians that beer has not changed its nature and that the people have not changed their minds."

Prison Riot Fails To Liberate Reds

Friends and Relatives of Prisoners Attack Guards in Chile.

Santiago, Chile, April 2 (A.P.).—A riot occurred in the Santiago City Jail today when friends and relatives, who went there to visit 90 imprisoned Communists, attempted to overpower the guards.

The prison yard was crowded with visitors, and guards decided to close the gates to prevent more from entering. One of those outside struck a guard, whereupon the others rushed the gates and attempted to liberate their friends.

A riot call brought out all the prison guards and the disturbance was quieted with no escapes. One visitor was gravely hurt. The prisoners had been rounded up in a recent clean-up of extremist groups.

Spring Sunday Crowd Lure; Roosevelts Visit Annapolis

(Associated Press.)

The first blossoms of spring and a flood of bright Sabbath sunshine yesterday beckoned the President and Mrs. Roosevelt to a suddenly-decided-upon automobile ride to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

They took with them for their drive of two hours and a half a group of White House guests. Occupying three cars in all, including the secret service automobile, the First Family was guided through the maze of other Sunday tourists by city and Maryland motorcycle police.

At Annapolis, the Presidential party headed directly for the home of the commandant, Rear Admiral Thomas Hart. Mrs. Roosevelt went into the home to visit with the Admiral and Mrs. Hart and accompanied them for a brief visit to the nearby chapel which houses the crypt of John Paul Jones, early American Naval hero.

The leisurely ride over the undulating Maryland terrain was without Autoists Swarm to Roads; Zoo Is Jammed, as Is Rock Creek Park.

Washington was lured outdoors yesterday by the first real spring Sunday of the season.

Park and road, field and golf course were alive all day with thousands who sought the sunlight and fresh air, which beckoned through occasional clouds that hinted of later showers. Rain started falling a few hours after nightfall.

A heavy Sunday attendance was registered at the Zoo. It was an auspicious day for looking over the animals which, themselves, seemed to enjoy the clement skies and the game of the holiday crowds.

Yesterday was the first day for Washington to look upon the pair of Chinese pandas, first of their species in captivity. The raccoon-like Asiatic duo was presented to the Capital collection by Floyd L. Tangier-Smith, of the Field Museum, Chicago. They arrived at the Zoo late Saturday.

Captured by Tangier-Smith near the forbidden land of the Lolos in the high mountains of western China,

MORTGAGE AID PLAN GOES TO HILL TODAY

Roosevelt to Submit Ideas for Laws to Ease Burden on Farmers.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to reduce the overbalanced debt burden on American farmers by a billion dollars and more will be proposed to Congress today by President Roosevelt.

In one of his most ambitious attacks on the economic crisis, the President will propose a swapping of present mortgages for new certificates of indebtedness to be based on a greatly reduced interest rate.

While details of the far-reaching measure were withheld last night, pending their presentation to Congress, it is known that instead of the present rates of 6 and 7 per cent on agriculture mortgages a maximum rate of 4½ per cent will be provided.

The same relief will be proposed by Mr. Roosevelt very soon to small home owners who are bearing much the same load of indebtedness as the farmers.

So important does the President regard this move for agriculture he hopes the congressional leaders will be able to speed it through as an amendment to the pending farm commodity bill about to be reported to the Senate from its Agriculture Committee and already approved by the House.

The gigantic task of refinancing Government and private mortgages held by the farmers will be done under existing agencies in keeping with the Roosevelt program for economy.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the new Farm Credit Administration, and his aids have drafted the legislation, and they will administer it through the Federal Land Banks.

Uruguayan Revolt Plot Is Reported

Three Councilmen Seized in Dictatorship Step Are Released.

Montevideo, Uruguay, April 2 (A.P.). Rumors circulated here today that groups of soldiers, aviators and students were plotting a revolt against the dictatorship which President Gabriel Terra assumed last Friday when he dismissed and imprisoned members of the national administrative council.

It was learned that Brazilian forces along the frontier have been ordered to be on the alert for any eventuality in view of the Uruguayan situation. The government, meanwhile, was understood to be sounding out foreign governments as to whether the new regime would have to be recognized, although President Terra continued in power.

Three former members of the council who were arrested Friday were released from jail today. President Terra in his decree establishing the dictatorship said his aim was to lead Uruguay back to political and economic stability.

Lindberghs May Make Home in South Wales

London (Monday), April 3 (U.P.). The Daily Herald today printed a report from Cardiff, Wales, saying preparations were under way for Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh to live near Cathedral City, in Llandaff.

The dispatch pointed out that Mrs E. M. Morgan, a sister of Mrs. Lindbergh's, resides there with her husband. It was understood Mrs. Morgan suggested that the flier and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, move to South Wales, and that Col. Lindberg favors the idea.

HULSWIT, UTILITY MAN, DIES OF FALL

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Frank Hulswit, 57-year-old Michigan public utility executive, died late today, ten hours after falling from his fifth-floor room in a Broadway hotel to the marquee over the sidewalk.

Police said they believed Hulswit lost his balance and toppled while trying to repair an antenna outside the fifth-floor window. Beside him on the marquee they found a pair of pliers, while the broken wire of the antenna dangled from beside the window.

Hulswit, who has a lower Broadway office and who has stopped at the hotel intermittently for 20 years, lived at East Grand Rapids, Mich.

He was a native of Grand Rapids and an officer in a long list of public utility companies.

Charles Hulswit, one of two sons, was with him when he died at Bellevue Hospital from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Hulswit had been president of the American Commonwealths Power Corporation since 1927. He also is listed in the latest "Who's Who" as holding these offices: President of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Gas Co.; member of the board of directors of the American Gas Association; president of the Bangor (Me.) Gas Light Co.; chairman of the board and director of the American Community

Plane Passenger Hurt by Propeller

Suffers Critical Injuries as He Walks Into Blades After Alighting.

Hillsgrove, R. I., April 2 (A.P.).—John Powers, 31, New Orleans, La., was critically injured here late today when he walked into the propeller of an airplane from which he had just alighted.

Powers, who has been visiting friends in Providence, came to the State airport here and, with others, went for a sightseeing flight. When the plane landed and came to a stop in front of the E. W. Wiggins, Inc., hangar, Harry Charlton, pilot, said Powers jumped from the plane without waiting for assistance. He passed around the wing and walked toward the propeller. Charlton said he cut the switch and shouted a warning, but Powers was struck with the propeller's final revolution.

Powers was rushed to a Providence hospital, where physicians said he had suffered a compound fracture of the skull and a broken right arm. Little hope is held for his recovery.

VETERAN ECONOMY ORDERS FORWARDED

Gen. Hines' Office Begins Making Roosevelt Cuts Effective in Field.

(Associated Press.)

Veterans' Administration officials last night had written the word "economy" over a wide field of their activities in conformity with President Roosevelt's decree for an annual savings of $400,000,000 in veterans' benefits.

From the White House Veterans' Administration officials received the voluminous Executive order promulgating the deep slashes in veteran benefits. While the greater part of the economies decreed in the order will not be effective until the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, the bureau last night virtually had completed instructions to field stations directing the actual carrying out of the Chief Executive's orders. The instructions are expected to go forward to field stations today or tomorrow.

How great would be the effect upon the field forces of the dropping from the benefit rolls of thousands now receiving emoluments last night remained a subject of speculation.

Construction to Cease.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, who assisted Lewis Douglas, Director of the Budget, in preparing the cuts for the President's approval, immediately indicated that almost all of the planned construction of veteran hospitals would be discarded.

Structures under construction would be completed, he said, but new buildings and new additions would have to be absolute necessities before work on them went forward.

Hines likewise indicated that some institutions might be closed because of the diminishing of their activities.

The budget director was called upon last night in an open letter from Morris A. Bealle, a magazine editor, to explain a "gulf" he said existed between the amount to be saved from elimination of nonservice connected disability compensation computed by those promulgating the veterans' cutting policy and the amount reported by the Veterans' Administration as having been spent last year for this class of benefits.

Figures Called "Tricky."

Saying "it seems to me that the American people are entitled to the whole truth in this matter," Bealle wrote:

"Today's newspapers featured an executive order calling for elimination of disability compensation where the disability was not actually incurred in war service—$300,000,000.' I have gone over painstakingly the annual report of the Veterans' Administration for the year 1932 and fail to find anything therein to remotely justify the conclusion, much less the official statement, that $300,000,000, or anything like it, can be saved from that source.

"On the contrary, this report shows that only $75,458,233 was paid to veterans for this class of disability in 1932. It shows that only $104,877,000 was appropriated by Congress for such a purpose in 1933. * * *

"From the foregoing, it appears that figures officially fed to the press in recent weeks regarding veterans' compensation are decidedly tricky, if not grossly erroneous."

BEAUTIFUL SUNDAY IS LURE TO CROWDS

the pandas paced to and fro in their new home at the Zoo. They are as near cat-like in their apeparance as they are similar to the 'coon. Their pelts are exceptionally unusual. On the underside of the body the fur is jet black while the upper side is of a reddish hue.

All popular drives around the city were dense with traffic yesterday. Potomac Park, where cherry blossoms will break forth their brilliance soon, was alive with vehicular and pedestrian activity.

Nearby Virginia and Maryland attracted thousands of motorists. Mount Vernon boulevard carried a heavy bulk of traffic. Many picnickers were seen in Rock Creek Park and a few hardly lads in knee breeches essayed wading expeditions. Hikers were abundant.

Golf courses saw many linksmen waiting at every tee. The public courses were especially the mecca of golfers. Concrete tennis courts were in demand all day.

A few canoeists paddled in the upper Potomac and there was considerable hammering and painting as summer campers made their hot weather retreats ready for the coming season. The zoom of speed and outboard craft as well as slower moving boats was much in evidence yesterday also all along the river frontage.

There'll be a lot of sore arms and legs and probably some laying on of liniment today. Down on the Monument lots, on vacant lots, on fields and open spaces everywhere, even in alleys, baseball was in vogue.

incident, but the smiles of the President, who rode in the front seat with his chauffeur, Monte Schneider, testified to a happy afternoon by all.

The tour gave Mr. Roosevelt his first glimpse of the budding cherry and apple blossoms, famed hereabouts, together with a picture of agriculture that may forecast a new deal for the farmers of this section.

In the car with the President were Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. John Cutter, of Boston, and Louis M. Howe, his secretary. The secret service car followed. In the other automobile were Mr. Cutter, Henry M. Morgenthau, jr., new governor of the Farm Credit Association; and the three children of Hall Roosevelt, brother of Mrs. Roosevelt.

As a former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, the President has a warm spot in his heart for this service, and he viewed happily the establishment at Annapolis.

Earlier in the day both the Chief Executive and First Lady attended services at the St. Thomas Episcopal Church here, and the foretaste of the spring sunshine lured them out to their afternoon ride.

How Veterans Fund Slash Affects Various Pensions

A compilation of pensions as now paid by the Veterans' Administration and changes under the terms of the national economy act and President Roosevelt's executive order decreeing $400,000,000 annual savings in veteran benefits, demonstrates some of the effects of the new regulations to be as follows:

Man Kills Self As Posse Nears

Was Sought in Slaying of Wife and Son After Family Quarrel.

Grand Haven, Mich., April 2 (A.P.).—Sought for the slaying of his wife and son late last night, Louis Paul, 55, shot and killed himself in the woods near his farm home this morning at the approach of a posse of officers and farmers.

The dead, besides Paul, were his wife, Mary, 45, and the son, Tony, 25, who were slain, officers said, as the tragic climax of a family quarrel that had raged for several weeks.

Mrs. Paul was found dead in bed, of a shotgun wound. Officers said Paul apparently killed her on the porch of their home, then carried her body to the bedroom.

New "Owl" Plane Added To New York Service

An additional schedule for passengers and air express has been added by Eastern Air Transport between Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, it was announced yesterday by H. A. Elliott, vice president and general manager of the company.

The new plane leaves Washington airport at 6 p. m., Baltimore at 6:30, Philadelphia at 7:25 and arrives at Newark at 8:10 p. m. Formerly the last schedule of the day ran an hour in advance of this.

Prieto Urges Socialists To Check Fascist Trend

Cordoba, Spain, April 2 (A.P.).—Indalecio Prieto, minister of public works in the Spanish cabinet, in a speech here today urged Socialists to unite against any reactionary tendency toward fascism, which he called "the last gasp of bourgeois Spain."

SOVIET RECOGNITION PARLEYS STOPPED

strategical opportunities of Vladivostok have caused Soviet engineers to begin the construction of a vast system of fortifications in the harbor there. This has only confirmed Japanese uneasiness, which was not allayed by the offer of the nonaggression pact from M. Litvinov last year. This was rejected by the Japanese government, although there was a strong element in Japanese diplomatic life in favor of the agreement.

Japanese Resentment.

American recognition of the Soviet government would undoubtedly precipitate the greatest confusion in Japanese circles at any time, but at this moment, when popular sympathies throughout Japan are aroused over the league's slight, it would bring about a situation of very considerable implications. Japanese circles here admit that the wave of popular resentment throughout Japan would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, of restraint. The Japanese people would be apt to regard the simple action of recognition as the beginning of an anti-Japanese bloc.

In this regard the apochryphal meeting of Norman H. Davis and Karl Radek, chief of the Soviet propaganda, and titular editor of the official Soviet newspaper in Geneva last year, is characteristic. There are two versions of this meeting. In the one version Norman Davis is reported to have gone to Radek and suggested Soviet cooperation with the United States in the Far East as the price of American recognition of Russia.

The other record of the incident has the Soviet journalist taking the initiative in suggesting the recognition of the Soviets, as a quid pro quo of Soviet cooperation with the American policy in the Manchurian adventure of the Japanese. Both of these stories were denounced by the State Department as hopelessly untrue. Responsible authorities in international diplomatic circles do not attach any credence to these canards, but their creation at this time and their subsequent appearance in Japanese newspapers at this moment fans the flame of resentment in the Japanese populace and renders the task of statesmen more difficult.

24,000 Eggs Vanish At Police Breakfast

6,000 Men Ate Enough to Stock Ocean Liner, Chef Declares.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—When 6,000 policemen sit down to breakfast, they eat enough food to stock an ocean-going liner for a transatlantic round trip.

That was the statement of a hotel chef who served 6,000 members of the Holy Name Society of the police department today, after they had attended their annual communion mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

They consumed 3,000 grapefruit, 24,000 scrambled eggs, 12,000 sausages, 32,500 rolls, 1,200 pounds of butter, 1,500 roast chickens, 1,200 pounds of oatmeal 4,500 pounds of potatoes, 1,000 pounds of sugar, 900 gallons of coffee and 1,250 quarts of cream.

The food disappeared in 45 minutes.

SIAM GOVERNMENT DISSOLVED BY KING

country to take extraordinary measures."

In conformance with the royal decree, a new state council was organized, headed by Phya Manopakarana and other ministers of the old cabinet whose tendencies are conservative.

The crisis—and today's changes—were accompanied by no military display, although armed forces were placed discreetly in the throne hall district.

Any possibility of a counter movement by Pradit was considered slight, for he is known as a patriot interested only in restoring the former prosperity of the farmers, developing health education and similar matters.

Manopakarana's actual title has not been changed, but Pradit almost immediately moved from the palace, and his place taken by Manopakarana and his aids.

A constitutional monarchy was set up in Siam on June 24, 1932, when the army and navy of that picturesque land unexpectedly rebelled. Nearly all members of the royal family were immediately taken into custody.

The coup was almost bloodless, although the army chief of staff was reported shot to death by his own men when he refused to accede to their demand to surrender. The mass of people took no part in the movement.

The capital was taken by surprise when soldiers poured into the city. The army and navy officials said they wanted to deliver the country from "the government of princes."

The following day revolutionary leaders in a proclamation invited King Prajadhipok to continue on the throne, which the Chakri dynasty has occupied for 150 years, but declared that the king's powers must be limited under a constitution.

Underlying the revolutionary movement was dissatisfaction with the country's financial condition.

LEGISLATURES BUSY ON BUDGET REVISION

Iowa and Maryland Among Leaders in Slashing Their Expenses.

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Tax reduction is the battle cry today in the several State Legislatures and apparently the State taxpayer can look forward to reductions approximating at least $100,000,000.

In some States, however, the tax structure remained untouched; in others, new forms, particularly sales and beer taxes, have been voted to reduce other taxes, and in a few, the taxpayer will be harassed to meet unbalanced budgets.

A survey of tax legislation showed:

New York—Increased gasoline taxes, sales tax, higher gross income tax and lower income tax exemptions considered because of $100,000,000 deficit.

Illinois—Three per cent sales tax effective, beer and licensing tax voted. Economies expected to reduce other forms of taxes.

Iowa Saves $10,000,000.

Iowa—$10,000,000 already saved and $15,000,000 additional reduction sought.

Michigan—Proposed to cut down $12,000,000 annually on the budget and to reduce school and property taxes through substituting sales tax.

North Dakota—Biennial budget halved to $5,000,000; 2 per cent sales tax and 2 per cent scrip stamp plan enacted; tax levy to be set by board of equalization later.

Georgia—Cigarette tax automatically fell off from 30 to 10 per cent April 1 by previous legislation; sales tax defeated; automobile license fees reduced to save about $3,500,000 through governor's order.

New Jersey—Mandatory appropriations by municipalities and counties repealed, with estimated savings of $7,000,000; additional $5,000,000 expected to be saved through a law permitting towns in 1933 to appropriate only half their school budgets.

Maryland Cuts Rate.

Maryland—Assembly early Sunday clipped State tax from 25 to 22 cents per $100, assessable property, because of savings in lowered budget.

Wisconsin—Budget $15,254,000 below previous biennial figure and bill pending to reduce by about 30 per cent the maximum taxes to be collected by cities, towns and villages.

Indiana—Hopes to reduce property tax later by $12,500,000 through adopted levies on beer, incomes, intangibles, and automobile drivers' licenses.

Minnesota—Two-mill reduction on property tax effected; salary cuts, reduced appropriation expected to result in additional savings. A pending bill provides a maximum 40-mill assessment for all purposes.

Missouri—Reduced property valuations to save about $8,000,000 in taxes.

Kansas and Oregon.

Kansas — Automobile fees cut in half, poll tax repealed and State tax commission has been asked by Legislature to slice property and improvement valuations about 20 per cent.

Oregon—Two per cent sales tax, subject to referendum, and increased income taxes approved to replace property tax; $6,000,000 cut from biennial budget.

Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona — Tax reductions expected because of lowered appropriations, but tax boards and commissions will not meet for several months.

New Mexico—Tax rate unchanged, but appropriations and assessed valuations have been reduced about 10 per cent. New taxes on sales, net business incomes and oil.

Nebraska—State assessors revaluating property with indications of 25 per cent reduction; salary reductions, income taxes and other revenue and savings bills being considered.

Mexican President on Leave.

Austrian Troops Rushed To Quell 1,000 Rebels

Vienna, Austria, April 2 (U.P.).—Troops were rushed to Knittelfeld, in Styria, on the left bank of the Mur, tonight to quell an uprising of 1,000 persons headed by 100 men in the uniform of the Schutzbund, a Socialist organization, banned recently.

The casualties included 30 injured. Fifty were arrested. The mob attacked the Nazi clubhouse at Knittelfeld. Troops searched every house for arms. Meanwhile, troops also rushed to Murfeld to put down a clash involving Socialists and Nazis.

SCOTTSBORO ATTACK TRIAL STARTS TODAY

Decatur, Ala., April 2 (A.P.).—Heywood Patterson, 19, one of nine Negroes indicted two years ago in the "Scottsboro Case," tonight faced a second trial with his life at stake on charges of attacking a white girl.

As in the Jackson County trials in 1931, when the Negroes were convicted and sentenced to death, Patterson tomorrow will be the first to be retried in accordance with a decision of the United States Supreme Court setting aside the previous verdict.

Although two white girls are named as victims of the alleged attacks, which occurred aboard a North Alabama freight train, the charges against Patterson involve only one of them. The other girl has been missing from her home for some time and authorities so far have been unable to locate her.

Preliminary action preceding the new trials, which were brought here under a change of venue granted on the basis of allegations that the defendants could not get a fair hearing in Jackson County, has been under way for the past week. Their counsel, employed by the International Labor Defense, sought unsuccessfully to quash the indictments and the venire on grounds that the defendants were deprived of their rights through alleged exclusion of Negroes from Alabama juries. After several days of argument regarding application of the color line to jury selection, Judge James E. Horton denied both motions to quash and ordered the trial to proceed. The jury was empanelled Friday.

quired for the tremendous transaction. The bill is believed to have no fixed limit on the amount of this issue, but experts have estimated that perhaps $2,000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000 will be needed for the refinancing of around $8,500,000,000 of farm indebtedness.

The new interest rate was determined at the lowest possible figure in order to permit the flotation of the required new bonds at a par value. The President insisted upon a sound financial proposition.

Meanwhile, as the Senate Agriculture Committee has reached the point of a final word of approval on the administration measure to boost the price of agriculture production, the bill still stands almost in the same form as proposed by the President and approved by the House. One point remains to be settled—the proposal of John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, to guarantee the cost of production to farmers. Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, is preparing this plan for submission to the committee today.

Before this week is over, Mr. Roosevelt expects to have most of the remainder of his new emergency legislative program before Congress.

The other steps will include a drastic railroad reorganization program; a strict regulation of the stock and commodity exchanges, and a proposal for development of the Tennessee River Valley through restoration of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power and nitrate plant.

Royal Entertainment Awaits Queen of Chicago Exposition

April 15 Will Mark End of Search by Washington Post and Affiliated Papers for Most Charming Girls.

There will be only one queen at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, and some attractive girl in Washington or its environs has a chance to capture that distinction. Until midnight, April 15, The Post will accept photos for entrance in the contest which will mean ten days of royal entertainment for the winners.

Fifty-one girls, including the queen and her court, will attend the mammoth celebration, already in preparation, as guests of The Post and other newspapers affiliated in the contest.

Here are just a few events awaiting the lucky winners: Luncheon with the President of the United States; a reception by the president of the exposition; gay dinner parties; night club receptions, with university students from Northwestern and Chicago as escorts and dancing partners; jaunts through the exposition grounds and courtesy at every stop as guests of the exposition.

But that's only a start. Adventures galore will crowd the program and the only thing required is that entrants be single, with no professional connections such as theatrical or modeling experience.

It will be a gala day when the queen and her court arrive in Chicago. Brass bands, hearty welcomes and the acclaim of thousands of persons await the opening gun of the festivities.

Don't forget that April 15 is deadline for the photographs. The most charming girls, located through pictures submitted, will be judged by a board of prominent citizens and 51 of the most attractive will be chosen. A personal review before the judges will be held prior to the selection of queen.

STATE QUOTAS BASIS OF FOREST PROJECT

Registration of 250,000 for Vast Program to Begin Within Week.

(Associated Press.)

Regulations covering the recruiting of 250,000 men for the Nation's biggest forest conservation project will place States on a quota basis under which maximum limits will be set for the number of men each can supply.

This was learned yesterday as four Government departments hastened plans for the march on the forests under President Roosevelt's program to aid in relieving unemployment. The establishment of 1,000 or more camps housing between 100 and 200 each by July 1, has been set as the goal.

Rules covering the recruiting are being shaped by Secretary of Labor Perkins, who hopes to have registration of men under way within a week. Whether State quotas will be fixed on a basis of population or on the number of unemployed estimated for each one is one of the first problems for her to settle.

Difficult Questions.

She also faces many other equally difficult questions, including determination of the types of men who will be given preference in event applicants outnumber the jobs, age limits and the hours of labor for the men when they are in camp. They are to be paid about $30 a month in addition to maintenance.

The Forest Service will lay out the program of work potentialities in the national forests at a conference today to be attended by its nine regional chiefs. They will meet with R. Y. Stuart, United States forester, who is taking the lead in coordinating all plans pending the appointment by the President of an official to take permanent charge of the program.

Secretary Wallace will meet with representatives of governors, most of them State foresters, Thursday, to go over work potentialities on State and privately owned forest property to which the project will be extended, especially in the East, where the total area of national forests and parks is small.

Military Touch in Plan.

There will be a military touch in the mobilization activities, with recruits to be gathered together at Army posts for physical examinations and conditioning. The War Department's plans for this step in the program are well advanced.

The Interior Department has drawn up a list of projects which can be undertaken on timbered sections of the Indian lands and in national parks.

Improving the Nation's protection against forest fires which annually destroy many millions of dollars' worth of timber will be one of the chief projects. Elimination of erosion and forest disease control will be secondary.

Many Government bureaus already have been flooded with applications for jobs and inquiries for information regarding the projects. The most numerous among the applicants have been young men.

Charles H. Florry, regional forester for Alaska, has arrived here to attend today's meeting, having been summoned in advance of the bill's passage. Whether any extensive projects will be undertaken in Alaska has not been decided.

The Forest Service will draw heavily on experiences in operating forest camps in Western States. In California large camps have been operated at a cost of 54.9 cents per day for maintenance. The Forest Service has not completed estimates of costs for the new project, but Stuart said that arrangements for good food and high living standards will be emphasized.

Japanese of Chicago Greet Yosuke Matsouka

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Greeted by a delegation of his countrymen, Yosuke Matsuoka, high Japanese statesman, arrived in Chicago today from Washington for a two-day visit.

He was presented to Japanese residents of the city tonight by Yoshio Muto, consul, at a dinner given in his honor, and tomorrow will speak on Japan's foreign policy at a luncheon of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations.

Parents and 5 Children Die in Auto at Crossing

Chillicothe, Mo., April 2 (A.P.).—A family of seven, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Grimes and five children, was killed today when their motor car was struck at a grade crossing 6 miles west of Chillicothe by Burlington passenger train, No. 14.

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN EXTORTION PLOT

ing votes of colored voters for the Republican party. He often conferred with President Hoover and was influential in party councils.

Another threatening letter allegedly was written by Brockenborough. This one was said to have been addressed to Dr. Garnett C. Wilkinson, prominent member of the administrative staff of the public schools. No attention was paid to this letter when no "follow up" was received. This letter is in the hands of the authorities.

Accompanying the letter written to Hawkins was a roughly drawn sketch of the grounds at Sherman avenue and Irving street. The sketch pointed to a spot where the money was to be deposited. The hour arranged for the delivery of the money was 1:20 a. m. yesterday morning.

The arrest of Brockenborough was the first here under the "Lindbergh law" which was enacted following the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. It concerns the sending of threatening matter through the mails, and it has only been in force a few months.

Brockenborough said he had been employed at the Racquet Club for the last five years. He declared, it was said, that he had been casting around for wealthy colored leaders here and had selected Dr. Wilkinson and Mr. Hawkins without any knowledge of them other than that both were wealthy.

Unable to raise his bond of $2,500, Brockenborough was being held in the District Jail last night. Mr. Rover refused to comment on the case last night other than to admit that an arrest had been made. He did, however, intimate that the District grand jury would be asked to consider the case as soon as possible.

NAZI BOYCOTT OFF UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Doubt Expressed Clamp Will Be Resumed; Normalcy Is Returning.

Berlin, April 2 (U.P.).—The national boycott committee of the Nazi party tonight officially ordered the anti-Jewish boycott interrupted until 10 a. m. Wednesday. It was generally doubted this drastic racial warfare would be resorted to again by the Hitlerites.

The order, in fact, was superfluous as far as the boycott itself was concerned, for the picketing and boycott of Jewish shops and stores lasted only one day, as planned.

The country was returning to normal today, although hundreds of anti-Jewish posters still were to be seen on shops and along the streets.

The committee's order, issued from the national headquarters at Munich, said that all posters must be removed immediately. The boycott will be resumed only if the national committee orders it.

However, local boycott committees must be prepared and ready for resumption in the event that "atrocity propaganda," abroad is not halted. The followers of Chancellor Adolf Hitler charged that Jews were back of this propaganda and the boycott was called as a retaliatory measure.

Meanwhile, Jewish-owned shops shall be distinguished from those owned by Gentiles and in the event the boycott is renewed, will be required to display signs saying, "Jews," and the others, "German Shop."

Hull Gets Boycott Report Over Phone

(United Press.)

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday obtained a complete report on the Nazi boycott of Jewish merchants in Germany in transatlantic telephone conversation with George A. Gordon, American charge d'affaires at Berlin.

Officials of the State Department said later Gordon's report substantially was the same as cabled by newspaper correspondents abroad.

No comment was forthcoming from Federal authorities on the German situation. Hull's conversation with Gordon yesterday was in keeping with a pledge he made last Sunday in a telegram to Rabbi Stephen Wise, of New York, that he would watch the situation closely.

Christians Invited To Combat Hitler

Jews Distribute Pamphlets at Paris Churches Urging Boycott.

Paris, April 2 (A.P.).—Thousands of pamphlets inviting Christians to join Jews in an anti-Hitler protest were distributed at the doors of Paris churches today.

The tracts said, "The Old and New Testaments should unite to combat these crimes unworthy of our civilization."

Cardinal Verdier assured Grand Rabbi Levi of the Catholics' solidarity.

Film producers were reported joining the anti-German boycott.

Havana Jewish Shops To Close in Protest

Havana, April 2 (A.P.).—Jewish shops in Havana will be closed tomorrow after 3 p. m. in protest against the anti-Jewish boycott in Germany.

Surgeons Keep Spoon Californian Swallowed

Los Angeles, April 2 (A.P.).—Surgeons of the police receiving hospital are keeping the spoon Jack Manheim swallowed. They were skeptical when he was brought in for its removal, contending they had never heard of such a case. An X-ray, however, located the spoon far down in Manheim's throat, where he said it slipped while he was treating a cold.

Withdrawing the spoon, the physicians decided to retain it as a souvenir.

Heroic Mother Fails To Save Burned Chlid

New Orleans, April 2 (U.P.).—A mother's valiant effort to save the life of her child proved futile today when 8-year-old Thais Bordes died of burns after her mother had beaten out her flaming clothing with bare hands.

The child ventured too near a burning trash pile and her clothes were ignited. The mother, Mrs. Antoinette Bordes, suffered severe burns of the arms and hands.

MacDonald Guest of Davis.

London, April 2 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was a guest at dinner this evening of Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at large, who is conducting conferences with British statesmen on the approaching world economic conference.

JAPANESE TAKE CITY FAR SOUTH OF WALL

Shihmenchai Seizure Leads to Revival of Fears for Tientsin.

Tientsin, China, April 2 (A.P.).—Japanese occupation of the City of Shihmenchai, 10 miles south of the Great Wall in north China proper, has resulted in renewed fears here that the action is a prelude to Japanese occupation of a wide area south of the wall.

(A Japanese detachment was reported to have occuped Shihmenchai at 9:30 a. m. Saturday after a stiff battle lasting seven hours. The city is northwest of Shanhaikwan, Chinese coastal city which was taken last January by Japanese.)

Japanese dispatches quoted the commander of the Japanese troops at Shihmenchai as saying that if the Chinese continued to resist, the fighting must go on and the sword must be unsheathed until the resistance is crushed.

If the hostilities continue along the eastern extremity of the Great Wall, it is believed the Japanese likely will occupy the region between Shanhaikwan and Lanchow on the south bank of the Luan River half way to Tientsin.

Fears have been expressed on several occasions at Tientsin, the port of Peiping, the seat of the Chinese National government, that Japanese and Manchukuoan forces which have taken Jehol Province will extend their operations south of the Great Wall of China toward the two cities.

Spokesmen for Japanese army headquarters have said that whether any extensive drive southward will be made by the invaders depends upon actions which might be taken by Chinese commanders.

Continuance of Illinois Mine Warfare Is Urged

Duquoin, Ill., April 2 (A.P.).—Continuance of the fight to wrest control of the southern Illinois coal field from the United Mine Workers of America was urged by speakers at a mass meeting of the Progressive Miners of America at City Park this afternoon. Officials estimated the crowd at 6,000.

Storm Gives Work To Louisiana Idle

Jobless Called to Rebuild Towns Destroyed by Recent Tornado.

New Orleans, April 2 (U.P.).—Gov. O. K. Allen today called every available unemployed man in East Baton Rouge parish and in the northern section of the State to work in the storm-ravaged section of north Louisiana. Jobs for all were promised in the rebuilding of a dozen small towns, which were destroyed by last week's cyclones.

The governor returned last night from a tour of Homer, Zachary, Greensburg, Hall Summit, Jonesboro, Coushatta and other communities, and said that practically every house in the country had been leveled.

Workers will be engaged in day and night shifts and rehabilitation will be completed as quickly as possible, the governor said.

200,000 Enjoy Warm Day at Coney Island

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Spring was in the air of New York today. The mercury stood at 64, and a crowd estimated at 200,000 flocked to Coney Island.

Among the excursionists was former Gov. Alfred E. Smith. A few ventured into the surf.

Steuben Society Denies Atrocities in Germany

Berlin, April 2 (A.P.).—The Steuben Society, an organization of persons interested in America, in a cablegram today to President Roosevelt denied reports of atrocities in Germany and said the country was quiet.

The hope was expressed that President Roosevelt would use his knowledge of Germany to combat contrary statements.

Japanese Resent Entry Of U.S. in China Aviation

Tokyo (Monday), April 3 (U.P.).—Japanese aviation interests are certain to resent American entry into the air transport business in China, American sources here said today.

Pan-American Airways has acquired 45 per cent of the stock of the China National Airways System.

FOUR STORM-SWEPT STATES PUSH RELIEF

New Orleans, April 2 (A.P.).—Four storm wracked Southern States today charted plans for rehabilitation as they surveyed the wreckage left last week by a series of tornadoes that caused 79 deaths, injury to hundreds of persons and unestimated property damage.

Hospitals of east Texas, north and southeast Louisiana, and Mississippi still were crowded with scores of injured, while Red Cross and other relief agencies worked quickly to care for those whose homes were splintered by the wind.

Mississippi, the hardest hit of the States, counted its dead at 54, while Texas casualties were 14, Louisiana 10, and Arkansas 1.

The storms first descended on Texas late Wednesday, jumped into northwest Louisiana and Arkansas Thursday and Friday, dealt destructive blows at southeast Louisiana and Mississippi. The winds were accompanied by electrical storms and driving rain.

Communities mobilized relief agencies and placed homeless families in temporary shacks, railroad cars and other available shelter. Food and medicine were being supplied.

Red Cross officials reported that the death list in Texas, unofficially placed at 20, was reduced to 14 after a complete survey was made in the five east Texas counties most seriously hit.

Extradition Waived By Kidnap Suspect

Former Railroader to Be Taken From Winnipeg to St. Paul Today.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, April 2 (A.P.).—Ray Robinson, former locomotive fireman, of Edmonton, who is said by police to have confessed complicity in the kindaping in Minnesota last June of the son of a Minneapolis manufacturer, arrived here today in custody of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

He has signed a waiver of extradition, M. F. Kincaid, Ramsay County, Minnesota, attorney, said, and will be taken to St. Paul tomorrow on completion of legal formalities.

His signed confession, authorities declare, said that he, Verne Sanky, former railway worker, of Melville, Sask., and the latter's wife, abducted 20-year-old Haskell Bohn.

Coughlin Renews Bank Attack, Ignoring Bomb

Detroit, April 2 (A.P.).—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin today renewed his attack on bankers whom he accused of responsibility for Detroit's financial plight, referring only briefly to charges made against him last week and making no mention of the explosion of a small bomb in the basement of his home last Thursday morning.

Flight Over Mount Everest May Be Balked by Natives

Heightened Antipathy of Nepalese Authorities, Formerly Friendly, Threatens to Prevent Daring Attempt by British Aviators.

Purnea, India, April 2, (U.P.).—Heightened antipathy among native authorities in Nepal threatened today to frustrate a daring plan of British aviators to fly over Mount Everest, tallest mountain in the world.

The Nepalese authorities, friendly at the outset some weeks ago, were reported angered by a mysterious plane flying across their state.

Permission to make the attempt to conquer Mount Everest from the air, traveling from the base at Kharmundu airdrome, near the Himalayan range, had been granted by the Nepalese when the British expedition first reached India for the flight.

However, the authorities made it plain they would have to be kept informed of all movements of members of the expedition, and that no photographs were to be taken except in the vicinity of Mount Everest itself.

The subsequent allegations that a mysterious plane had been seen flying back and forth over Nepal aroused the people and the authorities refused to allow the British to advance to the airport at Kharmundu.

The expedition, headed by Air-Commodore Peregrin Forbes M. Fellowes, 50-year-old aviation enthusiast, will seek to persuade the native leaders to change their views, but the ensuing diplomatic arguments may delay the attempt until the weather, now more favorable than at any other time of year, becomes bad and puts a stop to the flight this season.

The flight was to have been started last week, prior to the change of heart by the Nepalese, but high winds and bad visibility held up the start.

The expedition is sponsored by Lady Houston, wealthy widow of a shipping magnate. The chief pilot is squadron-leader, the Marquis of Clydesdale, 30, and Flight Lieut. D. F. McIntyre, a young royal air force pilot, is the other pilot.

Col. P. T. Etherton, an army officer long in India, is secretary general of the expedition in charge of arrangements.

CAROLINA ACCUSES 58 RUM SUSPECTS

Ramifications of Plot Is Said to Reach From Detroit to Jacksonville.

Charleston, S. C., April 2 (A.P.).—Most of 58 defendants named in secret indictments were under bond tonight to answer in United States district court, probably in June, to charges of participation in a conspiracy to smuggle liquor into this country on a gigantic scale, using the South Carolina coast as the base of operations.

Tentacles of the alleged conspiracy supposedly extended to Jacksonville, Fla., and to Detroit and New York, but most of those indicted are residents of Charleston County.

Five defendants are charged with violating the Federal radio act in connection with the purported smuggling conspiracy.

The indictments were returned last week by the Federal grand jury in Columbia, but names of defendants and details of charges were withheld until today, in order to allow officers time to arrest most of the accused.

Ickes and Johnson Visit Luray Region

Shenandoah Park and New Skyline Drive Are Inspected.

Luray, Va., April 2 (A.P.).—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Horace Albright, director of the National Park Service, and Senator and Mrs. Hiram Johnson, of California, inspected the proposed Shenandoah National Park and Skyline Drive this afternoon.

Motoring from Washington to Luray this morning, they were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Mims, at Mimslyn. They spent the entire afternoon in the park area.

None of the visitors, except Mr. Albright, had ever visited Shenandoah Valley before.

Pope Recevies Crowds As New Holy Year Opens

Vatican City, April 2 (A.P.).—Pope Pius today had one of the busiest days of his career in the first day of the holy year in receiving thousands, including school children and a number of high prelates. He did not take his usual Sunday drive through the Vatican garden.

Meanwhile, a throng estimated at 500,000, flocked to St. Peter's to cross the holy door which was consecrated yesterday. The Swiss and noble guards and gendarmes had a strenuous time controlling the eager crowds passing into St. Peter's, the three central doors of which were kept open until darkness.

INFLATION ATTACKED AS HELP TO DEBTORS

Cudahy's Export Executive Calls It Scheme to Harm Creditors.

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Currency inflation was attacked today as a scheme to "help debtors at the expense of creditors" by George Marples, export executive of the Cudahy Packing Co.

Recalling experiences in Germany during the height of the extreme inflation there in 1923. Marples said daily demands by labor for increased wages, the virtual breakdown of the money printing presses in the race to keep up with currency demands, and the robbing of the saving public of most of its savings were the baneful effects of inflation there.

Labor could not live on the wages it received, Marples said.

"My agent at Hamburg told me that almost daily his employes asked for increases," he added, "stating, with truth, that they could not live on the marks they were receiving. Because he was receiving his commission in noninflated American dollars, he paid them in United States money, which they turned into marks at their own convenience."

"Our German friends," said Marples, "never intended that inflation should continue until it cost 10,000,000 marks—$2,375,000 at par exchange—to buy a postage stamp."

Kentucky Prosecutor To Test 3.2 Beer Law

Catlettsburg, Ky., April 2 (A.P.). Steps to test the legality of 3.2 per cent beer will be taken in his district when the brew is placed on sale after midnight Thursday, Commonwealth Attorney E. Poe Harris said here tonight. Harris' district embraces Lawrence and Boyd Counties, and includes Ashland, largest city in the eastern part of the State.

In a statement Harris said he planned no "wholesale arrests or prosecutions" but indicated he would make enough arrests to provide a court test.

Deep Mud Maroons U.S. Flier in Canada

Selfridge Field Man Gets Down Safely, but His Plane Is Mired.

London, Ontario, April 2 (A.P.).—Lieut. J. Neil, of the Twenty-seventh Pursuit Squadron, U. S. air force, Selfridge Field, Mich., was marooned near here tonight. His fast single seater fighting plane was mired after making a forced landing in a soft field Saturday afternoon.

The undercarriage sank deep into the mud, and efforts to get the plane into the air today failed. Neil was unhurt, and the ship undamaged.

The U. S. Army flier was on his way from the Mount Clemens flying base to Buffalo, when he was confronted with heavy weather over this area. He picked out a stubble field near Wilton Grove and brought his craft down safely. It quickly mired, however, and a crack-up was narrowly avoided.

Lots of Ale and Stout, But No Beer for Boston

Boston, April 2 (U.P.).—Law or no law—Bostonians won't be able to purchase beer next Friday. Although all local breweries are working full tilt they are making no beer. Instead, they are concentrating all their efforts on the production of ale and stout. They expect to have 2,000,000 bottles ready by Friday.

But there will be no beer in Boston until breweries from other sections are able to ship it in here.

POLICE ARE BAFFLED BY DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Youths Who Found Two Girls Dead When They Called Are Exonerated.

Portsmouth, Ohio, April 2 (A.P.). Authorities today admittedly were at a standstill in their investigation of the death of two young women who were found dead in their west side apartment Friday night by two youths who called to keep a "date."

A painstaking search for clews, with police leaning toward a theory that poison caused the deaths, has so far revealed nothing tangible toward solving the mystery. The victims, Mrs. Dorothy White McCormick, 19, of Portsmouth, and Miss Muriel Howard, 18, of Scioto Furnace, were found dead in bed. The apartment was in order, and there was no evidence of a struggle.

Police have checked thoroughly accounts of the tragedy as related by Walter George, 21, and Hiram Schmeller, 22, who found the bodies and the authorities said they were satisfied with the youths' statements.

Meanwhile, Virgil Fowler, criminologist and toxicologist, was proceeding with an examination of cultures from the stomach of the victims, and indicated he might be ready to announce his findings within a few hours. Coroner Ross Moore Gault also has sent tissues from the victims' stomachs to Columbus for analysis.

Police today said they had learned one of the girls frequently used a certain sedative, but a thorough search of the apartment revealed no containers which would indicate she might have had any of the drug on hand. Nor did an examination of the young women's effects turn up anything to indicate they had contemplated suicide.

A number of persons, including neighbors, have been questioned, and police also sought Mrs. McCormick's husband, from whom, they said, she was separated.

Authority Sought For Morgan Probe

Committee to Ask Senate for Broadest Powers to Get Investment Facts.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate will be asked today to grant the broadcast power in its possession for an investigation of the inside operating facts of J. P. Morgan & Co., and the Nation's other big private banks.

Determined to clothe itself with all the authority possible for the inquiry sponsored by President Roosevelt, the Senate Banking Committee will ask for the approval of a resolution based on the most far-reaching powers allotted to Congress by the Constitution.

Senate leaders predicted the drastic resolution would be approved speedily, either today or tomorrow, on the basis of Chairman Fletcher's report that the famed house of Morgan had challenged the committee's authority under the stock market investigating resolution.

Suspect Is Jailed In Wife Desertion

5-Year-Old Mann Act Warrant Holds Father of Four Children.

Kansas City, April 2 (A.P.).—Police tonight held a man identified as Cebert Catron, 42, accused of deserting a wife and four children in Lincoln, Nebr., five years ago to elope with another's wife and her four offspring.

The prisoner, said by city detectives to have been living with apparent happiness in Clay County with Mrs. Ruth Phillips, 32, and her children, was arrested last night on a five-year-old Federal indictment charging violation of the Mann act. It was issued on complaint of T. P. Phillips, father of the children. Arresting officers said the prisoner, a mechanic, had been using the name of Jack Phillips.

No charge has been filed against Mrs. Phillips and she was not held. The detectives said the Government would return the Phillips children to the father in Lincoln.

Spirit World Held Helping President

Spiritualist Chief Avers Messages Come From Dead Great Leaders.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Great leaders of America, some dead for generations, were said tonight by Joseph P. Whitwell, of Chicago, president of the National Spiritualist Association, to be aiding President Roosevelt in tackling national problems.

On a tour of Spiritualist churches of the East with Thomas Grimshaw, of Columbus, Ohio, association vice president, Whitwell said:

"No doubt President Roosevelt is receiving messages and inspiration from such men as Washington, Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson. The messages might be received consciously or unconsciously, but they are nevertheless direct communications from the spirit world."

Coal-Slate Strike Ordered in France

Higher Retirement Pension One of Pleas; 300,000 May Be Affected.

Paris, April 2 (A.P.).—A nation-wide strike involving possibly 800,000 coal miners and slate quarriers is due to start tomorrow by order of the National Council of Subsoil Workers. The strike will last from one to three days, according to locality.

The demands of the workers include a higher retirement pension, creation of a national coal office, vacations with pay, and speedy application of measures on working hours drawn up at Geneva.

Mine owners in the Lens region counteracted the strike order by decreeing a three-day lockout. Numerous platoons of mobile guards have been concentrated in the north.

Six Injured as Spanish Mob Fights With Police

Madrid, April 2 (A.P.).—One assault guard was probably mortally stabbed and five rioters were injured today in streets near the Teatro de Comedias when a mob attempted to break up a labor meeting during a speech by Dimas Madariaga, Spanish Ambassador to France.

After the mob threw stones and clubs the guards were called and beat back the rioters. The mob reformed its ranks, however, and advanced again, smashing doors and windows nearby. The guards succeeded in putting down the second demonstration.

GUNMEN GET $2,500 IN RAID ON CHARITY

Terrorize 500 and Exchange Shots With Police in Daring Escape.

Kansas City, Kans., April 2 (A.P.). Three gunmen today terrorized 500 men and women at a Catholic charity society meeting, robbed five secretaries of approximately $2,500 and escaped after a revolver fight with pursuing police.

The robbers made the rounds of five secretaries scattered about the room at desks, collecting money which had been paid as dues by the members.

Leaving the hall, the robbers waved aside a group of children playing about the entrance and opened fire upon Leonard Theno, motorcycle officer. He returned the fire.

Other policemen hastened to the scene. A patrol car was disabled by the bullets of the trio.

One of the robbers fell, apparently wounded, as they raced to a motor car parked near the society's quarters, but his companions carried him to their machine.

Blood was found on the pavement where the bandit stumbled, together with a cigar box containing $226 of the loot.

Rev. H. Chapman Dies In London at 78 Years

London, April 2 (A.P.).—The Rev. Hugh Chapman, chaplain of the Chapel Royal of the Savoy, died here today at the age of 78.

The Chapel, almost hidden under the bulk of the hotel bearing the same name, is a relic of Savoy Palace, the remainder of which was destroyed many centuries ago.

Argentine Finance Suggestions Bared

British Expert, Sir Otto Niemeyer, Recommends New Central Bank.

Buenos Aires, April 2 (U.P.).—The report of Sir Otto Niemeyer, British financial expert, on Argentine finances, was published today, and contained the following recommendations:

The immediate creation of a central bank, coordinating with the now artificially rigid money offices and taking over note issues, rediscounting and gold holdings; maintenance of the note issue at the present level and no inflation; radical changes in the present foreign loan practice, with the various government departments concentrating their loan requirements with the finance ministry, which would decide whether or not the loans were necessary; budget equilibrium, necessitating modernization of the present antiquated methods; no immediate change in the exchange control system and no immediate attempts to stabilize the peso.

Eddie McCloskey Against Beer Tax

Johnstown Mayor Wants to Know How Poor Can Pay So Much.

Johnstown, Pa., April 2 (A.P.).—Beer will not be taxed in Johnstown—at least not by the city.

Mayor Eddie McCloskey made this quite clear tonight, saying:

"Remember it wasn't tea that caused the Boston tea party; it was the tax put on it by the British.

"Why all the taxes on beer? The Federal Government wants to tax it; the State wants to tax it, the county, and the towns and cities. All want to tax it.

"Who's going to pay all this tax?" the mayor asks, adding that a poor man should be able to "buy a glass of beer" without furnishing so much revenue. McCloskey gained wide attention last summer by inviting the bonus expeditionary force to Johnstown.

Widows and Widowers Club Would Place Money in Vow

New York, April 2 (U.P.).—The national convention of the Widows and Widowers Club, in session at the Hotel Knickerbocker, today adopted a resolution demanding that the formula used in wedding ceremonies be changed to provide more money for women.

Will Osborne sang "In the Valley of Yoo Hoo" for the widows and widowers while the vote was being taken. The resolution was presented to the convention by Mrs. Nelle B. Stull, of Elyria, Ohio, founder and president of the organization. Five newsreel cameras were whirring as Mrs. Stull intoned:

"Be it resolved, That the people of the United States of America demand in such terms that there shall be no mistake about their meaning, that the phrase 'with all my worldly goods I thee endow' in the wedding ceremoney be changed. Be it resolved that hereafter the phrase shall be: 'With all my worldly goods and money I thee endow.'"

The representatives of the press immediately sent a note up to the platform asking Mrs. Stull to please hold an emergency conference to elucidate. Mrs. Stull promptly recessed the convention and the elucidation conference went into session.

"Mrs. Stull," said a reporter, "we all figure this is going a little too far. It don't make sense."

"What don't make sense?" demanded the founder-president. "You mean the resolution? Don't you know that women have been deprived of their rights long enough? Don't you know that there are legal loopholes?"

"Legal loopholes where?" asked a girl reporter.

"Legal loopholes in everything," said Mrs. Stull. "Legal loopholes wherever you look. And especially in the marriage vow. With all my worldly goods I thee endow has got legal loopholes in it. The husband endows with everything but his money, just because the money isn't mentioned by name. The wife gets his pipe, maybe, and his carpet slippers, but not his money. We want to get this thing tied down."

"But, Mrs. Stull," ventured a reporter. "It don't make sense. You folks are widows and widowers. What do you care about the marriage vow?"

"Young man," said Mrs. Stull. "I am considerably older than you. Well, not considerably, but a little older. I have been through the mill. You newspapermen meet interesting people, but you apparently don't understand me. If you don't want to report anything about the resolution, there is no law to keep you from leaving it out. Anyway, we are going to take up the question of gigolos pretty soon. Conference adjourned."

The press table was vacant when the convention resumed for gigolo discussion.

AMENDING PLANNED FOR 'BLUE SKY' BILL

Fletcher Says Publicity on New Stock Issues Only President's Intent.

(United Press.)

Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher, of the Senate Bankink Committee, said last night that the "blue sky" legislation recommended by President Roosevelt would be drafted so as to require publicity only on new stock issues or issues regarded in that category.

This was found to be the intention of the President after some controversy arose over the bill submitted by the White House. Since the measure is not satisfactorily clear on this point, it will be amended, Senator Fletcher said.

Included in the "new issues" category will be stock perviously authorized but not issued and blocks of old stock which is advertised anew for sale, and thus comes under the publicity required for all stock advertisements.

Hearings to Continue.

Both the Senate committee and the House Interstate Commerce Committee will continue their public hearings on the bill this week. Because of the number of interests desiring to be heard, leaders have recast their plans for enactment of the bill. It is doubtful whether it now can be enacted during the coming week.

Several loopholes were discovered by the committees during a preliminary inspection last week. It is obvious that some time will be required to redraft the bill because of its highly technical nature. It has attracted no real opposition thue far in principle, but some objections have been raised as to details.

Controversy Likely.

There is still a possibility of controversy on the floor over the extent to which the Government publicity should go. Some members favor bringing all securities now existing under the law, which would throw quite a burden upon the Federal Trade Commission, the supervising agency. The objective would be a "clean-up" of stock issues and a fresh start.

As this legislation is being drafted, Ferdinand Pecora, counsel of the Senate Banking Committee, is perfecting his plans for a thorough inquiry into the far-flung operations of J. P. Morgan & Co. and other big banking and investment housee. Fletcher will ask this week for Senate approval of his resolution giving the committee power to go into the books of these giant overlords of American finance and industry. Public hearings probably will be delayed for a month or longer.

Uncle and Nephew Stage Pistol Duel

Older Man Slain and Other Near Death After Row in Wyoming.

Cody, Wyo., April 1 (A.P.).—Jack Spicer, 45, former North Carolinian, was killed and his nephew, Arch Royal, 30, was wounded critically in settlement of a trivial quarrel with revolvers today.

The shooting followed an all-night country dance which the men attended. Spicer and Royal, officers said, had words over a minor matter and Royal was asked to leave the Spicer ranch, which he had made his home for the past six years. Royal was wounded three times. His uncle was shot through the heart.

Spicer came t othe Cody country about 20 years ago from Traphill, N. C. He was married, but had no children. Officers said he had figured in other shooting affrays.

Former War Head Accused in Scandal

Amza Named to Parliament in Skoda Arms Bribery Charges.

Bucharest, Roumania, April 2 (A.P.).—Marshal Prezan, former commander in chief of the Roumanian army, charged in a stormy parliamentary session lasting until 2 a. m. today that Stefanescu Amza, former minister of war, was among those involved in the Skoda arms scandal.

During a tumultuous scene, the marshal demanded the exposure and punishment of the former minister.

(Deputies in the Roumanian Parliament have charged that huge sums were given as bribes in connection with a contract awarded to the Skoda ammunition works for Roumanian army supplies.)

QUAKES PREDICTED FOR LAKES REGION

Area Rising Since Weight of Glaciers Disappeared, Prof. Hobbs Says.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 2 (A.P.).—Severe earthquakes in the Great Lakes region and the St. Lawrence Valley are almost certain to come, in the opinion of Prof. William Herbert Hobbs, University of Michigan geologist. Prof. Hobbs also forecasts shocks for the lowe? Mississippi Valley and Southeastern States.

In an interview today, Prof. Hobbs said there are two great belts encircling the earth, along which most of the destructive earthquakes are felt, but that other areas are not immune. One of the belts is around the rim of the Pacific Ocean, and thus includes the west coasts of North and South America and Japan. The other passes through the Caribbean Sea, crosses the Atlantic Ocean to pass through the Mediterranean region, follows the high mountain backbone of Asia and through the Malaysian Archipelago to New Zealand. The belts cross at the Spice Islands north of Australia, where is found the greatest focus of earthquake activity.

Other Areas Not Immune.

"It must not be assumed," Prof. Hobbs said, "that areas outside these specially dangerous belts are immune from earthquakes, nor that shocks may not be quite as destructive in such places. On February 5, 1663, one of the great earthquakes struck a large part of the St. Lawrence Valley, and in 1811 the lower Mississippi Valley was rocked by a major earthquake. Three-quarters of a century later came the fairly severe Charleston earthquake on the Atlantic seaboard.

"Where earthquakes have been they will surely come again, and if the intervals are longer there is much less preparation for them."

Prof. Hobbs said scientists can name the places but not the times of future earthquakes. The shocks, Prof. Hobbs said, result from jolting mass movements of portions of the earth's outer shell in response to forces constantly acting within.

Melting of Glaciers.

"As regards the great belts of special instability, such as the Pacific margin, a range of mountains is rising on the land with accompaniment of volcanic activity and the formation of a long and deep trough off shore on the sea bottom.

"Within the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence region," Prof. Hobbs explained, "earthquakes indicate a slow rise or recovery of position coming about as a result of the melting of the former continental glaciers which once covered the region in the lower Mississippi Valley, the loading of the earth by the great silt deposits carried down by the 'Father of Waters' and deposited upon flood plain and delta, 500,000,000 tons annually on the delta alone, causes the surface to settle joltingly to be sensed as earthquakes."

Lakes Region Is Rising.

Freed from its prehistoric load of glacial ice, the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence region is rising, while the lower Mississippi Valley is being depressed by millions of tons of silt.

"So long as light shocks are fairly frequent," Prof. Hobbs said, "one may feel that adjustment is being found without reaching a dangerous condition. It is when within an earthquake district temblors cease, then one has just cause to be concerned."

Prof. Hobbs organized the earthquake committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science after the San Francisco earthquake in 1907.

He said high office buildings, "if constructed according to well-known rules, are well suited to withstand earthquake shocks," and that "persons above the third story probably would not know an earthquake had occurred."

Blazing Paper Is Found In Church at Montreal

Montreal, April 2 (A.P.).—Blazing papers were found this morning in the cellar of St. James Basilica. The fire was extinguished without difficulty.

A week ago St. Jacques le Mineur, an historic Montreal church, was destroyed by fire, believed of incendiary origin.

Election of officers will be the principal business before the Arlington County Women's Democratic Club tonight. The meeting will be held at Clarendon. Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers will be a candidate to succeed herself as president.

United Holy Year Prayers Advised

Spokesmen Suggest All Creeds Join for Betterment of Conditions.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Before 6,000 men and women of all creeds, prominent spokesmen for the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths today appealed to the Nation to join in concerted prayer, in accordance with the holy year decree of Pope Pius XI, for the betterment of world conditions and a resurgence of religion.

Every seat in the Rockefeller Center Music Hall was taken and a crowd estimated by police at more than 1,000 jammed the streets outside to hear the program through amplifiers.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith asked for special divine guidance for President Roosevelt, called for an "uprooting of bigotry and oppression," and expressed a hope that jobs would soon be found for all the unemployed.

Paris Less Hostile To Mussolini Pact

Revised Draft Handed to Paul-Boncour Nearer French Viewpoint.

Paris, April 2 (A.P.).—The Mussolini four-power peace plan was said in official quarters tonight to be gaining ground as it was undergoing modification.

(A new draft of the plan was said to have been delivered yesterday to Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour by Lord William Tyrrel, British ambassador to France. The new draft was said to be based on British views. M. Paul-Boncour in turn handed the draft to Premier Daladier.)

The French government was still divided on the question, but the premier was understood to be more friendly to the plan as Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, and Premier Mussolini contributed concessions to the French views.

Kansas City Rum Drive Results in 300 Arrests

Kansas City, April 2 (A.P.).—With legalized beer promised here Friday, police inaugurated a series of raids over the week-end which resulted in the arrest of 300 persons, alleged liquor sellers and frequenters of speakeasies.

Most of those arrested obtained their release last night or today on bond, but 125 men, unable to make the $100 deposit demanded by police, remained in custody tonight. E. C. Reppert, director of police, said the raids were made as a result of neighborhood complaints.

Friends and Relatives Visit Air-Crash Victims

Neodesha, Kans., April 2 (A.P.).—Eight battered survivors of a plane crash which killed six members of a party of Canadian basket ball players were encouraged toward recovery by the arrival of a group of friends and relatives today.

Even Andy Brown and Ian Wooley, the most critically injured members of the Winnipeg Toilers, Dominion amateur basket ball champions, were able to recognize and greet the home folk.

3 Naval Men and Girl Killed in Head-On Crash

San Diego, Calif., April 2 (A.P.). Four persons were killed today in a head-on crash of two motor cars north of this city.

Cleveland Nurse's Body Recovered From River

Ashtabula, Ohio, April 2 (A.P.).—The body of Ruth Irwin, 23, a nurse at Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, was recovered from the Ashtabula River late today by Capt. A. J. Wilson, of the Coast Guard Service.

Police said they believed the young woman had leaped into the river last night from a viaduct 80 feet above.

Spanish Consulates Guarded.

Seville, Spain, April 2 (A.P.).—A guard was thrown about the Italian and German consulates today as a result of reports that anti-Fascists planned to stone them.

SERVICE TO HONOR THOMAS J. WALSH

Solemn Requiem to Be Held at Immaculate Conception Church Today.

A solemn requiem month's mind for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh will be celebrated at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 12:15 p. m. today. The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor, will be celebrant. He will be assisted by the Rev. S. A. Cleys and the Rev. J. Kelly Reese. The music of the requiem will be under direction of Harry Wheaton Howard and will have Miss Florence Yocum, soprano, as soloist. The processional and recessional will be sung by the Boys' Sanctuary Choir. Relatives and friends of the late senator will attend.

Next Thursday there will be a special holy hour service in the church from 11:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., in observance of the Pope's official proclamation of the holy year of 1933. The Rev. Daniel J. Connors, oblate missionary of Mary Immaculate, will give several short discourses.

On Friday, a special high mass will be celebrated at 12:15 p. m. in observance of the Feast of the Seven Dolors of the Blessed Virgin, which falls on the Friday of passion week each year.

Three Hours' Agony.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the three hours' agony from noon until 3 p. m. on Good Friday. This service will be preached by the Rev. George F. Strohaver, S. J., dean of chemistry at Georgetown University. Artists assisting in the music of the service under direction of Mr. Howard, will include Lawrence Downey, baritone; Bernard Fitzgerald, tenor; James F. Nolan, baritone; Kathryn Bowers, contralto; Mary O'Donoghue, mezzo-soprano; Florence Yocum, soprano; Master Norman DeMeza, and the Boys' Sanctuary Choir.

The Rev. Thomas F. Ryder, Paulist preacher, gave the fifth of his Lenten radio sermons on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, broadcast from the church through Station WOL yesterday. The service included the blessing of the sick and the solemn Lourdes procession at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church.

Power of Example.

Father Ryder said in part:

"Most men readily admit the power of example. Few there are who are not influenced by the good or bad example of their fellows, especially when that example is found in men of high position. The more prominent the man, the greater is the effect of his example. If, for instance, a man after having passed through the painful ordeal of disappointment and failure, finally attains to great success, he becomes a decided example of encouragement to men who have also failed. Success engenders in the breast of man a new hope, a new determination to carry on, not to give up. Success begets success, when that success has been secured by fair and moral means.

"Men of character appreciate the value of external vereties, so that in their defeat or sorrow they refuse to give up even hope in temporal things, they refuse to lie supine and effortless. Such impelled by hope of better things arise and strive and struggle with determination toward a new goal."

Dry Law Betrayed, Speaker Declares

Howard Holds Politicians Have Led Attacks on Prohibition Law.

"Prohibition is 5 per cent legislation and 95 per cent administration; the politicians have given us 95 per cent legislation and one-half of 1 per cent administration," said Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the national united committee for law enforcement, speaking at the Orthodox Friends Church in the morning and the Memorial United Brethren Church last night. His topic was "Crucifying the Constitution."

"After thirteen years of political betrayal and shameless nonenforcement at the hands of its enemies," he said, "after it has been defied by the drinkers, bombed by the bootleggers, hanged by hijackers, raided by rum-runners, juggled by juries, treated with contempt by the courts, prejudiced by the press, profaned by Presidents, satirized on the screen, ridiculed on the radio, reviled by the Republicans, damned by the Democrats * * * and fired upon by the pirates of the seven seas flying the flags of friendly nations, we are asked by its violators to consent to its modification and repeal, to haul down our colors and enlist under the black flag of piracy, mutiny and treason, and crucify the Constitution."

Drowned Man Is Found After Search by 100

Chestertown, Md., April 2 (A.P.).—The body of Wesley Price, 22, of Claymont, Del., who was drowned March 14 in Lankford Bay near the mouth of the Chester River, was found today. It was near the spot where Price's canoe capsized, but was imbedded in mud under a log.

Approximately 100 men, including members of the Coast Guard from Baltimore, have spent several weeks dragging the bottom of the bay with nets and grappling hooks. Coroner Harry L. Dodd said the drowning was accidental.

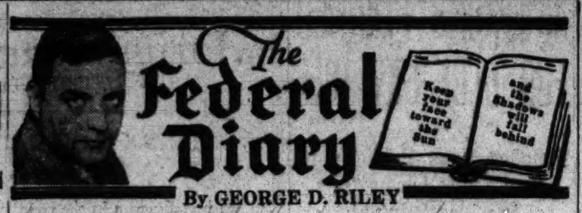
Lord Chelmsford Dies Listening to Boat Race

Wantage, Berkshire, England, April 2 (U.P.).—Lord Chelmsford, 64, died of a heart attack yesterday while listening to a broadcast of the Cambridge-Oxford boat race. He was educated at Oxford, and was named warden of All Souls' College in Oxford University last year.

His son, the Hon. A. C. C. Thesiger, succeeds to the titles of viscount, created in 1921, and baron, being the fourth Baron Chelmsford.

Return of Beer Laid To Political Plotting

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—The legalizing of 3.2 per cent beer was termed tonight by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, a result of "a bipartisan conspiracy to so fix ticket and platform in the two political conventions that the dry could have no vote."



The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

SWARMI FEDD was wondering what would be the best anti-blue Monday tonic. What would be an out-of-the-ordinary way to start off the week, leave a few gems of thought, some smilee, for he, too, has adopted as his slogan that which aderns the top of The Federal Diary column. "Let's not talk shop today," he suggested.

"Why not let Government workers entertain themselves? That's something different." Okeh! So to first one and another he addressed the question, "What worthwhile bit have you? And here are some replies:

From Internal Revenue:

"It seems a man in Pittsburgh was looking over a bridge into a river. Each moment his look became more fixed. He climbed the bridge rail. That was enough. A policeman dashed to him.

"'Wait, my friend! Don't do that! Let's talk this thing over.' They did. They talked and talked. The conference broke up when both jumped into the river."

Agriculture sponsors this one:

"During the war an Irish officer had a bunch of recruits he wasn't sure of, so he tested them.

"'Men, will yez fight or will yez run?'

"'We will.'

"'Thank yez, me men; I knew yez would.'"

Here's an offering from G. P. O.:

"'How little it costs, if we give it a thought,
To make happy some heart each day,
Just one kind word, or a tender smile,
As we go on our daily way.
Perchance a look will suffice to clear
The cloud from a neighbor's face,
And the press of a hand in sympathy
A sorrowful tear efface.'"

And from Commerce:

"How can a rich man be a Democrat, anyhow? Which reminds me that Tom Marshall, when he was Vice President, told one time of standing on the curb watching a Republican parade. Lo and behold, there was one of their faithful Democratic workers in that parade! His principal occupation in life was calling for and delivering the washings his wife took in. He was decent enough, however, to give her all the money he got.

"Tom grabbed that feller out of the line. 'What in the world do you mean, Sam? Don't you know this is a Republican parade?'

"'Why, Governor, haven't you heard? My uncle just died and left me $3,000. Us rich folks have got to stand together.'"

From Treasury comes this yarn:

"You remember when Coolidge was President he went to church alone one Sunday morning. Mrs. Coolidge was not well enough to go. When he returned she asked him what the minister preached about.

"'Sin.'

"'What did he say about it?'

"'Agin it.'"

Here's one by Alice Carey offered for the scrapbook from Radio Commission:

"'True worth is in being, not seeming;
In doing each day that goes by,
Some little good—not in dreaming
Of great things to do by and by.
For whatever men say in their blindness
And spite of the fancies of youth,
There's nothing so kingly as kindness,
And nothing so royal as truth.'"

From Postoffice Department comes this one:

"I recall what Wilton Lackaye said, 'I don't dislike the women. I merely understand them.'

"Hamlin was running the Metropolitan Opera House, when some critic took a fling at Lackaye. Asked how he felt about the adverse criticism, Lackaye said, 'I don't pay any attention to him, he is merely the paid piper of Hamlin.'"

From Federal Trade Commission:

"'A poor player that struts and frets his hour upon the stage and then is heard no more.'"

Even in Congress, here are some gems offered from the floor quoting poetry this session. You'll notice the members, with an exception, credit "the poet," "the immortal poet," "the Persian poet."*

"I say, Mr. President, that—

"'Good name in man or women * * *
Is the immediate jewel of their souls;
Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him
And makes me poor, indeed.'"

Then, "as the 'Persian poet' reminds us always to be lamented but never to be changed:

*"'The moving finger writes, and having writ
Moves on; nor all your piety nor wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a line,
Nor all your tears wash out a word of it.'"*

"In the 'words of the poet'—

*"'God give us men. The time demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ruling hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not die;
Men who can stand before a demogogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking.
For while the rabble and their thumb-worn creeds
Their large professions and their little deeds
Mingle in selfish strife. Lo, freedom weeps!
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice weeps!'"*

"I am beginning my speech tonight by quoting a few lines from Oliver Goldsmith. They are as follows:

*"'Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay.
Princes and lords may flourish or may fade,
A breath can make them as a breath has made.
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed can never be supplied.'"*

"As this juncture, permit me to say that I agree with the poet who said:

*"'That man is great, and he alone,
Who serves a greatness not his own,
For neither praise nor pelf;
Content to know and be unknown,
Whole in himself.'"*

"The words of 'the immortal poet' so aptly apply to him:

*"'His life was gentle
And the elements so mixed in him
That nature might stand up
And say to all the world
This was a man.'"*

From Senator Ashurst: "We can not be consistent. We must be politic, assume strategic positions. We are often like a man on roller skates. Sometimes he goes where he wants to go, often he goes where the skates want to go."

From Senator Long: "A boy was three hours late to school. 'Why?' asked the teacher. 'The streets were so slippery that every time I made a step forward I slipped back two steps.' 'Then how did you get here?' 'I started home.'"

Representative Dirksen: * * * "I feel like the two chaplains who were lost in the Argonne. They were lost at night. The heavy shells were coming over and airplanes were flying over them dropping bombs. They had gotten lost from their regular military organizations. They were wandering around in the mud and water of the shell holes, when they heard a voice from a trench saying, 'Who in h—— led that ace?' The chaplains got up and embraced each other and said, 'Thank goodness we are among Christians.'"

To all of which Swarmi Fedd added one about Mark Twain, whose niece was to be married. He first had intended to give her $100 as a wedding present. The wedding was postponed and postponed. Finally it occurred.

"And I took 2 cents off the collection plate," said the humorist.

*There oughta be a law to make congressmen give the poet's name.

Hahn and Wells Still Near Death

Condition of Motorman, Hurt in Collision, Is Improved.

George W. Hahn, of 5309 Thirtieth street northwest, secretary to Representative James M. Fitzpatrick, of New York, and Staff Sergt Henry Wells, Army Engineer Corps, were still in critical condition at Georgetown University Hospital last night from injuries suffered in a head-on collision Saturday afternoon between Hahn's car and a Capital Traction tram, near Connecticut avenue and Davenport street northwest.

John O. Newton, of 1423 Thirty-fifth street northwest, motorman of the tram, was somewhat improved. He suffered a fractured left wrist and shock. The impact of the collision derailed the tram and shook up a number of passengers.

The staff sergeant is said to be suffering from severe head injuries, fractured left leg and multiple lacerations about the body, while Hahn is thought to have a possible fractured skull, fractured right arm and lacerations.

Drama to Be Given At Wardman Park

"On the Third Day" Will Be Presented Tonight and Tomorrow.

The Drama Study League of Washington, under direction of Arthur Bradley White, will present a Lenten drama, entitled "On the Third Day," tonight and tomorrow night at Wardman Park Theater.

The drama, which will be given as a benefit for the Catholic Daughters of America tonight, and tomorrow will benefit St. Martin's Catholic Church at Gaithersburg, Md., will have the following cast: Martha, Grace Sprucebank; Mary, Agnes Walter; Rhoda, Mary Leversedge; Saphira, Ramona Raley; Joseph of Arimathes, Maurice Jarvis; Cornelius, John Donnelly; Lazarus, Robert Trebor; Reuben, Joseph Day; Ethan, son of Lazarus, Master Robert Heath; Miriam, Ethan's playmate, Miss Jean Gill; Nathaniel, a physician, Luke O'Reilly.

Francis A. McCann is executive officer of the Drama Study League, and Joseph O. Connell is stage manager. Harold Snyder is in charge of lighting effects, and Louise Wynne and Mabel Wynne are in charge of costumes.

COMEDIES PRODUCED BY BROOKE ACADEMY

Presenting a tabloid version of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," two scenes from Sheridan's "The School for Scandal," and the second act of Alice Duer Miller and Robert Milton's "The Charm School," the first term students of the Clifford Brooke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts made their debut last evening before an audience of 1,100 at the National Theater.

About 90 students took part in the three comedies, culled from the works of as many centuries, and presented them very commendably. While the manner in which the three were played can hardly be compared, the differences in dramaturgy of the respective periods precluded any direct comparision, the enjoyment of the pieces was probably proportional to its antiquity, the abbreviated "As You Like It," which opened the "recital," setting a dramatic pace that both the Sheridan comedy and the modern work could not quite equal.

Adequate Training Shown.

The unusually large number in the combined casts prevent giving adequate mention to all to whom credit is due. Indeed, each of the embryonic actors bears the marks of training at the hands of that consummate director—Washington's old friend, Clifford Brooke, who here proved his claim to honors as an academician, no less high than those already heaped upon him by the cinema and the professional stage.

R. T. Kreuzberg, Walter Studdiford, Wilbur T. Betts, Howard Whitfield and Lilla La Garde might be singled out for special mention for their work in the Shakespeare comedy; Theodore Tenley, Louise Harrison Gwynn and Maud Howell Smith in the Sheridan satire; and Bernice Barti, Maxine Doyle, Belle Shapiro, Helen Ryan and Isham Keith in the play of five years ago.

Adaptor's Achievement.

Aside from the excellent manner in which the plays were presented, special mention should be made of the unknown adaptor who condensed Shakespeare's five-act comedy into a brilliant two-scene affair with scarcely any loss of essential action. Of course, some of the immortal speeches were lost, as were also some of the multitudinous subplots, but that the play was condensed to less than a half hour and yet retained so much of its comedy and beauty is indeed praiseworthy.

Mr. Brooke is doing a highly commendable piece of work with his academy, and it is sincerely to be hoped that he will continue to offer prospective thespians of Washington the advantages of his long experience in the theater. W. A. WHITNEY.

Einstein to Teach In Belgian School

Self-Exiled Scientist Accepts Offer From Brussels University.

Brussels, Belgium, April 2 (U.P.).—Prof. Albert Einstein, the scientist, has accepted an invitation to teach in the Brussels Foundation University, it was announced today.

Prof. Einstein recently arrived here from a visit in California and announced he and Frau Einstein would remain in self-imposed exile during the present anti-Jewish regime in Germany. He has been criticized bitterly by scientists and German political leaders in the Hitlerite regime on charges of spreading exaggerated propaganda abroad about the treatment of Jews in Germany recently.

His bank account in Berlin, with cash and stocks worth about $7,000, has been seized by the government there.

Jury Today May Get Minister Attack Case

Muncie, Ind., April 2 (A.P.).—Only closing arguments and the judge's instructions tomorrow remain before consideration by a jury of the fate of the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, Muncie pastor, charged with attempting to assault Miss Helen Huffman, an 18-year-old schoolgirl.

The final arguments are scheduled to begin in the Delaware Circuit Court at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow. Judge L. A. Guthrie said he expected the jury to begin its deliberations by midafternoon.

Wales Returns to London.

London, April 2 (U.P.).—The Prince of Wales, back from a brief tour of Scotland, arrived by rail today and motored at once to Fort Belvedere.

Garner Has Big Influence In Patronage Distribution

Roosevelt Owes Him Much Because of Convention Votes; Texan, Shorn of Power That Was His in House, Yearns for New Fights.

(United Press.)

Vice President John N. Garner is making his influence felt in dealing out the patronage "plums" in the Roosevelt administration.

He has chosen this means of building up what power he can. For otherwise the "new deal" has shuffled the former dictator of the House into the discard which seems fated for the second man in the American political scheme.

Unlike most Vice Presidents, who are picked for geographical or other considerations to "build up" the ticket, Garner was selected because he had something to offer—a neat block of 100 votes which he threw into the Roosevelt pot at the psychological moment.

President Roosevelt owes him much. The Vice President prefers to take it in jobs. One of his campaign leaders in California, A. V. Dalrymple, has been appointed Federal prohibition administrator. The man in charge of his Chicago convention headquarters, Silliman Evans, is ensconced as Fourth Assistant Postmaster General under James A. Farley, generalissimo of patronage. The hand of Garner will be seen in other appointments to come.

Though a power in the House, Garner is merely presiding officer of the Senate. Only in the crisp, crackling manner in which he keeps the Senate at work is there any reminder of the authority he exercised formerly as Speaker.

He has startled the Senate on two or three occasions by the swift manner in which he has forced bills through that leisurely body. Before the Senate woke up to what had happened, presto, the bill was passed. The Vice President chuckled.

But, after all, Garner only presides. Others decide. He is an onlooker.

For it is common knowledge about the Senate that the Vice President has little to do with legislative policies, though it appeared beforehand that he might, partly because of his influence in the House. But the "Garner crowd" there has been ousted. A new regime is installed in the House. Garner has no standing with it.

Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, runs the Senate and does not often seek the Vice President's advice. They are merely comrades-in-arms under the same party banner.

There is still between them the difference that separates the Senate and the House. When Garner was Speaker and Robinson Senate minority leader, the Texan used to say that if the Democratic leader of the Senate wanted to see him he could come to his side of the Capitol. There was not a great deal of cooperation.

Now the tables are somewhat turned, Robinson holding the upper hand.

The visitors in the Vice President's big office off the Senate lobby find a lonely sort of man. Garner seems to yearn for the give and take of legislative conflict that was his joy during 30 years in the House. He always liked to be in the thick of the fight.

How does he like his new job?

"Oh, I fit into any place they put me," he replies with a philosophical twinkling smile.

NEW BONUS MARCH MENACE REPORTED

War Veterans' Chief Says "Army" With "Riffraff" May Come Here.

Apprehension that another bonus army, infiltrated with "riffraff" and radical elements, may descend upon the Capital at a time when veterans' interests are being considered by the administration, was voiced last night by Patrick M. McNulty, national commander of the War Veterans of America, of Dallas, Tex.

McNulty said he had recently completed a tour of the country and had found sentiment in many cities and communities which indicated a possible new march on Washington of veterans and other elements.

The group head said he and the adjutant general of his organization, Sheridan Wilson, of Illinois, were in Washington after the tour to advise with legislators and officials with regard to discouraging the rumored new march.

McNulty said his organization was organized two years ago and chartered in the District of Columbia. Its membership is limited, he said, to overseas veterans with honorable discharges. The primary purpose of organization, declared McNulty, is for a thorough investigation of the Veterans Administration and a continued surveillance of its activities.

James MacMullen, 74, Succumbs at San Diego

San Diego, Calif., April 2 (A.P.).—James MacMullen, 74, editor and manager of the San Diego Union and the Evening Tribune and chairman of the board of the Union-Tribune Publishing Co., died of heart disease today.

MacMullen was born in Ireland November 13, 1858, and came to the United States as a boy. He was educated in public schools at New Brunswick, N. J., and graduated from Rutgers College. He came to California in 1888, after his marriage to Margarethe Fischer MacMullen, who survives him. From 1895 until 1898, he was managing editor of the San Francisco Call. He had been the editor of the two papers here for 34 years.

Chicago Teacher Group Plans White House Visit

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—A delegation of six Chicago school teachers will leave for Washington tomorrow to interview President Roosevelt.

They expected to present a plan they believe will make local educational fund tax warrants marketable, permitting the raising of funds with which to pay teachers' salaries.

COLORED EDUCATION WEEK IS LAUNCHED

Judge Hueston Tells of Elks' Oratorical Contests for Scholarships.

Education week was launched yesterday by Judge William C. Hueston, commissioner of education for the grand lodge of colored Elks, who has organized a drive for funds with which to carry on the department according to standards of the last six years, during which time approximately $140,000 has been awarded in scholarship funds to collegiate institutions.

The entire Nation has been divided into six regional districts, each of which will stage an oratorical contest in which winners of local contests are participants. Winners of regional contests will compete at the session of the grand lodge in Indianapolis in August for scholarship awards. Each speaker will discuss some phase of the Constitution which affects the Negro in America.

In issuing his call for the annual contests, Judge Hueston cautioned speakers with reference to the "New Deal," saying:

"Every American citizen must stand solidly behind the President in all of the measures which he at this time offers for stabilization of the country. Irrespective of race, creed or color, we must be even-tempered in expression and patriotic in support of our Government and the officers selected to administer public affairs.

"Every Negro in America, irrespective of party politics, should stand behind the President, and let it be known that he is doing so. As a symbol of this patriotic attitude, we call upon all members of the fraternity, especially those engaged in the work of education, and in our oratorical contests, to wear upon his person a small American Flag."

Madelon Elected By Paris Veterans

Liliane Darbon Chosen as 1933 Prototype of March Heroine.

Paris, April 2 (U.P.).—Amidst the singing of the song which made her famous in the war, La Madelon was selected by a gay convention of war veterans in the Salle Wagram last night.

A young student, Liliane Darbon, pretty and sparkling with the personality which the poilu and American doughboy alike envisaged the legendary heroine of the lilting marching ballad, was chosen.

She was selected from among 55 girls, candidates for choice as "La Madelon for 1933," and on the platform led the veterans in singing the song which inspired the contest.

Habits of 4 Bachelors Held Known to Slayers

La Grosse, April 2 (A.P.).—A theory that the slaying and robbery of four bachelor kinsmen near here was participated in by some one well acquainted with the habits of the victims was adopted by police today.

State and county investigators said they were certain that the slayers included a man with intimate knowledge of the habits of the four, B. L. Cannon, 77, and Willis Cannon, 82, brothers, and their nephews, Thomas W. Cannon, 56, and John William Cannon, 28, who lived on a farm in a secluded section of Mecklenburg County.

Burglar Suspect Held With Tools and Booty

Louisville, Ky., April 2 (A.P.).—Following a 10 days' search, police here today arrested Richard Turley, 38, and held him on five charges of burglary, five of grand larceny and possession of burglar tools. Turley told police he came here from Paris, Ill., March 1.

In the hotel room where Turley was arrested, police found numerous articles they said were stolen.

Musketry to Start Today At Lorton Rifle Range

Musketry firing will begin today at the Lorton Rifle Range at Fort Humphreys, Va., and will continue until June 16.

(Associated Press.)

First actual "pictures" of how fast and how hard the ground shivered during the California earthquake of March 10—the first time in history that an earthquake has "drawn a picture" of itself—were made public yesterday by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

To most people the "pictures" look like nothing but wavy lines such as might be scribbled by a child learning to write, but to scientists they hold the world's first accurate record of how an earthquake "quakes." Out of the records hidden in these wavy lines may come constructive knowledge that will reduce greatly tolls of earthquake disasters in the future.

The records actually were "written" by the earthquake itself, for the shaking ground moved a slowly revolving paper strip under a stationary pen that scratched on the paper the actual distance and speed of the earth movements north and south, east and west and up and down.

The pens and paper are the essential parts of "earthquake trap" machines set up about seven months ago and designed so that they would remain motionless for years if necessary, but would go into action at the first tremble of the earth's crust. They were developed by the Coast and Geodetic survey in cooperation with the Bureau of Standards and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The records of the California quake are considered "almost perfect" by Government scientists, who expect that the information about ground movements that they furnish will help architects and engineers to design buildings, dams and bridges able to resist earthquake shocks.

Most earthquake damage and casualties result from falling buildings and resulting fires. Heretofore, little has been known about how much shaking a building must resist to be "earthquake-proof."

The scribbled earthquake records show that a very rapid and very strong motion of high frequency took place at the beginning of the California shock, followed by shocks of longer period and slower acceleration. Preliminary study indicates the bulk of the damage was caused by the latter shocks. The first shocks may have been so rapid, said the coast survey, that buildings actually did not have time to respond to them, and started the swaying that shook down debris during later shocks.

GEN. RUGGLES DIES; ORDNANCE EXPERT

Expires in Charleston, S. C.; Former Point Professor; Rites in Arlington.

Charleston, S. C., April 2 (A.P.).—Brig. Gen. Colden L'Hommedieu Ruggles, U. S. A., retired, noted authority on ordnance and the science of gunnery, died at his winter home here today of a heart attack. He was 64 years old.

Gen. Ruggles had been in ill health for some time. He retired August 31, 1930.

Graduated from the United States Military Academy with a standing of fifth in the class of 1890, Gen. Ruggles soon became recognized as an authority in gunnery.

For three years, from 1908 to 1911, he was professor of ordnance and gunnery at West Point and during that period wrote a text book on stresses in wire strapped guns and in gun carriages which is still used.

Was Sent Overseas.

During the World War he was chief of the inspection division of the ordnance department and was sent overseas for liaison with British and French ordnance inspection.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery Wednesday.

Surviving Gen. Ruggles are his wife, Mrs. Mary Ruggles; a daughter, Mrs. Eustis Florence, of Baltimore; a sister, Miss Ala Hammond L'Hommedieu Ruggles, who is with the Russian Relief Organization, Constantinople, and two brothers, Col. Francis Augustus Ruggles, of Chicago, and Charleston Hammond Ruggles, of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Born in Omaha.

Gen. Ruggles was born in Omaha, Nebr., on March 18, 1869. He was the son of the late George Doria Ruggles, adjutant general of the United States Army.

During his Army career, he commanded the arsenal, Manila Ordnance Depot, Sandy Hook Proving Ground and built the Aberdeen, (Md.) Proving Ground.

He received the Distinguished Service Medal in 1919 and last August the Army Ordnance Association gave him the Ordnance Medal of Merit "for unusual accomplishment and outstanding service to the Nation in advancement of industrial preparedness as a guaranty of peace."

Mrs. Ada Knowles, Falls Church, Dies

Expires in Hospital Here; Funeral Servcies Are Set Tomorrow.

Mrs. Ada Knowles, wife of Dr. Henry Knowles, of Falls Church, Va., died yesterday morning in Garfield Hospital here, following a brief illness. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence.

Mrs. Knowles, a native of Leesburg, Va., had made her home in Falls Church for the last 15 years. She was active in civic, church and social life. At the time of her death she was vice president of the East Falls Church Citizens Association and was a former president of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Sidney Knowles, of New York City, and a daughter, Margaret, wife of Prof. Carl Speidel, noted nerve specialist of the University of Virginia.

SPOUSE OF FAIRFAX DAIRYMAN IS SUICIDE

Mrs. Pfalzgraf Kills Self With Shotgun After Preparing Breakfast.

After preparing breakfast for herself and family yesterday morning, Mrs. Adele Deitrich Pfalzgraf, 52, wife of Jacques Pfalzgraf, prominent dairyman and farmer of Fairfax, Va., shot and killed herself with a small gauge shotgun.

The family arose at an early hour to perform the routine farm chores. While Mrs. Pfalzgraf prepared breakfast the men went to the barn to milk the cows. Returning from the barn about 8 o'clock they found the meal on the table and Mrs. Pfalzgraf left the room as they entered.

A few moments later, as they sat down to the table, her husband discovered a note in her handwriting and from its contents he became suspicious. A search was instituted and one of her sons noticed a small puppy coming from around the side of the barn. Knowing the puppy usually followed his mother, the son ran to a fence near the barn, climbed up on the gate and saw his mother's body lying a short distance in the rear of the barn.

He ran to her side and saw the gun by her side. Realizing what had happened he ran to the house and called Dr. R. E. Feagans, of Fairfax, about 2 miles away. Dr. Feagans pronounced the woman dead from a gunshot wound near the heart.

Several notes written by Mrs. Pfalzgraf were found in different parts of the house, giving instructions she wished carried out as to her estate and notifying her children but nothing was found to explain her act. Members of her family attribute it to despondency because of personal finances. Dr. C. A. Ransom, Fairfax County coroner, gave a verdict of suicide.

Mrs. Pfalzgraf was born in 1880 in the Alsace-Lorraine section of France, coming to the United States soon after her marriage, approximately 25 years ago. She lived in Washington a short time and then moved to Fairfax.

Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Rene Pfalzgraf, a student at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Marcel Pfalzgraf and Didier Pfalzgraf, both living at home; two daughters, Jacqueline Pfalzgraf, of Washington, and Adele Pfalzgraf, a teacher in the Fairfax County schools at McLean, and two sisters.

Tentative funeral arrangements have been made for services at the home Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Herbert A. Donovan, rector of the Zion Episcopal Church at Fairfax, with interment in the Fairfax Cemetery.

POSTER FOR DEMOCRATIC BALL

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER DESERTS HURT GIRL

Defendant in Larceny Case Suffers Broken Ankle on Rockville Pike.

Jean O'Connor, who recently pleaded guilty to the theft of several coats at Manor Club, last night was struck by a hit-and-run automobile near Rockville, Md., and left lying on the rain-soaked Rockville pike unable to walk because of a fractured nakle.

The young woman, who several weeks ago, it is alleged, took several coats from the cloakroom of the club while the Democratic Woman's Club of Montgomery County was holding its victory ball, pleaded guilty to charges of larceny in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville a week ago following her indictment by the grand jury.

At liberty on bond furnished by W. O. Dosh, professional bondsman, she found that she had forfeited her home at Silver Spring. For several nights she slept in automobiles until the Social Service League of Montgomery County heard of her plight and found a home for her near Rockville Saturday.

Last night she started for a walk down the road to visit acquaintances. The last she remembered was a crash. The motorist had driven on leaving the girl unconscious on the road.

A crowd gathered about her and George A. Barnes, of 815 Albee Building, Washington, and Elliott Bowles, of Rosslyn, Va., took the girl to the office of Dr. George Lewis, in Rockville, who ordered her to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring. An X-ray of the injured ankle will be taken today.

The girl still faces trial and sentence on the larceny charge.

Arthur Clark President Of Lyon Village Citizens

Arthur Clark was elected president of the Lyon Village Citizens Association at its annual meeting held Saturday night at the Lyon Park community house. Other officers elected were John DeW. Johnson, vice president; Joseph Haley, treasurer; Mrs. Olive R. Feer, secretary; and Mrs. Sara E. Carl, assistant secretary.

Members of the executive committee in addition to the above named officers are Louis C. Carl and Mrs. Joseph Haley. The retiring president, William D. Medley, was presented with a leather brief case.

SYNAGOGUES CALLED OF VARIED FUNCTION

Rabbi Loeb Speaks at Dedication of Rebuilt Har Zion Edifice.

Stressing the spiritual function of a house of prayer, Rabbi J. T. Loeb, director of activities of the Har Zion Congregation told members of the group last night at dedication exercises of their synagogue at Eighth and Shepherd street northwest, which was recently reconstructed, that the synagogue has three essential functions.

As the spiritual center of the community the synagogue, he stated, should be wholeheartedly supported. In addition, he asserted, the Jewish house of prayer serves the needs of the community as a place of assembly. The synagogue, Dr. Loeb further stated, has always been the center of Jewish learning and culture.

Rabbi Gedaliah Silverstone, leader of the Tifereth Israel Congregation, addressed the group, offering the support of his congregation to the Har Zion synagogue.

Messages were read from Associate Justices Brandeis and Cardozo, of the United States Supreme Court, offering the officers and members of the synagogue their greetings and well wishes. Representative Herman P. Kopplemann, of Connecticut, also spoke at the ceremony.

DR. MASSEE STARTS EVANGELISM SERIES

Crowds Hear Noted Preacher at Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church Services.

Preaching to a crowded church yesterday morning and evening, Dr. J. C. Massee, of Atlanta, Ga., noted as a preacher and evangelist, began his series of evangelistic services in Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church South, Thirteenth street and North Carolina avenue northeast. Assisting Dr. Massee are his son and Homer Rodeheaver, song leader. Mr. Rodeheaver sang a solo during the service and led a greatly augmented choir.

Dr. Massee's sermon, "Two Fathers —Two Sons," was based upon the passage of Scripture wherein is set forth that Christ healed the epileptic son of a father who turned to Christ after His disciplines had failed in their efforts to heal the child. Dr. Massee brought the lesson down to the present day, outlining the parallel of present-day ills to the one faced by Christ in his day. He illustrated his sermon from his store of experiences of 38 years' preaching, in which time he has been pastor of some of the largest Baptist charges in the North and South alike. He has just finished a series of similar meetings in Newark, N. J., and to bring his illustrations to date gave some of his experiences of the last two weeks.

His evening sermon was based on the topic, "The Pattern Sinner—The Pattern Saint" and was listened to by a congregation which taxed the space of the church.

Dr. John C. Copenhaver, pastor of the church, announces that each afternoon this week at 2:30, Dr. Massee will give a Bible lesson address, to which all are invited. His afternoon subjects will be as follows: Tuesday, "The Gospel for an Age of Doubt;" Wednesday, "The American Anti-Christ;" Thursday, "Is Suicide Ever Right?" Friday, "Why Does God Let Us Suffer?" His evening sermons will be as follows: Monday, "Watch Out;" Tuesday, "A Fool's Wife and a Fool's Advice;" Wednesday, "Is It Nothing to You?" Thursday, "The Assault on the American Home;" Friday, "The World's 'Thrillingest' Thrill."

Mr. Rodeheaver will conduct the song service preliminary to the sermon service, the song services to begin each evening at 7:45. The meetings will be continued all next week until Good Friday evening.

SUNDAY ASSEMBLY HELD IN ANNAPOLIS

Maryland Lawmakers Meet on Sabbath for First Time Since 1892.

Annapolis, Md., April 2 (A.P.).—The Maryland General Assembly today was in session on Sunday for the first time in 41 years.

The Leigslature continued their Friday session until this morning to pass the State budget bill which had been blocked for the past two days by a difference between the House and the Senate over one section.

The budget was approved after the Senate conferees relinquished their demands and accepted the House amendment, allocating 30 per cent of the State gasoline revenues to the city of Baltimore instead of their proposal for 20 per cent.

George N. Lewis, a Baltimore Democratic leader, today recalled the last Sunday meeting was in 1892. Lewis, who was a member of the House of Delegates then, said the body remained in session to consider an increase in the Baltimore liquor license fee.

Maryland House Is Tied On W. B. & A. Exemption

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 2.—A tie in the House of the Maryland State Legislature early today apparently doomed enactment of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Line taxation exemption bill. The line-up was 48 to 48.

A two-thirds vote is needed to pass the bill and its consideration will be taken up again tomorrow. Delegate Philip Miller, of Anne Arundel County, is leading the fight for its defeat.

The House remained in session until 2 a. m., today, although working on the legislative day of March 31, having recessed rather than adjourn. The calendar was well cleared in preparation for the final session tomorrow.

Jail Is Wrecked By Rum Suspect

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 2.—John Greathouse, of Little Elk, did not like the idea of being placed in the town jail at Pine Grove after being arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, so he proceeded to wreck the place.

And he did a thorough job of it. He smashed all the fixtures, tore out a window, broke a water main, which flooded the jail and the adjoining offices of Magistrate Bert Higginbotham and ruined a store of Reconstruction Finance Corporation flour.

The act was an expensive one for John as well as the town. Taken before Magistrate Higginbotham, last night, following the smashup, he drew the maximum penalty of eight months in the county jail and a fine of $400, and costs, which he will have to pay or work out an additional term for drunkenness and destroying public property.

Alexandria Warrants To Be Issued This Week

The issuing of tax anticipation warrants by Alexandria is expected to be started this week, and City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan reports that he is in receipt of a check for $200 for the purchase of the warrants.

The warrants will bear 6 per cent interest from date of issuance and may be used only for the payment of city taxes. They are to be issued in the denominations of $1, 5 and $10.

COEDS ANSWERED BY U. OF MD. EDITOR

Suppression of News Denied by Needhan, Who Charges Women Indifferent.

Answering the charges of several coeds of the University of Maryland regarding the failure of staff interest in women's activities there, William C. N. Needhan, editor of the Maryland Diamondback, has an editorial in today's issue in which he states that instead of trying to suppress coed news, he was trying to build it up, but was unable to do this, due to the "utter indifference in the coeds themselves."

The Diamondback, the editorial states, "has been misrepresented and slandere at the sole instigation of a group of scarcely more than twenty coeds who consider themselves fully equipped to voice the opinion of 400.

"The women's page of the Diamondback could never have been abolished for the rather obvious reason that there never has been such a page incorporated in this publication.

"The individual who, during the first semester of the year, held office as women's editor, was not discharged, but retired from the staff of her own volition. Until the time of her retirement she had evinced an absolute minimum of interest in cooperating with the editor."

The women, however, are still rather indignant about the entire incident and plan a mass meeting tomorrow afternoon. Alleged threats on their part to withdraw their $10 activity fee are unfounded, since the fee has already been paid, and nothing can be done about retrieving it.

C. M. T. C. Requests Break All Records

13,896 Applications Filed, With Opening Date 90 Days Away.

Applications for enrollment in the citizens' military training camps of the Third Corps Area this year have already established a new all-time high record of 13,896, with the scheduled opening of the camps more than three months away, according to an announcement yesterday by Maj. Charles Demonet, in charge of the local procurement.

The Washington quota has been completed, Maj. Demonet stated. In some cases assigned quotas have been exceeded by nearly 500 per cent, while only 27 out of the 192 counties in the corps area are behind in their quotas.

Six camps will be conducted this year, opening July 11 for 30 days. Camps will be located at Forts George G. Meade, Monroe, Myer, Washington, Howard and Hoyle, all near Washington.

Gadsby's Tavern Lecture Tonight

Mrs. D. T. Brown Will Talk Under Sponsorship of Colonial Dames.

The Colonial Dames of Alexandria will sponsor an illustrated lecture by Mrs. D. Tucker Brown at 8:30 p. m. today in Gadsby's Tavern, on historic and modern gardens of Virginia. One hundred and fifty colored slides will be shown. Proceeds will go to the Gadsby's Tavern fund.

The committee from the Colonial Dames in charge of arrangements is composed of the following: Mrs. D. Mauchlin Niven, Mrs. Robert Miller Reese, Mrs. Thomas B. Cochran, Mrs. Frederick G. Duvall, Mrs. Gardner Lloyd Boothe, Mrs. Emmett Clarke Dunn, Mrs. Laurence Stable, Mrs. Wallace Lawrence and Mrs. Louis S. Greene.

Eight subdebs of the city will act as ushers. They are Miss Jacquelin Cochran, Miss Lorraine Littlefield, Miss Nancy Sentz, Miss Louise Backus, Miss Ann Carter Waller, Miss Violet Smith, Miss Margaret Rust and Miss Dorothy Rust.

Polly Moran to Adopt 16-Year-Old Protege

Los Angeles, April 2 (U.P.).—Adoption of a 16-year-old boy for whom she had cared since babyhood was sought in court today by Polly Moran, film comedienne.

The boy, John A. Trujillo, will take the name of John Michael Moran.

Roomer, Without Rent, Ends Life With Necktie

Houston, Tex., April 2 (A.P.).—Despondent over inability to pay room rent, C. O. Carlson, 38, cafeman, today penciled a note to his landlady, saying "I hope you rent my room tomorrow, so you won't lose a thing."

Then, officers said, he strangled himself with a necktie.

James Will Address Arlington Civic Group

Stephen James, of Montgomery County, Md., chairman of the Interfederation Conference, will be principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Arlington Civic Federation tomorrow night in Lyon Park community house.

The annual banquet will be held Thursday, April 27. A committee will complete details of the event tomorrow.

Big Reward Urged In Death of Kirk

Aid of Detective Agencies Sought in Report of Grand Jury.

Leonardtown, Md., April 2 (A.P.).—In the report of the St. Marys County grand jury for the March term of circuit court, a recommendation that a reward "of sufficient amount" to attract "capable detective agencies" to investigate the Kirk bombing case was made.

The report added that such a reward might "bring forth information from others who might know enough about it to lead to the apprehension of the person or persons responsible."

Miss Ida Kirk, 76-year-old spinster, was fatally injured January 7, when a bomb exploded in her automobile as she was driving toward Washington. The mysterious explosion has not been solved.

Rome-to-Tripoli Flight Is Success

Balbo, Duke of Aosta and Jung Return From African Air Hop.

Rome, April 2 (U.P.).—The Duke of Aosta, Air Minister Italo Balbo and Finance Minister Guido Jung returned tonight from a three-day flight from Rome to Tripoli and the hinterland of Lybia, in northern Africa. They used a new type speedy trimotored plane, piloted alternately by the duke and Balbo.

Balbo told newspapermen the flight was designed principally to train himself and the duke in the air. This was interpreted to mean that the duke would participate as a pilot in the proposed formation flight from Italy over the Atlantic to Chicago in June.

Scotland Yard Aid Asked in Air Probe

Manchester Funeral Held Up Pending Autopsy on Victim.

London, April 2 (U.P.).—The air ministry has asked Scotland Yard to investigate the crash last week of the air liner City of Liverpool, which plunged to earth in Belgium with the loss of 15 lives, it was announced tonight.

Meanwhile, the authorities of the Imperial Airways were discussing sensational theories, including incendiarism and the possibility that a passenger smoked while the machine was in the air.

U. S. Chamber Report Against Idle Reserves

(Associated Press.)

Opposition to unemployment reserves to be paid out of public funds or to State-administered unemployment insurance was expressed yesterday in a report by the Committee on Manufacture of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Explaining that such legislation had been introduced in a score of State Legislatures, the committee declared many bills of that nature would be enacted unless business enterprises develop unemployment reserve plans of their own.

You see knives flash from the magician's hand and plunge into the board, framing the girl so closely that she cannot move.

EXPLANATION:
Here is one way the blindfold knife throw is done: The knife thrower lets the knife go over his shoulder into the wings. The knife that you see quivering beside the girl is another knife. The girl standing against the board presses at the right place and a knife is sprung from behind the board into position.

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

A clever trick employed in cigarette advertising is the illusion that manufacturing processes account for mildness in a cigarette.

EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes are made in much the same way. Cigarettes vary greatly in mildness because they vary greatly in the quality of tobaccos used. Mildness, as well as character and good taste, depends upon the quality of tobaccos used.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is the most important statement ever made in a cigarette advertisement. Weigh its words. Consider what it means. Smoke Camels critically and learn to appreciate what costlier tobaccos can mean to you in mildness, in throat-ease . . . in added pleasure! Other cigarettes, we believe, will taste flat and insipid to you forever after.

THE SKEPTICAL SENATE.

Beer will not flow at the Capitol on April 7. In spite of its enthusiasm for the new beverage, so far as the public is concerned, the Senate is afraid for itself. If 3.2 per cent beer should turn out to be intoxicating, as Senator Tydings concedes it might be for weak and immature persons—well, Congress just doesn't want any tests that might be too conspicuous.

The virtues of the new beverage have been so eloquently extolled in the halls of Congress that the substitution of beer for the mineral water imbibed by senators was expected. But members of the Senate can't trust themselves. They voted 44 to 28 to forbid the sale of 3.2 per cent beer on Federal property. It may be expected, however, that the House will have more faith in the ability of its members to cope with the foaming beverage.

Another amendment that is somewhat strange, in view of the emphatic assurance that beer of the prescribed potency is 100 per cent constitutional, is the restriction on sales to motorists parked about barbecue stands. Does beer have an especially pernicious effect when consumed along with "hot dogs"? Or do members of the Senate who are sworn to uphold the Constitution have other fears? It begins to look as if the assurance of wet orators in the Senate that a man could drink as much beer as his stomach would hold and still walk straight may not apply to driving. At least, the Senate is skeptical.

There seems to be some doubt about this amendment, however. Apparently it would forbid the sale of beer to motorists in their cars, but would permit its sale by barbecue stands over their counters. This restriction will probably turn out to be merely an inconvenience to motorists. They will have to get out of their cars to get their beer. Once at the counter or bar they may drink twice as much as they would have done if they had remained in their cars to be served.

These are technicalities, however, and the public wants none of them. The demand is for beer. If motorists imbibe too heavily for safe driving and pedestrians take too much for safe walking, the resulting mortality will be charged to beer by the drys, and to something else by the wets.

A DEAN SPEAKS.

Trying days have befallen Brookwood Labor College. The dean quit recently, and on that day 19 of the 28 students were on his side.

So firmly entrenched had the underground progressive movement become that when decision-day rolled 'round one faculty member and five untrammeled officers of the secretariat joined the abdication. As a result, the first Communist educational clearing in America's woods, near Katnoah, N. Y., is staggering along today with but nine students, a mere shell of a faculty, and its old, creaky board of moss-back trustees.

Dean A. J. Muste, a former clergyman, had headed the Brookwood economic faculty since the experiment was launched twelve years ago. He was compelled to resign, he said, "because of a sudden outburst of conservatism" in the directorate.

David J. Saposs, who resisted the insurgents to the bitter end, said the dean actually had been voted out two days before he submitted his resignation, because of his active alliance with the really advanced thinkers of Union Square.

"It is our conviction," Dean Muste said in rejoinder, "that a labor school can not be just academic."

Thomas Tippett, who had published many Communist tracts under the Brookwood imprimatur since the American Federation of Labor formally repudiated the enterprise five years ago, was among the faculty group who stood by the dauntless dean in his heroic struggle for academic freedom.

Mr. A. Lefkowitz, of New York, a member of the board of directors, expressed profound regret that a schism should appear, in this day and age, in the ranks of organized revolutionary education in the United States; but the lively exchange of professorial darts which marked the final sylvan combustion hinted broadly that beneath it all there were other reasons than the normal centrifugal forces of parlor radicalism. Dean Muste, himself, suggested there were other factors, some considerations, indeed, which might appeal even to the warped intellects of non-treed academicians.

"I would say that economic conditions are at the root of the whole thing," the dean said. "If the institution had not been pressed for funds, and if conditions were as good as they were two years ago, I dare say this sudden outburst of conservatism would never have been manifest. The purpose of the directors seems to be to play safe and conserve what they have."

We can only assume that the dean spoke hastily.

SELFISH OPPOSITION.

Opposition by special groups to President Roosevelt's program to relieve the railroads is all-advised. The railroads continue to be the backbone of the national transportation system. It is of the utmost importance that they be kept in operation on a sound basis. Ultimately no group would profit from bankruptcy of the railroads.

The position taken by railway labor leaders is short-sighted. Their opposition to railroad consolidation arises from fear that more employes will be thrown out of work. To avoid that contingency the labor leaders seek to perpetuate inefficiency, waste and loss of revenue in the operation of the railroads. So long as the carriers operate under present conditions they will be severely handicapped and may not be in a position to rehire jobless men or to raise wages. Consolidation would give them a new basis to build upon. Then as the railroads gained strength, labor conditions among railroad men would certainly improve.

The opposition of farm agencies to various phases of the railroad program is especially selfish. Congress is about to levy a tax of several hundreds of millions of dollars upon the public for the benefit of agriculture. Other measures proposing several billions for refinancing farm mortgages are under consideration. Through many different channels the Government is pouring out vast sums for the benefit of agriculture. Yet farm leaders unite in opposition to much-needed relief for the railroads on the ground that some farmers might have to pay higher rates for transportation of their crops.

No one is suggesting that the Federal Treasury be opened to the railroads, as it is being opened to the farmer. All the carriers ask is equality of competition and a chance to conduct their business along business lines. But the farm leaders object to any regulations that may be undertaken with a view to "equalizing conditions of competition" between motor vehicles and the railroads.

President Roosevelt's suggestions for rehabilitation of the railroads are not yet fully known. But he certainly can make no mistake by promoting consolidation and extending Government supervision to other interstate carriers. Petty and selfish opposition will not be allowed to stand in the way of an efficient and well-managed transportation system.

CRIPPLING THE DISTRICT.

Refusal of the House appropriations committee to permit civic groups to protest against the drastic slashes made by the Budget Bureau in the District budget seems to reflect the real attitude of that body toward residents of the National Capital. In effect, Chairman Buchanan says that it makes no difference what taxpayers of the District think. His committee intends to push through the starvation budget for Washington without reference to its effect on the local government.

Congress serves as a city council for the District. But it acts with little regard to the wishes of the citizens of the Federal City. The House appropriations committee ignores the protest against a cut of about $6,000,000 below the minimum requirements consistent with efficiency and normal development. By this act the committee has betrayed its intention of clamping down upon the District an inflexible program of parsimony.

It is proposed that the District shall become the victim of reckless groups that wield autocratic power over it. The District would be forced into the policy of curtailing normal repairs and postponing urgent improvements that might give work to thousands of men, while doubling the size of its relief dole. Almost no thought is given by the House to the welfare of local institutions, to the efficiency of the police department or the schools. The District budget is slashed in accordance with a national policy that can have no application to conditions here.

It is to be hoped that the Senate will be able to see the unreasonableness of this policy, even though the House is blind to it. There can be no excuse for hamstringing the District in a futile attempt to balance the Federal budget. When Congress bears the expenses of the National Capital as such, District taxpayers are fully capable of financing the municipal functions of the District on a reasonable plane of efficiency. Taxpayers of Washington do not want to see their schools deteriorate and law enforcement relax for the purpose of reducing local taxes.

FUEL FROM THE FARM.

Use of ethyl alcohol in gasoline as a means of conserving oil and of using surplus farm crops is attracting considerable interest. Germany adulterates her petroleum products by 25 per cent with this agricultural fuel. According to Paul Beshers, who writes on the subject for the Kiwanis Magazine, fourteen countries are now using this method of aiding their agriculture and conserving their oil supplies.

Alcohol made from farm products may be used, in reasonable admixtures with gasoline, without any adjustment of the motors of modern automobiles. The ideal mixture is said to be about 10 to 15 per cent of alcohol. Since the United States uses about 17,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline per year; an enormous volume of farm-produced alcohol might be consumed in this way. Mr. Beshers estimated that one-fourth of the corn crop or seven-eighths of the wheat crop would be needed to supply alcohol for a 10 per cent adulteration of gasoline. This type of fuel can be made from virtually all farm products, but the cost would be prohibitive. Farmers would probably gain nothing from it because they would have to pay much higher prices for their gasoline.

Application of the proposal at this time in the United States is not feasible, because of the great overproduction of oil. The Government and the oil producers are engaged in a hard struggle to cut down petroleum output to a point where overproduction and waste can be eliminated. The oil industry would not consent to a further 10 per cent reduction to help the farmer, and since the refining and distribution of gasoline are in the hands of the oil interests, no demand for farm-produced alcohol can be expected at present. An economic dictatorship could force all refineries to dilute their gasoline with alcohol, but measures of this type have no support in this country.

It affords a great deal of satisfaction, nevertheless, to note that aids to and substitutes for petroleum products are being developed. Unless there are vast new stores of oil of which nothing is now known, this source of fuel will be exhausted within a few decades. But there is no end to the amount of alcohol that may be made from farm products. Science has also learned to make gasoline and other liquid fuels from coal at prices that permit their use in commercial enterprises in some countries.

Now if all the Jews all over the world will hold their breath for three days Chancellor Hitler will give a special demonstration of his benevolence.

Senator Tydings admits that youngsters and weaklings may get drunk on the new beer, but who is Congress legislating for?

It's surprising that Congress doesn't want the revenue from D. C. beer bill to finance jobs in the sticks.

No gain without a loss. Think of the noble army of home brewers forced out of business on Friday.

Famishing Democrats wonder if the patronage pie is to be another White House economy dish.

The Government clerk considers that fifteen per cent slash the "most unkindest cut of all."

Cheer up! April 1 comes only once per year, but fools we have always with us.

HOW INFLATION HIT GERMANY

By T. R. YBARRA, in Collier's Weekly.

Inflation as a remedy for America's economic ills is practically a fatal remedy. The thought that something even remotely resembling the German inflation may come—as some people predict and even hope—to these United States is appalling. Those of us who were in Germany during the inflation days get to wondering whether such a state of affairs could possibly have existed on this planet.

At the beginning of the inflation period in Germany there were those in that country, as there had been in other European lands which had resorted to inflation currency, who thought that inflation could be checked at will by the government acting in conjunction with financial experts. They soon learned their mistake. Once the printing of marks got under way there was no stopping the presses.

Though the government and the Reichsbank succeeded for a while in staving off collapse, the inflation snowball had gathered irresistible headway. By the end of 1923 the printing of emergency paper money had reached such astounding proportions that 133 printing offices and 1,783 printing machines were exclusively occupied with the manufacture of emergency currency, and over 30 factories were working full time in a mad endeavor to make the paper required for the notes.

This insane state of affairs brought great suffering to most Germans, especially the middle classes. As Lord D'Abernon has said, it is interesting to note that the capitalist class, which finally lost all its invested savings through inflation, was at no time hostile to steps which led to this loss. Temporary gain, or the illusion of it, obscured the inevitable disaster.

No wonder crime and loose living increased alarmingly in Germany during the inflation crisis. What use, after all, was it to have been thrifty and sober during the preceding years? Bread lines were everywhere; hoodlums roamed the streets spying out opportunities for plunder; shops of all sorts were pillaged.

An intelligent German business man now in this country told me, "Inflation destroyed our whole economic structure." And when I reminded him that some Americans believed that inflation would benefit the United States he exclaimed: "God forbid! Once has been enough for me—never again!"

The French marched into the Ruhr in January, 1923. That was the death warrant of the German mark. By the end of the month it had sunk to 40,000 to the dollar. At the end of June it stood at 170,000 to the dollar. In July it hit 150,000 to the dollar, then 200,000, then 250,000. Then it took a sheer drop to 1,000,000. The first week in August saw the mark at 3,000,000 to the dollar. Two weeks later it was around 5,000,000. September 15 it reached 80 million; October 15, four billion; November 14, 2,000 billion; November 20, 3,500 billion.

Finally, late in November, 1923, the old German mark was pronounced dead. In its place a new unit of currency was introduced—the so-called rentenmark—based on a mortgage of 3,200 million gold marks, raised on the agriculture and industry of Germany. The whole project thus relied on the security of a mortgage which could not really have been foreclosed. It is the perfect example of the restoration of confidence by a confidence trick. However, there was faith in and out of Germany in the possibility of German recovery.

"The Road Back."

POST HASTE.

Representing the house of Morgan must be one of the most satisfactory compensations that John W. Davis could find for White House disappointments.

"Both oil factions claim executive favor." The unbiased enigmatical smile is still working.

Peanuts and flax that tried to butt into Secretary Wallace's bill have been put in their place, and cattle and sheep which kicked out will probably be led back by the ears in the Senate.

The delay of the District beer bill is a fine example of a Congress of 535 members trying to function as a city council.

Having troubles of our own we can sympathize with South Carolina, but can't worry over Cole Blease's announcement that he will run for governor.

Mortgage refinancing should not be slipped in as an amendment to the farm relief measure. Both are revolutionary enough to deserve a bill apiece.

Mr. Hoover must have recalled yesterday what the veterans said when he suggested that their benefits be cut about one-third as much.

If we can't get beer by Friday there seems to be no way that Congress can prevent our enjoyment of the cherry blossoms next Sunday.

Remapping the world is dangerous, says M. Herriot. That, certainly, has been abundantly proven.

There are indications that Chancellor Hitler finds the boycott a double-barreled boomerang that the world can use as effectively as his Nazis can.

Applications are being received from 250,000 who want to be dollar-a-day woodsmen, and from twice as many who are willing to boss them at higher wages.

Now it is claimed that the average lender is poorer than the borrower; but it's no use—this year's sympathy rights have been preempted by the mortgagee.

JUST FOLKS

BOOKS.

My books look down as if to say:
"We have not changed since yesterday.
Though every hour we older grow,
The selfsame charms we can bestow.
You've but to take us from the shelf
And soon you will forget yourself.

Tired man, what is your desire?
A sage to sit before your fire?
Would you with Shelly drift afar
From all the sordid things that are
And share the beauty of his mind?
You can if you are so inclined.

Would you with Conrad sail the sea
Or talk with Shakespeare? That can be.
Even the tales by Homer sung
Can keep you brave and keep you young.
You think the world's affairs are bad.
We haven't lost the wealth we had.

Come! Here we stay, old friends and new,
Waiting the chance to hearten you.
Why then so miserably live,
Scorning the joys we gladly give?
Time changes much that mortals gain
But books their constant friends remain.

If the Mill Owns the Town, the Town Must Obey the Mill Owner

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE is nothing new under the sun. Today, as always, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, which means that common people are forever in danger of losing their rights and their freedom if they relax in fancied security.

Now, as in ancient days and in the time of our fathers, mankind is divided into two opposing groups.

Usually the two groups are called Conservatives and Liberals. Sometimes they are called the Best People and the Mob, or City Slickers and Yokels, or, more recently, the Old Guard and Sons of the Wild Jackass.

But whatever the names they are called, one group believes that a favored few should control and direct the earth and its people, and the other believes that every man should be free and independent and secure in his right to enjoy every privilege possessed by the most favored.

The struggle between these two groups makes history.

Those who have power scheme and struggle without ceasing to maintain and increase it, and those who are weak struggle endlessly to preserve themselves by curbing the power that threatens them.

You seldom see the struggle clearly, for many confusing issues obscure it, but it continues without truce from one generation to another.

Do you know that America's best minds planned to make the Mississippi Valley a land of vast estates ruled by absentee landlords?

One company of men, having shared their graft with the leaders of Congress, actually obtained a tract of 5,000,000 acres—at 8 cents an acre.

The followers of Hamilton favored the scheme; the followers of Jefferson opposed it. The common people triumphed, and the West became a land of independent farmers, with small holdings, rather than a land of serfs.

Recently the Supreme Court vetoed a law to tax chain stores as incomes are taxed. Brandeis, the great Liberal, dissented. The people, he declared, have the right to limit the size of commercial institutions—and to use taxation as their weapon.

Which is another way of saying that every man has the right to work and prosper and enjoy the fruits of his labor in peace and security, which he can not do if great fortunes, growing without restraint, are permitted to absorb the wealth of a nation and make its people their servants.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Roosevelt's Brevity.

Detroit News.

A President's message traditionally are the longest, dullest and, popularly speaking, the least read of all state papers. After admitting an existing exceptional situation, with all eyes turned expectantly to Washington, a great deal must be added on account of the brevity and directness in accounting for the appeal which the Roosevelt messages possess.

Readings of newspapers published in different parts of the country, and having varying political classifications, finds the messages prominent in the news. Frequently they appear in brevier or black-face type, or set in double or treble widths and boxed. The consequent "broadcast" to readers is evident. The equal in reaching the general public from the White House hardly can be cited from the past. It seems rash to say that Theodore Roosevelt's two-fisted style, or Woodrow Wilson's skill with words, reached as many people.

Helpful Hint to Secretary Hull.

Kansas City Star.

The new Secretary of State is said to be dismayed at the prospect of the 60 or 70 diplomatic dinners he will be expected to attend in the Washington season. Always desirous of being helpful, we call his attention to the expedient devised by his illustrious predecessor, Charles Evans Hughes, while Secretary of State. Secretary Hughes found it put an impossible strain on his digestion to eat a succession of elaborate dinners. So he took a simple dinner at home before going out. Then he merely toyed with his food at the formal dinner.

If Secretary Hull will do this and leave the party each night by 10 o'clock, he may be able to get by with safety to his digestion and his mental processes.

Public Enemy.

Chicago News.

The unpardonable crime for any American is to sell his country short.

Tough Break.

Dallas News.

It has just about gotten so in this country that even after a deserving Democrat finally gets an office they reduce his salary.

The Seven Survivors.

Kansas City Times.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas called at the White House. Doubtless President Roosevelt was interested in meeting one of the four Republican governors elected in the year of the Big Wind. The others are Buck of Delaware, Winant of New Hampshire and Wilson of Vermont. Three other Republican governors there are, hangovers from a happier year—Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Rolph of California and Balzar of Nevada. Altogether seven Republican governors out of 48. The sacred number, as the G. O. P. will hasten to point out.

Rough Road Ahead.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

The President has moved with astounding assurance and swiftness in pushing his ambitious program of legislation. He has gained much. The country is the gainer. Some things—vastly important things—may be said to have been settled for good by his alert and forceful leadership at a crucial time.

Congress begins to murmur. As emergency recedes, its members show signs that they want more to say about matters. Protests are beginning to be heard. The road of the valiant crusader will likely be not so smooth in the near future, especially after patronage matters are crystallized.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Saloons for Men Must Come With Hard Liquor, Concludes "Old Soak."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with one of your correspondents that the definition of what is a "saloon" is important. When hard liquor comes in with the repeal of the eighteenth amendment something will have to be done about it. The sale of a slight stimulant like 3.2 beer will work all right in regular well-behaved eating places. But I want to say, and I have had a little experience in my time, that you can not sell red eye so as to make it pay without a good deal of noise, loud talk and disorderly conduct now and then in the place where it is sold. A regular restaurant is not its proper place. A place where whiskey and its kind of drinks are sold should be strictly a men's hang-out.

In starting to sell alcoholic drinks only where eating is supposed to come first, the beer bill will get us in a nice mess a few years later, and you will find it out when the eighteenth amendment is repealed. With whiskey and cocktails on sale to everyone who "likes his liquor," a regular restaurant may keep on calling itself such, but it will be with a lot of difference.

Then again the place of sale may not be so awfully important. What counts is to have strict regulations. And in my opinion, if we do not provide places for the special comfort of hard-licker drinkers when the eighteenth amendment goes out, the revenue raised will be less than it ought to be and the drys will increase in number and give us just as much trouble as they ever did before.

OLD SOAK.

What Items Constitute 21 Per Cent Decrease in Cost of Living, Asks Federal Employe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in this (Thursday) morning's paper regarding the wage cut of the Federal employes is quite to the point, but there is one thing regarding this new legislation that I wish you would inform us upon. That is how the President and his informers ascertain that the present cost of living is 21 per cent below that of 1928?

The mortgage on my house still costs me 6 per cent, or $300 per year. My real estate taxes are exactly the same. So is my insurance. My income tax is higher. Doctor's charges are higher. Our medical doctor charges twice as much for an office visit as he did in 1928. Four members of my family wear glasses and have their eyes examined every other year. In 1928 the doctor charged $5 for this service. He now charges $10. My dentist's charges are either the same or, in some instances, higher. Our telephone bill is the same. Car fare is higher. School books cost the same. Entertainment costs the same.

It does not seem possible that the figure 21 per cent can be correct. We would like to have the details of the compilation of facts and figures published so that all may see.

FEDERAL EMPLOYE.

Recognition of Russia—Great Britain Blows Hot and Cold.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Despite the fact that Senators Borah and Pittman (each for a different reason) favor the recognition of Soviet Russia, many equally able statesmen and many millions of average Americans are opposed to recognition of the present Russian government.

Senator Pittman would recognize Russia for business reasons. Senator Borah would recognize Russia for reasons which may best be termed philosophical and idealistic.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald's government recognized the present Russian regime for all the reasons given by both Senators Pittman and Borah. But Mr. MacDonald has been hot and cold and on both sides of the fence on the wisdom of his administration's action from time to time ever since.

If times were normal and the Russian government had taken such action on British citizens as was taken by Stalin recently, Great Britain would have threatened Russia with a fleet of battleships or, failing to take such action, the government would have been overthrown. It has ever been the boast of England that her citizens are always protected, wherever they may be, and no English premier has dared to back down from that boast except Premier MacDonald.

GROVER AYERS

Let Language Sharps Define "Saloon," If They Can.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the worthwhile editorial page of The Post, March 30, I enjoyed reading Francis de Sales Ryan's scholarly letter on the lexicographic pronunciation of the word "conservator," apropos of the President's new deal pronunciation thereof. Occasional discussion of such minor questions of learning are welcome as a relief from the heated debates of hard times and politics. For instance, an unprejudiced and lucid definition of the word "saloon," relative to a twentieth century concept of temperance in liquor traffic, would please a good many, besides being of some public importance.

I have been more or less eagerly waiting for some such definition. Among The Post's correspondents there may be some one erudite enough to clearly define the word. Its meaning up to this time has been foozled by small-beer politicians as a sort of verbal football in the wet-or-dry arena.

SUDS.

Happenings of Interest in Washington Society

Roosevelt and Wife Attend Church at St. Thomas'.

THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. ROOSEVELT and their house guests, who include a number of relatives, attended services at St. Thomas Episcopal Church yesterday morning.

In the afternoon the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their guests motored to Annapolis.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guest of the Women's City Club at a tea in her honor on Wednesday. In the receiving line with Mrs. Roosevelt will be Miss Alice M. Heaven, president; Judge Mary O'Toole, first vice president, and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, second vice president, Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Dr. A. Frances Foye, Dean Grace Hays Riley, Mrs. Merritt O. Chance and Mrs. William L. Corbin, former presidents of the club, will act as hostesses and preside at the tea tables. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Mrs. Grayson, chairman; Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, Mrs. Chance, Mrs. George M. Eckels and Miss Ethel Bagley.

Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President; Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, wife of the Speaker of the House; the wives of United States senators and the women members of the House of Representatives have been invited as special guests to the reception to be given Wednesday afternoon at the Sulgrave Club by the District of Columbia division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. The reception has been arranged for the entertainment of out-of-town delegates attending the organization's annual convention at the Hotel Mayflower.

Receiving the guests will be Mrs. John R. Williams, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace, Mrs. James F. Curtis, Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett, Miss Bell Gurnee, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Henry Leonard, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Mrs. Arthur O'Brien, Mrs. Edwards Shouse, and Mrs. John P. Wilkins.

Mrs. William Beverley Mason, chairman of the Distrfict division, will entertain members of the national executive committee at tea tomorrow afternoon at her home in M street. There will be 60 guests. Mrs. Mason has as her guest during the convention period Mrs. J. Wilkinson Jervey, of Greenville, S. C.

Recent Bride and Attendant

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. John Ralph Lanigan, whose marriage to Lieut. Lanigan, U. S. M. C., took place Friday evening, with her maid of honor, Miss Josephine Parks. Mrs. Lanigan was Miss Ann White.

Ambassador of Peru To Entertain Tonight.

The Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel Freyre y Santander, will entertain at dinner tonight.

Mrs. William Duncan Herridge, wife of the Minister of Canada, will open the bazaar at the British Club at 3 p. m. Wednesday.

Mrs. William H. Woodin, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, wife of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, will be guests at the Sulgrave Club at 11 a. m. tomorrow, when Maj. Gen. B. F. Cheatham, U. S. A., retired, will tell of the restoration of Stratford Hall, birthplace of Robert E. Lee. Among the other guests will be Mrs. William Cabell Bruce, of the Maryland Society of the Lee Memorial Foundation, who will come to Washington especially for the occasion; Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Mrs. Stephen Gambrill, Mrs. Henry Pitahugh, Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, Mrs. Charles E. Boles, Mrs. John C. Breckenridge, Mrs. G. K. Richards, Mrs. A. H. K. Richards and Mrs. Stanley Reed.

Representative Kathryn O'Loughlin McCarthy, of Kansas, was the guest of honor at the tea at the Women's City Club yesterday. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Dorothy K. Butler, Mrs. Isabelle K. Thomas, Mrs. Frank Golden, Miss Julia E. Coonan and Mrs. John J. Noonan. Mrs. A. B. Aller and Miss Roberta F. Tull presided at the tea tables.

A program of songs was furnished by the Glee Club of Catholic University.

The Charge d'Affaires of Chile, Mr. Benjamin Cohen, entertained at luncheon yesterday in the embassy.

Mrs. B. H. Fuller, wife of the commandant of the Marine Corps, will not be at home until Easter Monday, April 17.

Mlle. Claudel Honored By April-Fool Party.

The Air Attache of the Italian Embassy and Signora Sbernadori entertained Saturday evening at one of the most amusing of the many parties which has been given in farewell to Mlle. Reine Claudel, who left yesterday for New York.

About 30 young people, mostly members of the Diplomatic Corps, gathered for supper at 9 o'clock at the Sbernadori home on Wyoming avenue, which had been converted into a night club for the evening. The walls of the rooms were decorated with aviation posters in bright colored pastels, sketched by the talented hostess. Throughout the evening April-fool tricks were played on, and by the guests, and as the party reached its height, two policemen raided the house to the astonishment and delight of the party. An impromptu song and dance number was given by three young Italian guests who had found black-face make-up for the occasion.

Mlle. Claudel, accompanied by her brother, M. Pierre Claudel, and Signor Giuseppe Tommasi, Secretary of the Italian Embassy, motored to New York yesterday. Signor Tommasi will return to Washington today.

The former Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson will entertain at a dinner at Woodley on Saturday evening for Capt. Eugene Regnier. Regnier, who will leave shortly for his new post at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex.

Capt. Regnier served as aid to Mr. Stimson while he was Secretary of State, and was on his staff while the latter was Governor General of the Philippines.

Mrs. N. T. Morris, who arrived here over the week-end with Mrs. H. Harry Miller from Brooklyn, N. Y., entertained at dinner for a group of seven on Saturday evening at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. George T. Marye entertained at dinner at the Russian Troika Saturday evening, covers being laid for 12 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Swarts, of Los Angeles, who are making an extensive visit in the Eastern States, are stopping at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Glendenning Gives Party for Mrs. Duke.

Mrs. Alicia duPont Glendenning entertained at a buffet supper last evening for Mrs. T. Walter D. Duke, of New York, when the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, Mr. and Mrs. Emmons Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Snow, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Delattre-Seguy, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Commander and Mrs. Ralph Hyde, Miss Rebecca Alfaro, Miss Emily Stuart Maddox, Mrs. Charlotte Warfield, Mrs. Blaine Mallan, Miss Patricia Mencia, the charge d'affaires of Chile, M. Benjamin Cohen; the secretary of the Italian Embassy, Signor Andrea Ferrero; the second secretary of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Don Juan Terasa; Lieut. Coop, of the Italian navy; Mr. George Shaw, the second secretary of the Chilean Embassy, Senor Don Mario Rodriguez; Mr. Fernando Pisa and Mr. Nolan.

Miss Della M. Selover, who has been spending the past season in Florida, has returned to her apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Alida Henriques entertained at luncheon at the Russian Troika Saturday, having as her guests Mrs. Charles Alden, Mrs. John Lindsay Moorehead and Mr. W. G. Brantley.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Stimson, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., with their son, Frederick Stimson, jr., have come to Washington for an indefinite stay, and they are at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Walter B. Leach, of Brookline, Mass., with Mrs. Charles N. Noyes and Mrs. Frank M. Parker arrived here yesterday for a stay of several days and they are occupying a suite at Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Drake to Make Talk On Holy Grail Quest.

Miss Alice Hutchins Drake will have as her topic for the Booklovers Monday night at 8 o'clock, "The Quest of the Holy Grail." She will read from Tennyson's "Idylls of the King" and interpret the Abbey Murals in the Boston Public Library. The fine arts division of the Library of Congress will lend photographs of the paintings. This meeting is annually offered by the Booklovers on the first Monday in April. The public is invited.

Tonight in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel the Georgia State Society of Washington will give a formal reception and dance. The forty beautiful young ladies who have reached the semifinals in the Metro-Goldwyn-Fox Screen Contest conducted by the Washington Herald have been invited as honor guests of the society at the invitation of Capt. Thomas J. Jackson, president of the society. Senator Richard B. Russell, jr., will serve as chairman of the floor committee.

Representative Eugene E. Cox, chairman of the entertainment committee, has named little Miss Marion Wolberg, one of the contestants, as mistress of ceremonies and during the intermission Miss Wolberg will introduce the other young ladies. Miss Clara Borjes and the Ryan Twins will offer entertainment.

All Georgians in the city are invited to attend and meet with the members of the society. Prior to the dance there will be a short business meeting at 8:30 o'clock.

Culbertson on Bridge

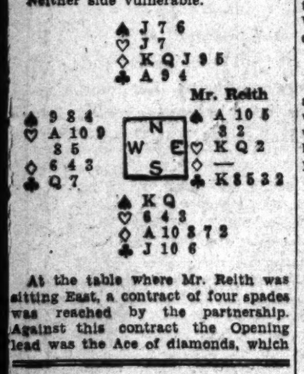
MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

MR. GEORGE REITH, executive vice president of the United States Bridge Association, has been a member of many important teams-of-four which have won high honors, and the partner in many a pair which has breezed through to championship.

In the recent Eastern tournament held in New York, he was a member of a team of four, his teammates being Messrs. Willard S. Karn, of New York, and B. Jay Becker and Charles H. Goren, of Philadelphia.

An example of the kind of play that has given Mr. Reith high standing among the world's experts is the following:

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

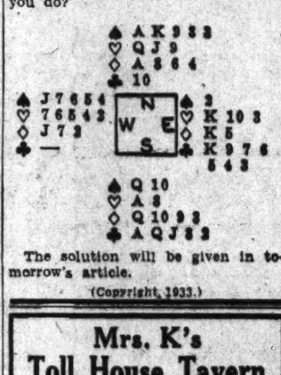


At the table where Mr. Reith was sitting East, a contract of four spades was reached by the partnership. Against this contract the Opening lead was the Ace of diamonds, which Mr. Reith ruffed, bringing his trump holding down to four. A small club was then led, and the Queen in Dummy lost to North's Ace. North returned a diamond and Mr. Reith again ruffed in his own hand. He now led a small spade, South winning with the Queen. South helped Mr. Reith's tactics at this point by returning a diamond, although the trump return would have brought the same results. This was ruffed with the Ten of spades and the Ace of spades laid down, South was now void of trumps, as was the Declarer. The rest of the hand was simple. Mr. Reith continued to lead hearts until North won with his last trump, but the remaining tricks went to Mr. Reith as a reward of his excellent plan and play.

Where the other sides of the two teams met, the hand was played by West at three hearts, which was, of course, made.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If you held the South hand below, and your partner, with both sides vulnerable, had opened the bidding with one spade and then doubled a bid of two clubs by East, what would you do?



The solution will be given in tomorrow's article.

This model home is located at 1340 Locust road northwest in the beautiful Northgate subdivision. This most desirable dwelling, built by Paul T. Stone, Inc., and furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., with draperies by John F. Ligon, is presented by J. Wesley Buchanan, Inc., realtors, with offices at 918 Fifteenth street northwest.

Architecturally and structurally, this distinguished center-hall brick residence is a contribution of unusual merit to the better class homes of the National Capital. It will be open daily and Sunday until 9 p. m. To visit it, drive out Sixteenth street northwest, to Locust road, one block north of Kalmia road.

Salvation Army Session Ended by United Service

Speaking at the united evangelistic service that marked the close of the two-day convention of the Salvation Army Young People's units, Col. Arthur E. Smeeton, of Atlanta, Ga., chief secretary of the Southern territory of the Salvation Army, called attention yesterday to the religious campaign now being carried on by the army under the general title "All Else Has Failed—Try Religion."

Col. Smeeton spoke at a public gathering that taxed the capacity of Temple Corps, 606 E street northwest, and was assisted in conducting the service by Mrs. Smeeton, Adj. Sidney Cox, territorial young people's secretary; Maj. James Asher, commanding the Washington Division; Mrs. Asher and other officers. A special musical program was a feature of the meeting.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN

Colored Accessories Are Vital to New Gray, Dare Declares.

The Meanderer

Reports on Washington's Very New Bath and Boudoir Shop — In a Monday Morning Consideration of Personal Loveliness.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 39, or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Light from high windows in the sunshiny sixth floor end of a large Fourteenth street shop finds itself most exquisitely reflected in colorful toilet bottles, in a myriad of mirrors, and in intimate small lamps in a newly opened bath and boudoir department that Washington shoppers are privileged to enjoy. Glamour, elusive perfume and downright allure may be added to the everyday duty of cleanliness if the aids to keeping clean that are so numerous in this corner are purchased for one's bath or boudoir shelf.

Only toiletries, towels, mirrors and the supplementary equipment for the bath and make-up are displayed in this novel new shop. Shoppers must not expect to see completely fitted bathrooms. No plumbing is included in the exhibit—all plumbing fixtures are taken for granted. But those who have gone in for color in the bath, or whose bathrooms need color added to the conservative white of fixtures, will delight in the colored bath ensembles—shower curtains, towels of all sizes with matching soaps, wash cloths—even colored rubber bath mats of size and sturdiness to function most efficiently—nail brushes, bath brushes, soap boxes, toilet bottles. Even the hot-water bottles, ice packs and all rubber goods harmonize, to say nothing of matching toilet tissues, cleansing cream tissues on rolls or in packages—even matching pads for the make-up and matching powder puffs! It would seem that the art of keeping exquisitely clean was in its heyday—that the old Romans—the Meanderer can't resist saying—had nothing on present-day Americans in the matter of giving attention to the bath.

She who would take a perfumed bath may find it difficult to choose between the boxes of jasmine floating bath soap and the assorted odors of tiny imported soaps . . . or between the English rose bath salts and the bath oil in the restrained white and red package with a name high in the toiletries world stamped thereon. The price of the oil may seem formidable, but the bath needs not more than five drops of this magic liquid for the desired effect. Toilet essence, something new for the boudoir shelf, is not toilet water, nor yet perfume. It is a fluorescence of flower oils—a "light, clear overtone of all your favorite flowers," a current magazine of the sophisticated mode calls it.

Sachets, so necessary to some fastidious women, are in the bath and boudoir shop in variety. Packets of real English lavender for linens particularly appealed to the Meanderer.

All this flutter the Meanderer seems to be in isn't just over the things that are actually for sale in the new little corner. After the difficult times we've been going through we probably aren't more than ordinarily in need of baths, but mental refreshment so akin to bodily cleanliness may be acquired with the purchase of some of the exquisite toiletries and towels. Therefore, this Monday morning, let's omit kitchen topics for once in favor of a column full of devotion to personal loveliness.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

HER OWN THINGS.

A 4-year-old insisted upon playing with her mother's sewing box, getting its contents into disorder, dropping them on the floor or losing them about the house and yard in the most annoying fashion.

Reproofs and punishment could not compete with the fascination of play with mother's scissors, thimble, buttons, bright-colored threads and bits of cloth.

Finally the mother hit upon the idea of fitting up a sewing box and giving it to the child for her very own. The youngster was delighted.

"I have my sewing box and you have yours," she said proudly.

Thereafter mother's box was unmolested while the child played contentedly with the things in her own box, which, interestingly enough, she was careful not to lose and which she kept in good order just as her mother kept hers. It was a simple lesson and one easy to learn.

One of the best ways to teach a child to respect the property of other people is to give him property of his own and to treat everything that belongs to him, his clothes, his toys, his books, his tools, with the greatest respect.

They should be borrowed or thrown away only with his permission. Whenever he shows a disposition to treat grown-up possessions roughly give him something equivalent for his own, and he will see immediately why it is that his parents are so particular about their belongings.

Helping him thus to get the point of view of the property owner makes him able to understand readily why he must not take and use or spoil things that belong to others.

He will respect them as he expects his own things to be respected by those who handle them.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Blouses and the tops of whole dresses, stressing the new in the mode, and a little hand faggoting! (Selected by Dah-ray.)

NOW that grey has become a smart color—thereby losing some of its true elegance and certainly some individuality, it is the mode to wear colored accessories with it. Personally I will ever think that none but grey accessories will ever be truly elegant with grey, but for charm and variety, colors do seem to be in order.

The smartest color combined this spring with grey is yellow—and all shades, ranging to orange, "orange peel" and "tangerine" the smartest. Navy blue with the yellow, or just the yellow alone with grey. Next the purples and violet shades are smart with grey, and of this I approve—there is an affinity between grey and mauve that can not be denied.

Lastly, one sees grey combined with cerise and red, and often with greens. Especially when the grey verges on the string shades—those warm greys that look sort of beigy—does this grey combine with colors. The soft and cold grays are not best combined with colors, I think. Rather with gray in accessories, even if you venture some different shades of gray.

You just don't know the new cottons until you see them! It is simply amazing, what strides fabrics of all sorts have made; cotton perhaps more than any others. This summer we will see cotton fabrics that seem like all sorts of other material save cotton, in every sort of an accessory, as well as frock, of course. Gloves, hats, belts, bags, scarfs—all of some one of the new cotton fabrics. And very smart, and distinctly hot weather wear, I think.

Promised you I would make a leaflet on how to make over hats! Well, it is ready now, and I am certain that you won't be disappointed in it. Get the idea that the old-fashioned hats are unwearable anyhow, and think that if you manage to make over even one into something you can wear, into something that is a new hat, you have justified the effort of sending for the leaflet! Personally I think you will probably end up by making over about ten hats—because no hat is so hopelessly shaped or so out of style that this leaflet can't tell you how to make it over. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet and just see for yourself.

• • • •

The masculine suit with skirt as well as trousers is all the rage these days—and before one condemns, one pauses to think. There are so many occasions when this is practical! The jacket and vests are the same in either case—skirt or trousers. One can indeed put the trousers aside until they are more generally worn, should one be timid.

Paris goes so far as to admit masculine pyjamas for lounging, and many of the leading couturiers are showing them. Perhaps more feminine while still retaining the idea, are the lounging suits of heavy, dull crepe or reps, or cire, which are fashioned exactly as a man's suit, but in the softer material which makes it a garment for feminine curves.

Au revoir!

6 slices pineapple
½ cup white cream cheese
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups cooked spinach
2 cups diced carrots, cooked

Arrange ham on serving platter, top with pineapple and make balls out of cheese and place in pineapple centers. Arrange spinach and carrots in molds around edge. Sprinkle with salt and garnish with parsley and lemon quarters.

What Today Means

"ARIES."

IF April 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:50 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2:20 p. m.

It is possible that you will receive some material or information of an important nature, but it will come to you in a very round-about way. If you are suffering with an ailment of a physical nature, you may expect a turn for the better.

The child born on this April 3 will probably have a restless and flighty nature. He will not show himself to be a good student, but should distinguish himself at school in some activity requiring mental and not physical exertion. A generally buoyant nature.

If April 3 is the date of your birth, the chances are that your work, whatever it may be, will not lead you into well charted seas. There is too much initiative and originality in your general makeup; also, there is in you much of the pioneer spirit. You like adventure, you like to explore, and you like to "nose in" to things. If you get into business, you will do nothing of a routine nature. You will probably get in to business for yourself, and it will be no cut and dried affair either. You will find something with a new slant to it, and you will make good at it too. There is more than a bare possibility that you will do creative work entirely. Your sense of humor combined with an ability to draw should enable you to make a name for yourself in the field of comics. You are quick to sense the dramatic in any situation; you like to appear before people. Do not be surprised if you find yourself either on the stage or else writing for theatrical production.

Born on April 3, you are a wide-awake person and quick to take advantage of everything that comes your way. You work, for the pure love of what you are doing; at times, when deeply engrossed in your work, you lose all track of time and place and you have been known to miss important appointments on this account. You will make your way in this world. You will never be long without money, and you should end up rich.

Successful people born on April 3: Washington Irving, author.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE SUNSHINE SPECIAL.

THE United States Weather Bureau supplies us with some valuable information as to the number of hours of sunshine in the average year in different parts of the world.

Phoenix leads the cities of the United States. It has 3,752 hours of sunshine yearly. This is more than 10 hours of sunlight for each day in the year if the sun were to distribute its light evenly among the days. Since the sun is above the horizon less than 12 hours daily for one-half the year, the record shows that but little cloud and fog obscure it in any daily travel from eastern to western horizon.

San Diego follows second with 3,049 hours. Tampa has a record of 2,948; Denver, 2,946; San Francisco, 2,878; Bismarck, 2,700; Chicago, 2,632; Washington, 2,598; New York, 2,557; New Orleans, 2,579; Spokane, 2,492; Seattle, 2,023; Honolulu, 2,840; Colon, 2,413; Ancon, 2,155; Toronto, 2,048.

One can readily understand certain places when they rise to complain of being omitted from the list. Such regions as Imperial Valley and cities such as Tucson, El Paso, Albuquerque and Salt Lake City claim a very low annual rainfall, no fogs, few clouds and perpetual sunshine, and they show figures to prove their claims.

A more general statement, and one that is in accordance with the facts, is that the region of maximum sunshine is the Southwest, including southern California (especially east of the Coast mountains), Arizona, New Mexico and western Texas. The region of minimum sunshine is the extreme Northwest and especially the Coast region.

As a rule, American cities surpass those of Europe in the number of hours of sunshine yearly. Sunshine kills most of the bacteria, yeasts, molds and fungi exposed to it. In areas of maximum sunshine, other things being equal, the air and the dust come nearer being free from germs in sunny places than is the case elsewhere.

Another factor is the blanketing effect of clouds. An experience in an industrial valley in Europe proved that clouds can hold polluted air in place until it becomes poisonous. This is especially true of air polluted by chemical fumes, but it is true in some measure of that polluted by microbes.

However, our major interest is in the amount and quality of sunshine in those periods of the year when the supply is least, when the needs are greatest and when the temperature and wind movement permits men to avail themselves of it.

For several months of the year there is apt to be more sunlight than man needs for purposes other than general sanitation. Suppose we eliminate the five months between May and November. What is the record for hours of sunshine in the remaining seven? Or, is it more to the point that we know the comparative records for the four months—December, January, February and March—and, besides that, how comfortable was the climate during that period? Was the temperature high enough and the wind slow enough to make life in the open air comfortable? Almost anyone anywhere can stay out enough to get sufficient sunshine in November, April and May.

Wisconsin Dry Leader Concedes Wet Victory

Milwaukee, Wis., April 2 (A.P.).—A victory for Wisconsin antiprohibitionists in Tuesday's referendum on repeal of the eighteenth amendment was conceded today by the Rev. Warren Jones, State superintendent of the Antisaloon League.

"We hope to win," he said, "but my forecast for next Tuesday is that the vote will be similar to that on the repeal of the State enforcement law."

Beer Control Deadlock Holds in Empire State

Albany, N. Y., April 2 (A.P.).—Beer control legislation in New York State slipped into a tighter deadlock tonight as the warring factions in the Legislature persisted in their refusal to compromise.

The controversy has simmered down mainly to the question of whether beer licensing shall be controlled by a State board, appointed by the governor, or by county boards.

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

New York.—It was just about two years ago that the several Spanish and Mexican colonies about New York became considerably excited over a bull fight that was scheduled to be staged just across the Hudson in an obscure New Jersey arena.

Now, bull fights are supposed to be illegal here, so naturally there was quite a to do over the matter. The fight was staged all right, but the bull was so clearly the victor that sympathy quickly turned in favor of the unlucky matadors.

Story Comes to Light.

The whole affair wound up in quite a mystery, and this eagle eye at last has turned up the true story, told by the man responsible for the whole thing.

He is a prominent Newark lawyer, and as the unfortunate shindig already has added enough gray hairs to his head, his name must be held in confidence.

It began when one of those small amusement parks that dot the shores of the Hudson went into bankruptcy. Until affairs could be straightened out, this lawyer was appointed receiver. With only highest principles in mind, he decided to continue operation of the park in an effort to save as much money as possible for the creditors.

First, he booked a zoo of wild animals as an attraction, but the board of health forced him to send the zoo on its way.

Looking around for another attraction to lure customers to the park, this lawyer-turned-showman-for-the-moment ran into a group of very destitute fellows who claimed they were bull fighters.

The battle was arranged, and a week before the event all the Spanish newspapers in New York carried advertisements of the coming fiesta. The day of the fight the park was jammed with customers and the lawyer seemed very pleased indeed.

With a great flurry, the band played a stirring march as the costumed toreadors, matadors and picadors paraded into the arena. Just as the signal was given to start, an officer rushed into the arena waving an injunction to stop the battle.

Exit the Matadors.

But, it was too late. The bull had already been turned into the arena, and what a bundle of fire and lightning that Jersey bred animal turned out to be! With a snort of anger it made one charge, and the group of frightened bull fighters hurdled the wall and headed for open country with the speed of a covey of quail coming out of the grass.

The bull wasn't to be stopped, and with a bellow of rage he, too, leaped the wall amid the cash customers and within two seconds he had the arena to himself.

Well, the lawyer had to refund the money. After he had paid off his losses and sent the bull back to its pasture, he decided it would be less expensive after all just to close the park.

Woodcock Warns Dry Agents Not to Let Up

(Associated Press.)

Here is the final order issued by Amos W. W. Woodcock before he retired Saturday as director of the Prohibition Bureau:

"I want every one in this bureau to understand that we are not letting up. * * * As in the past I want simply the earnest, loyal and intelligent effort of every one to make this policy a success. To the investigators particularly I say: Do not worry about mere number of cases. Give us the best that is in you. The results will follow to my satisfaction."

The order, dated April 1, was dictated before Woodcock had been notified when he was to be relieved.

Agua Caliente Handicap to Gallant Sir

By WILLIAM WARNE.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, April 2 (A.P.).—Untouched by the whip, Gallant Sir, powerful 4-year-old colt owned by Norman W. Church, won the $25,000 added Agua Caliente Handicap from a small field here today in record time.

A heady ride by Jockey Georgie Woolf put Gallant Sir in the lead shortly after he had raced a mile, and brought him home in the last quarter mile without difficulty to a length victory over Waylayer, owned by A. A. Baroni, which made a valiant attempt in the last furlong to overtake the favorite.

In winning today, Gallant Sir eclipsed by one-fifth of a second the record for handicap distance which Phar Lap, wonder horse of Australia, set last year. Phar Lap covered a mile and a quarter in 2:02 4-5.

The track today was in superb condition and probably was a little faster than March 20 last year, when the red terror from the land down under ran and won his only race in America.

Lemon Hills Third In Classic.

Third to the thoroughbred that had all but been conceded the race by trainers of his eight opponents, came Lemon Hills, a made-over plater belonging to Abe Bartelstein and Harry Unns, a length behind Waylayer. Loversall, a rangy 3-year-old filly owned by the Meadow Brook Stables, was fourth. Bahamas, Wirt G. Bowman, Satin Spar, The Nut and Whizz James trailed the money winners in that order. The added purse was split, with $24,200 going to Gallant Sir, $2,500 to Waylayer, $1,250 to Lemon Hills and $750 to Loversall.

The field was the smallest in the fourteen years' history of the border's gallop grande. It went to the post promptly at 5 p. m., and was off to a good start three minutes later.

Loversall and Whizz James, the latter coupled with Gallant Sir as a pace setter, broke in the lead.

Gallant Sir was held to fifth position around the first turn and began moving up on the leaders at the head of the back stretch. Bahamas was the first to head Whizz James as the sprinters began tiring, but the 4-year-old gelding was not stout enough to withstand Gallant Sir's drive on the last turn.

Bahamas Falls Back Rapidly.

The winner was out in front when the home stretch was reached and Bahamas was falling back rapidly. Waylayer, coming from fourth position, raced under urging into a position of contention, a sixteenth from the wire, but there Gallant Sir laid back his ears and the race was won. Lemon Hills closed a great gap in the last quarter, but did not have enough to get home ahead. Loversall ran a brilliant race, being nipped by Lemon Hills just short of the wire.

Gallant Sir's part in today's purse brought his total winnings to $74,220, a return of approximately 3 to 1 on the price Norman Church paid for him at the Saratoga sales. As a yearling Church paid, $24,000 for the sturdy colt.

The favorite from the day the nominations were revealed, Gallant Sir opened in the future books at 2½ to 1, and at race time his price in the books was 1 to 5, with no place or show bets being taken. The odds reflected Gallant Sir's record. He has not been out of the money in 14 races and has won the Maryland Handicap and $9,475; the Latonia Championship, and $28,465, and four preparatory races here in succession. The winner is a get of Sir Galahad III, sire of Gallant Fox. His dam is Sun Spot, a Sun Star mare.

In the mutuel machines Gallant Sir paid $3.60 to win, $4 to place, $2.60 to show. Waylayer paid $4.20 to place and $3.50 to show, while Lemon Hills paid $5.20 to show.

The crowd numbered about 10,000 persons, far short of the number which jammed the Jockey Club for the running of the handicap last year.

The Babe Busts One to Make Things Official. Orcutt Wins in South.

CAMERA SLANTS AT NEWS IN SPORTS

Crack Coast Swimmer. "Gray Eagle" Is Back. Stagg Shows 'Em How.

Immediately after signing a contract calling for $52,000 for the coming season, Babe Ruth stepped up and gave the fans at St. Petersburg a demonstration of his specialty. Here you see him in Scene 1, Act 1, wherein he swings mightily and misses. The fans love it. In Act 2 he whanged one out of sight, providing, you might say, the central motif of Virtue Triumphant. The Big Fellow expects to hit at least 48 homers this year, bringing his major league total to 700. Next are Maureen Orcutt (right), of Englewood, N. J., medalist and winner of the North and South women's golf championship at Pinehurst, N. C., with Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., whom she defeated, 5 and 4, in the final round. It was Miss Orcutt's third successive victory in the winter event.

Jack Medica, of Seattle, Wash., (top), who has his eyes on every world swimming mark from 100 yards to 1,500 meters. Saturday night he competed in the national indoor championships and was third to Ralph Flanagan at 500 yards. And here is Tris Speaker, former peerless outfielder of the big leagues, back in baseball after a period on sidelines. The "Gray Eagle" is shown knocking fungoes to his Kansas City Blues, of the American Association, whom he will manage and help along with an occasional pinch-hit. The young fellow at the right, going through the gyrations of a "spinner" play, is 70-year-old Alonzo Stagg, former Chicago University mentor, showing his College of Pacific gridsters how to do it in spring practice.

Schulte Hits Home Run in Big Third

Outfielder Also Gets 2 Singles; Goslin's Bat Prominent.

Stewart, Bud Thomas Hold Lookouts Safe Before 3,000.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 2.—The fantastic sight of human beings in the grandstand, boxes and bleachers excited the Nats so much today that they went a bit hysteric and jumped all over their little brothers, Chattanooga, 11 to 4. More than 3,000 spectators turned out for the game, a crowd that looked like the population of China to the Washingtons, who have been giving such private performances for the last month that the gents all thought they were on a honeymoon.

Most of all they hopped on a guy named Leon Pettitt, a left-handed pitcher who divided his time between trying to bean his big brothers and trying to keep from being beaned whenever one of his pea-shooter hooks came close enough to the plate to be socked. There was no pettitt larceny in the way Washington treated him in the third, by the way.

That third inning is about the only thing to talk about, I suspect, in deference to the depression. It was the outstanding portion of a day of clouting.

Cronin Safe on Bunt.

Cronin started things by hot-footing it to first ahead of a bunt. Goose punched one over short, sending Joe to third, and Fred Schulte got one he liked around the dimples in his knees, and when last seen the ball was traveling in the general direction of Kokomo, Kans., with no stops on the way contemplated. It was the longest home-run hit here in years, according to the graybeards in the press box.

Then Cecil Travis and Cliff Bolton showed the home folks what wonders Biloxi works for rookies by doubling up against the right-field fence. Stewart and Kuhel were easy outs. But Myer walked, filling the bases again, and Davey Harris pumped one to center, scoring Travis and Bolton. Johnny Gill, who had a trial with Washington in 1931 but failed to make good in the big city, ended the disastrous inning by stabbing Joe Cronin's liner to right.

Walter Stewart, who is being counted on to win twenty games for the Nats this year, was hit pretty severely, but got by all right. The Chattanoogans nicked him for nine safeties during his six innings of work. Oddly enough, their best scoring inning, the third, when they collected two runs, saw them go hitless. You see, Walter walked Connatser and Gill to start things and Travis started to play purgy with Klumpp's roller, which filled the sacks. Andrus flied to Schulte, scoring Connatser, one out. Then something rather haywirish happened.

Michalic Rolls To Cronin.

Mehalix rolled weakly to Cronin, who tossed the ball to Myer, which forced Klumpp. Myer rolled the ball to the pitcher's box, threw his glove away and started walking in talking to Cronin, while Gill raced home with the second run. Van Grafian finally explained to Joe and Buddy that you had to get three men out in this league. Woodward flied out to Harris for the third out.

But Thomas relieved Stewart in the seventh and looked well during those last three innings. He was in warm water in the ninth when Cummings singled and he walked both Connatser and Gill, filling the bases with none out. But Bud forced Andrus and Klumpp to pop weakly and Bob Boken ended the game by going behind Travis, taking a hot grounder Cecil had missed, and smoking it across the diamond to retire Mehalix.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE New York Yankees, according to the tenor of reports that have emanated from St. Petersburg, are not unduly alarmed at the prospect, if any, of their absence from the 1933 world series melon-cutting.

The specter of an improved Washington team doesn't loom very ominous to the Yanks, particularly Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, who have been quoted extensively to the effect that in their own private opinion the Nats came out of the little end of the horn in the multifarious player trading during the past winter.

Almost in unison as if it were part of the act, Babe and Lou venture that the Nats will miss a-plenty the relief pitching of Fred Marberry and the effective work of Lloyd Brown in the early months of the season.

Pilot Duties May Ruin Cronin, Gehrig Opines.

Clark Griffith is taking a long chance of ruining a swell shortstop by saddling Joe Cronin with the managerial duties, Gehrig pointed out in his discourse that had the Washington Club as a subject.

"Playing managers like Bucky Harris come along only once in a generation," said Lou. "Bucky was a machine out there in the field, but Cronin is not the same type of player. He's a great shortstop, but it's not in the books for him to put up the same kind of a game with the worries of the whole team on his shoulders."

Gehrig's opinion may not be utterly without rhyme or reason if the training trip fielding averages are any criterion. Cronin, as a matter of fact, has been the most errant fielder on the club, with the day a rarity when he doesn't boot at least one ball. But, none is worrying less about that than Cronin himself.

Spring Games Experiments, Says Cronin.

Neither has Cronin become alarmed in the slightest by the fact that the Nats in three games with Atlanta took it on the chin twice and then were held to a tie. The training trip is primarily for experimentation, Joe contends, and a few errors here and there are not to be taken too seriously. When the gong rings on April 12, the boys will be playing for keeps.

Pilot Job Outlet for Cronin's Excess Energy.

It seems to this department that if Griffith was forced to make a choice of a playing manager for his club, he could have selected no more apt performer than Cronin. His young shortstop's temperament, Gehrig to the contrary notwithstanding, demands excitement. Cronin's excess energy has been easily discernible by his antics here during the past four years and the added duties as manager seem to be right down his alley.

Cronin has never been given to worrying and on the contrary has performed at his best in the clutches, as the ball players call the emergencies. Out there playing shortstop with his team on the defense, Cronin will be called upon to make few decisions compared to the decisions he must make when the club is at bat. And when the Nats are at bat, I can hardly see how Cronin's duties can affect his fielding average.

Runyan Wins In Cavalier Tourney

280 Tops Shute by 4; Manero Fourth, Has Record 66.

By FRANK H. FULLER.

CAVALIER COUNTRY CLUB, Virginia Beach, Va., April 2 (A.P.).—Steady shooting Paul Runyan, diminutive professional from White Plains, N. Y., today won the Cavalier open golf tournament with a lead of four strokes on the field.

His medal score of 280 brought him $300 in prize money and boosted his season's winnings to $4,336.

Denny Shute, Philadelphia, took second place with 284 and Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., was third with 285. Shute received $250 and Wood $200.

It was Tony Manero, of New York, however, who stole the show, burning up the fairways to set a new course record of 66, two under par. The record performance gave him fourth place and $150.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, who played around with Manero, carded 68. Par on the course had never been equaled until Mehlhorn and Manero turned the trick today.

"Imagine shooting a new course record and getting licked by two strokes," Mehlhorn said as he finished the final hole. "Tony was hot."

Riegels Turns in 69 Card.

While professionals were turning in record scores, Bobby Riegel, youthful amateur, shot his way to a 69 to equal the previous record for the course. His long putt on the final green rimmed the cup and stayed out.

Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va., amateur champion, led the amateurs with 305, posting an 81 and 71 today. Riegel's great final round gave him 309 for second place among the amateurs, one stroke better than Chandler Harper, Portsmouth (Va.) open champion.

In sharp contrast to the blustery and rainy weather yesterday, today was ideal for golf, and the gallery of several thousand followed the favorites morning and afternoon.

Mehlhorn's score placed him in fifth place and gave him $100. Others finishing in the money were Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, and Horton Smith, Chicago, with 299; Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge, N. J., and Joe Kirkwood, New York, with 295; Charles Guest, Deal, N. J., with 297; Johnny Revolta, New York, Dick Metz, Deal, and Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, Ohio, with 300, and Joe Ezar, St. Paul, and Al Houghton, Washington, with 302.

Runyan, whose game is well suited to a tricky short course, where errors bring severe penalties, put together rounds of 71, 69, 70 and 70 to take first place. He was consistency itself, always straight down the fairways and usually on in regulation figures, but dropped a few strokes due to uncertain putting.

Runyan Accurate With Spoon.

Runyan's drives were frequently behind the tremendous wallops of Denny Shute and Norton Smith, who played with him the last 36 holes, but the White Plains professional was deadly accurate with the spoon and offset the distance gained by his companions.

Five prizes were awarded for amateurs and these went to Howell, Riegel, Harper and Morton McCarthy and Sam Bates, of Norfolk. McCarthy had a medal score of 313 and Bates 325.

Craig Wood's $200 in prize money brought his winter season total to $5,980—the highest in the country. Shute is second as a cash winner, his $250 today for second place giving

Nats Farm Cecil Travis To Lookouts for Seasoning

Special to The Washington Post.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 2.—The little finger nail by which Cecil Travis was hanging to the Washington roster gave way here tonight in a conference between Washington and Chattanooga officials and Cecil was turned back to the Lookouts for more seasoning. He is subject to 24 hours recall in case anything ever happens to Ossie Bluege, the veteran whom he failed by several comfortable miles to replace.

Washington also offered Bob Frederichs, erratic young pitcher, to the Lookouts, but Joe Engel renegged, asking for either Ed Linke, Bud Thomas or Bobby Burke instead. Griffith is understood to have agreed to give Chattanooga one of these last three pitchers on May 15, the day on which the Nat roster must be cut to 23 men.

Heinie Manush was slightly injured in practice before the game here today and was ordered home to Washington tonight ahead of the team. Early today Cronin handed choo choo tickets to Washington to Crowder, Harris, Stewart, Weaver and Altrock.

Crowder will leave after tomorrow's game, in which he will pitch six innings. Ed Linke will relieve him.

"To Joe Engel, to whom I owe whatever success I've attained," is the inscription on the silver water service presented at the home plate here today to the president of the Chattanooga Lookouts, and former Washington pitcher, by Joe Cronin. Engel "discovered" Cronin, wasting away with Kansas City, Engel sold Griffith on the idea of giving Cronin a trial, and although Griffith denies it, had a hard time in doing so. It was a rather touching scene there at home plate today.

Nick Altrock was feeling much better here today after a slight heart attack in Atlanta yesterday, but physicians forbade him to appear in uniform • • • Johnny Kerr, who is rapidly developing into a first rate comic, took Nick's place in the Queen of Sheba dance with Al Schacht • • • Further verification that Goose Goslin has one of the greatest arms in the business was had in the fifth when Gill bounced one off the right field wall and was rounding second when Goose finally got the ball • • • Goose's mighty heave went all the way to third base and caught Gill by 2 feet • • • After the game Joe Cronin asked Sam Rice to hit him some grounders • • • how can a guy like that fail. committee that switch tampering had caused the accident. It said:

"The report of the committee appointed by me to investigate the accident to our Train, No. 450, at Wyoming, Del., states that the lock on the switch leading to the Wyoming Ice & Coal Co.'s siding had been tampered with, and the switch at the time of the accident was partly, if not completely, open.

"For operating purposes this passenger train was running northward on the southbound track. This is a customary railroad practice. Under such conditions the movement of the train is not governed by visible signals, but the engineman operates the train under special written orders, giving him a clear block from one tower to another as he proceeds.

"The point of the switch faced south. A southbound train had previous passed over it. When, however, train 450, running northward reached that point, the switch was open, without anyone connected with the operation of the train having any knowledged of it, thereby causing the train to leave the main running track.

Memphis Crowd of 9,000 Sees Yanks Win.

Memphis, Tenn., April 2 (U.P.).—More than 9,000 fans, perhaps the best crowd of the major league training season of 1933, saw the Yankees shut out the Memphis Club, 6 to 0, today.

The fine turnout, matching that attracted by the New Yorkers here last year, was a surprise because the weather was rather chilly, though clear.

Babe Ruth disappointed the fans, who came from Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, for he did not get a hit. He walked thrice and rolled out to the pitcher twice. All the Yanks hit lightly, getting only six hits, none for extra bases.

Lefty Gomez went seven innings for the world champions and yielded six hits, without a run. He struck out seven men. Don Brennan finished the game.

Paper Cup

Answer to Baseball Drink Question; 3.2 Beer Excites Magnates.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

THE baseball magnates worry themselves unduly over the question of permitting the sale of the new 3.2 type of beer within the ball yards. The prejudice against the sale of alcoholic refreshments dates back to some scenes of disorder which took place long before the enactment of the prohibition law, and has to do with beverages of a much greater emotional power than 3.2 beer.

The patrons of the ball yards, after standing to the bar for a few innings, drinking the rye and bourbon which were then offered for sale under official auspices, sometimes found themselves swept away on an irresistible tide of emotion, as the lady defendants say, and took to throwing all sorts of loose objects at the umpires and visiting athletes in critical moments.

These objects were of great variety, being decanters, beer bottles, beer crocks and the arms of chairs, as well as an occasional walking cane. The decanters and bottles sometimes shattered and left fragments of glass lying about the field, multiplying the problems of the ground keepers and causing the ball to take bad hops.

How Baseball Player Became Poet.

It was due to just such an outburst that the world of baseball once lost a promising bush league outfielder and the world of letters gained a pretty fair sort of major league poet and historian by the name of Carl Sandburg. At Clearwater, Fla., a few seasons ago Mr. Sandburg often sat in the little pine grandstand watching Uncle Wilbert Robinson's daffiness boys overrun one another on the bases, brooding over the mishap at Galesburg, Ill., many years before which had made it impossible for him to pursue his baseball career.

Mr. Sandburg said he had been a porter in a barber shop, charged with the duty of sweeping out the hair and whiskers on Saturday nights, and had also obtained a job as heavy hitting outfielder with the local baseball club. But one day some of the patrons who had been sipping alcoholic beverages became petulant over some decision of the umpire and flung a large number of bottles out onto the playing field. Subsequently, in going after a fly ball, the heavy hitting outfielder of the Galesburg club stepped on a jagged bottle and suffered a cut which permanently reduced his fielding radius and retired him from his chosen profession.

Beer Will Put Fans To Sleep.

It is very doubtful that the 3.2 beer will arouse the savage that is in the baseball patron, because all the personal experiments conducted to date have resulted in the common finding that this beer induces only a lethargic drowse. On the other hand, the nonalcoholic refreshments which have been served to the customers everywhere since prohibition went into effect often have made them extremely wild and have resulted in a number of memorable scenes of disorder. Such incidents have happened in Cincinnati, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Chicago, and Brooklyn, and also at the Polo Grounds in New York.

It has been only since prohibition and the restriction of the customers' beverages to soda pop of various bright colors that the magnates found it necessary to ban the pop bottle entirely in many ball parks because the citizens could not be trusted with them, and to substitute the paper cup. In St. Louis, under prohibition, the customers became inflamed on overdraughts of raspberry and strawberry pop one famous afternoon and subjected the Yankees' outfield to a barrage of pop bottles as they came out to the field after a turn at bat.

Babe Ruth managed to abate the attack in his sector when he picked up an armful of the pop bottles and

SHOLL'S AND GRIFFITH'S FIVES CLASH IN A. A. U. SEMIFINAL

Rivals Clash Tonight at Tech Gym

Tourney Game Seen Test for Winners of 1932 Title.

Olmsted Faces Brookland in 145-Pound Class Semifinal.

THE opening volley of the final drive toward District A. A. U. basket ball championships will be fired tonight at Tech High School where two games inaugurate the final week's program in the tournament sponsored by The Post.

Bob Lyles, the youthful veteran who has been around so long it seems as though he organized his first team about the time G. Washington was doing a bit of wintry navigating on the Delaware River, leads the Griffith Consumers out on the floor against the defending champion of the unlimited class, Sholl's, in the feature attraction. Preceding this will be some goal shooting by members of Olmsted Grill and Brookland Boys' Club in the 145-pound class semifinals.

Tom Peck Threat To Champs.

Other rebels who will attempt to oust the king's men from their lofty position are Tom Peck, Ben Zola, Burdette Cogar, Del Zahn and Eddie Roberts. Peck possesses one of the keenest orbs for the hoop of any player in the city—an eagle eye, they call it. Tournament records bear this out. In two games he scored 26 points, 12 field goals and a couple of fouls, and that was against good competition.

But Del Zahn, another chap just a couple of hops ahead of Father Time, is responsible for the Griffs still being in the tournament. It was his field goal in the last few seconds of play that swung the victory to the Griffs in their tilt with the United Typewriter Grays last week. Zahn's younger brother, Otts, made quite a name for himself with George Washington U. during the past two seasons, and was highly esteemed among collegiate players. But Otts never had a thing on Del when the latter was at the zenith of his career, and the kid still has a couple of baskets stored away in his system.

Zola, Cogar, Roberts Important.

Ben Zola, all-high with Eastern two years ago, Burdette Cogar and Roberts give the team an even keel. While more of a defensive player Zola contributes his share of points to the score and his back-court work is par excellence. Cogar, a newcomer to the big court carnival, is just finding himself after recovering from a touch of stage fright.

The Sholl's boys can do anything with a basket ball but grow hair on it. Their scores are second only to the national deficit in size, as approximately 50 teams will reluctantly testify. With a couple of Empire State Building models for centers, Bernie Lieb and Hal Kiesel, and five or six young Nat Holman's alternating at the other positions, the doughnut dunkers are well fixed to repel any attack on their honor.

Olmstead-Brookland Clash.

The Olmstead Grill-Brookland Boys Club fracas will be just as lively, if not more so, than the unlimited game. The winner goes to bat with the Knights of Columbus quintet for the 1933 championship Wednesday night. Brookland fought its way to this stage of the race by tripping A. Z. A. and Potomac Boat Club. Its victory in the last game was regarded as one of the most stunning upsets of the season.

NEW CUBAN FIGHT ARENA.

Havana, Cuba, April 2 (A.P.).—Five thousand spectators tonight witnessed the inauguration of the new athletic stadium of the Crystal Beer Co.

They saw Conrado Conde, 129, win a decision in a ten round fight from Jaquin Torregrosa, 129. In the same show Arturo Godoy, 173, of Chile, won a decision over Johnny Herrera, 173.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALLANT SIR, $3.60, $4.00, $2.60; WAYLAYER, $4.20, $3.40; LEMON HILLS, $5.20.

GALLANT SIR, much the best, was hard held in the early running, moved to the front of BAHAMAS when ready and never was fully extended, winning easily. WAYLAYER, close to the pace from the start, showed a good effort and made a game try in the stretch, running a splendid race, but was not good enough. LEMON HILLS gained gradually from a slow beginning and finished full of courage to easily beat the others.

but they all paid, all passes having been canceled.

The disappointment the crowd felt at the withdrawal of Pillow Flight, which D. J. Davis, of San Francisco, brought here from New Zealand this year, was allayed partially by the appearance of Tea Trader, Pillow Flight's companion on the long ocean journey, as the victor in a $600 sprint race. Phar Lap and Pillow Flight were both sired by Night Raid.

Tea Trader met Sundot, a stable mate of Gallant Sir, at 6 furlongs and defeated him by a nose in 1:10 3-5, just a fifth of a second slower than the track record set earlier this season by Quickaway, the winter meeting's comet. Old Depot was third, with Hokuao and Bowcraft trailing.

Pillow Flight failed to train properly after losing 150 pounds through seasickness on the trip. Davis assured the crowd today that he would bring Pillow Flight back next year to meet Gallant Sir or any other American horse in the handicap.

The handicap closed a 78-day meeting which had not been a screaming financial success. The heavy betting in the future book on Gallant Sir did not help the track's balance sheet. The handicap, in boom times, was worth $100,000, but was sliced to $50,000 last year and was cut in half again this year.

RUNYAN WINNER AT VIRGINIA BEACH

him a total of $4,421, or less than $100 more than Runyan.

Manero and Mehlhorn, playing with Johnny Revolta, had comparatively few witnesses to their par-shattering golf as the gallery was concentrated to a large extent on the play of Runyan, Shute and Horton Smith.

As the last-traveling trio neared home, however, word leaked out that the course record was to fall and the fans galloped over to see the finish.

The story-telling cards were:

Out—
Par	4	4	3	5	3	4	4	3	4—34
Manero	4	4	3	4	3	4	5	3	4—34
Mehlhorn	4	4	3	5	3	4	5	2	5—35
Riegel	4	3	3	5	4	5	4	2	5—35
In—
Par	4	3	4	4	4	4	4	3	—34—68
Manero	4	2	3	4	5	4	4	3	—32—66
Mehlhorn	4	3	3	4	4	4	4	3	—33—68
Riegel	4	3	4	4	4	4	3	3	—34—69

Horton Smith brought cheers from the gallery today on the 385-yard fourteenth by his shooting ability as a southpaw. Unable to hit the ball with his right hand because of a tree, he extracted a left-handed tree iron and smacked the ball on the green 150 yards away, only to see it roll over into a trap. A walkway across the trap interfered with the recovery, but Smith got a five, anyway.

MAGNATES UNDULY EXCITED—PEGLER

yelled out that he would single out the next person to throw a bottle and throw one back at that person, individually.

The Babe's accuracy in throwing from the outfield to the bases and the plate was famous among the customers, so there was none among them who cared to take the risk of being thrown back at by Babe Ruth. But during the melee there was a musical metallic clank as of a temple chime being tapped with a hammer, followed by the tinkle of broken glass, and Whitey Witt, another Yankee outfielder, fell down, holding his skull in his hands and moaning that he had been hit.

Mr. Johnson Sees From Afar.

There would have been serious indignation over this and the fair name of baseball would have suffered an unfortunate amirch but for the mental agility of the late Ban Johnson, who, as president of the league, decided that Whitey Witt did not fall from the blow, but fell first and struck his head on the bottle, which just happened to be there. Inasmuch as Mr. Johnson was several hundred miles from the scene, his judgment on the episode was much clearer than that of persons who were eye-witnesses and whose testimony was unavoidably affected by their emotions. So the escutcheon of the national game was spared and Whitey Witt recovered and the paper cup was introduced to baseball.

It developed that the St. Louis customers of the time had a fad of mixing their nonalcoholic beverages. They would drink one of raspberry, then one of strawberry, and maybe one of orange, and the mixture would drive them wild, as can be readily understood.

BARBERS LOOK GOOD.

Manager Tony Burruto looked over candidates for the United Barbers at the Monument grounds yesterday and was satisfied enough to predict the Capital City League pennant would come his way this year. Burruto's Ciro Villagers finished second in section A last season.

Nellie Jett, Beef Bertolino, Jake Lewis, Bob Lyons, Pete Ingram, Smokey Wilner, Jack and Chissie Caspar and Rip Sole were among those who reported.

D. C. Golfers Enjoy Day On Links

Low Scores Reported; Dettweiler Has 74; Other Golf News.

By DAVE HERMAN.

WASHINGTON'S golfers, turning out in the largest numbers of the season, unleashed their heavy artillery yesterday along the local links front as the District witnessed its best golf day of 1933.

From early in the morning until the shadows of the evening descended each of the fourteen District courses was flooded with golfers, and golf balls flew like hail from the heavens. Thousands took advantage of the ideal weather.

Over at Chevy Chase Bob Barnett, fiery-thatched pro, celebrated his return from his winter post in Miami Beach, Fla., by playing two rounds of golf. Touring his home links for the first time in over three months, Barnett scored very well, discovering that the putting greens of Chevy Chase were lots different than those in Florida. Playing with him in the morning were Landra Platt, G. Brown Miller, jr., and Bob Stead, District Golf Association president. In the afternoon he went around with Gregg Prince, Beverly Mason, Reeve Lewis and Louis Mackall.

Dettweiler Records 74 Round.

Golfers who fired away at Manor were considerably impressed with the looks of the new ninth green, which will be opened in about two weeks. Harry Pitt, club champion, was on hand, testing out his shots, but reported no score. A snappy 73, two above par, by Billy Dettweiler, 15-year-old boy sensation and 1932 national amateur qualifier, and a 74 by his schoolmate, Maurice Nee, District junior champion, were among the low scores reported.

Martin F. McCarthy showed a flash of his old-time form by negotiating the rigid Beaver Dam layout in 76, indeed a good score for this time of the year. Johnny Miller, the club champion, was on the firing line, but reported no score. J. F. Baggett, with a 40-37—77, was well pleased with his scoring.

A number of Beaver Dam players, who were on the verge of bettering themselves last summer, crashed through with pleasant rounds. Dr. Leonard Levine clicked off his best score of the year, an 88; Johnny Allegretto, with two birdies, shot an 81; W. J. LaBill stepped around in 42-43—85; J. D. Pratt sank a 40-foot chip shot on the eighteenth for a birdie to come home with an 85.

Mrs. Mitchell in Low 90s.

Among the women at Beaver Dam, Mrs. R. C. Mitchell came through with figures in the low nineties.

Dave Thomson, Washington pro, had figures aggregating 74 during an afternoon trek. He announced that summer rules will be the order around April 15, at Washington.

Leroy Sasscer, returnnig to Indian Spring for his first round after a seven-month absence, played 9 holes in company with Tom Belshe, and burned up the links for a 33, two below par. Belshe, in a full 18-hole round, posted a 77.

The District of Columbia Women's Golf Association inaugurates its campaign of 36 events this morning at Kenwood where first teams from ten clubs will engage in matches.

The line-up of matches follows: Congressional vs. Beaver Dam at 9:15; Washington vs. Army and Navy, 9:30; Columbia vs. Manor, 9:40; Indian Spring vs. Kenwood, 10; Chevy Chase vs. Woodmont at 10:10.

3 Golf Meetings Tonight.

Members of golf and tournament committees from three District clubs will hold separate meetings tonight to make definite plans for the season. Meetings are scheduled for Indian Spring, Manor and Beaver Dam. M. H. Maier will preside at Beaver Dam, Tom Belshe at Indian Spring, and David L. Thomson at the Manor gathering.

Mrs. H. A. Knox has been appointed chairman of the District committee which will assist Mrs. Claude W. Wilhide, of the Baltimore Country Club, recently appointed head of the Maryland State Golf Association women's committee, in arranging for handicaps and tournaments in Washington this year sponsored by the State group. Others assisting Mrs. Knox are Mrs. James V. Bellar, of Columbia; Mrs. Susan Hacker, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Don Scott, of Indian Spring.

BETHESDA FIREMEN BOW.

Deerwood took the measure of the Bethesda Volunteer Firemen in a practice game yesterday, winning by a 6-to-5 score. An extra inning was required to decide the winner. Norris and Coleman hurled for the winners and managed to hold the slugging smoke-eaters well in hand.

BLUE COALS PRACTICE.

A large squad of candidates reported to Manager Will Glascoe for the initial drill of the Griffith-Blue Coal Baseball Team at Rosedale yesterday. Ben Zola, Al McCarthy and Bill Noonan were included in the group. Tomorrow the squad will practice at Seventeenth and Pennsylvania avenue southeast at 5 p. m.

Kennedy Out For Scalp Of Rival

Gets Gallagher Bout If He Beats Huttick Tomorrow.

MARTY GALLAGHER will be Les Kennedy's next opponent, provided the Montana Mauler conquers Arthur Huttick, rugged German-American fighter, tomorrow night in their eight-round feature bout at Portner's Arena for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery.

Gallagher wanted to meet Kennedy in a return match this week but the Foggy Bottom Irishman's brother-manager, Jimmy, refused to consent to a fight until the Montanan had scored over some other heavyweight.

Kennedy will enter the ring the favorite over Huddick. His setback at the hands of Gallagher is the only one in his three local starts and he displayed his punching ability with victories over Bob Godwin, former N. B. A. light-heavyweight champion, and Red Barry, pride of Mushky Jackson's stable.

Huttick Boasts Good Record.

On the other hand, Huttick, a sterling amateur fighter before he entered the pro ranks, lost a close decision to Barry, but subdued such good wallopers as Eddie Benson, Bob Olin, Artie Rosenback, Natie Brown, Unknown Winston, Jack MacCarthy and Walter Cobb.

Both fighters will tip the beam at close to 190 pounds.

The six-round semiwinup between Nick Antonelli and Jackie Lamar promises to offer considerable action, with the District Italian as the favorite.

Jimmy (Kid) Smith, Huntington, W. Va., makes his debut in a six-rounder against Jackie Simpson; Eddie Compton and Joe Maffei step six rounds, and Sailor Leonard and Whitey Graham meet in a four.

25,000 See Casanova Stop Newsboy Brown

Mexico City, April 2 (A.P.).—Babe Casanova, Mexican bantamweight sensation, knocked out Newsboy Brown, of Los Angeles, in the third round of their 10-round bout here today. A crowd of 25,000, the largest to see a fight here in two years, filled the bull ring. Casanova weighed 119 pounds, Brown, 121.

The Mexican was ahead all the way. He floored Brown for an eight count with a left hook to the jaw in the second round. Halfway through the third he broke through Brown's guard with a right to the chin that sent the Californian down to stay.

NEW YORK SOCCERISTS WIN

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—The New York Americans soccer team today entered the championship round of the National Challenge Cup, defeating the Pawtucket, R. I., Rangers, 4 to 1, in the final game of a home and home series to win the Eastern title on total goals, 6 to 5. The Rangers won, 4 to 2, at Pawtucket, yesterday.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHATTANOOGA, April 2.—The recent discussion back and forth over the batting order of the Nats has made baseball fans more batting-order-conscious than they've been in years. For many fans the long journalistic rigamarole concerning whether Heinie Manush should bat second or third, or fourth, has aroused them to the peak of trying to find out what difference it makes.

By far the most satisfactory explanation of the whys and wherefores of batting certain men in certain positions was contained in a recent edition of Baseball, the magazine, and concocted by Clifford Bloodgood, who seems to write the magazine.

Manush to Get Most Chances For Nats.

Bloodgood, at great labor, kept a daily tab on the New York Yankees last season until each member of the regular squad had batted 250 times, which is just about one-half of a season's work. Bloodgood's chart is appended.

If the chart can be grafted onto Washington's plans and hopes, it would seem that Heinie Manush, if he bats second, will have more chances of breaking up ball games than any Washington player this year. During the first half of the season, he will step to the plate with 126 men on the bases. On twelve occasions there will be three men on the bags waiting for a Frank Merriwell sock.

On the face of things, it seems quite startling that the pitcher came to bat with the bases loaded more times last year, with New York, than any other player on the team, except the second slot man, generally Joe Sewell. The clean-up man, the fourth batter—the legendary figure, whose appearances at the plate is supposed to coincide with the presence of many men on base, leads the tabulations only in one department, the chart shows—that of having two men on, but his average is pretty high. He steps up to the plate with no men ahead of him fewer times than any of his colleagues.

"Clean-up" Honors Go to Pitcher.

Once out of every there times at bat he has a man or men on base waiting to be driven home, but when you look at it one way he yields the real clean-up honors to the pitcher, the most puerile hitting guy on the team, and the second slot man, who often is known only for his bunting ability.

Since Ossie Bluege seems to be pretty much the bone of contention in the 1933 batting order, it's interesting to note that the seventh place batter has fewer chances to drive in runs than anybody on the team. He takes his turn at the plate 138 times out of every 250 with no runners on base. In an attempt to explain this, it is pointed out that—strangely enough—seventh place hitters frequently are the first men to hit during an inning.—R. B. C.

ROSENBLOOM AT BUFFALO TONIGHT

Light-Heavy King to Fight Scozza in 10-Rounder.

NEW YORK, April 2 (A.P.).—Slapsey Maxey Rosenbloom and Freddie Miller, about the most ambitious pair of fighters among the current crop of champions, head the national boxing program this week, but neither will put his title on the block.

Rosenbloom, who won general recognition as light heavyweight champion a short time ago by stopping Bob Godwin, then recognized as title holder by the National Boxing Association, takes to the road after two championship fights in New York for a nontitle scrap at Buffalo tomorrow. His opponent will be Lou Scozza, a tough battler, who is especially dangerous in his own ballwick. The fight will be ten rounds.

Miller, the left-hander from Cincinnati, who wears the N. B. A. featherweight crown and has staged a couple of successful defenses of it recently, takes on Cecil Payne, Louisville lightweight at Los Angeles, Tuesday. This bout, in which Miller's title will not be at stake, also is a ten rounder.

Investigation and Crop Fives Battle Tonight

One of the epic battles of the Government Basket Ball League is scheduled tonight when Bureau of Investigation and Crop Production Loan Office meet at 8:30 on the Bolling Field concrete. Both clubs finished the recent second half play with four wins, and tonight's result tells the tale.

The winner will engage Government Printing Office Wednesday in the first of a three-game series for the championship of the league.

Arnold Has 429 Set In Duckpin Congress

Hartford, Conn., April 2 (A.P.).—William A. Arnold, of Annapolis, Md., United States individual champion in 1932, made a strong bid to retain that distinction today by going into first place in the men's singles in what was the high spot of the twelfth day of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress.

Arnold rolled a three-string total of 429, eight pins better than the score hung up by James L. Askey, of Baltimore, last night and one pin better than the score with which Arnold won the individual championship last year. Arnold rolled 401 in the doubles and needed a 407 in the team event to take the lead for all events. But the best he could muster on his final three games was 339.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE White House listened at midnight Saturday night to a broadcast by Station WMCA, New York, of the performance given by 150 Broadway stars at the Capitol Theater to raise funds for President Roosevelt's swimming pool.

The broadcast was put on for the benefit of official Washington by Donald Flamm, president of WMCA, who made a special trip to the Capital to inform the President and Mrs. Roosevelt of the arrangement.

At the request of Littlepage & Littlepage, WMCA's representatives in Washington, the Federal Radio Commission cleared all channels so that President Roosevelt would be able to hear the New York station without interference.

The Capitol Theater, which seats 4,800, was sold out the day before and those in charge welcomed WMCA's broadcast because, in addition to President Roosevelt, others deprived of attending had the privilege of listening.

Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin will speak over a coast-to-coast NBC net work (WRC, 10:30 p. m.) inaugurating the National Radio Forum's "Cabinet Series" in which the ten members of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's official family will explain the policies of their respective departments.

Secretary Woodin has announced his topic as "Our Federal Financial Outlook."

Phil Cook, the one-man show, veteran of nine years broadcasting, will return to the local air over WMAL in a new series beginning at 8:45 p. m. tonight.

Thrilling stories of war-time spies, adventures in military espionage, and stories of men and women who worked behind a veil of secrecy and danger will be heard when K-7, a former operative in the intelligence service of the United States Government, resumes his weekly broadcasts over WRC tonight. The underworld of Paris will be the locale of the story "Spy Against Spy."

WALTER C. EVANS, known throughout the radio world because of his long association with broadcasting activities of his company, has been appointed manager of the radio department of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. He will retain his former duties as manager of radio broadcasting and, in addition, will have entire charge of the sale, engineering and manufacture of Westinghouse radio apparatus.

It was a long climb from the post of radio operator of a Great Lakes vessel, the job he had when only 15 years old, to his present executive duties, but Mr. Evans belongs to that group of youthful leaders who have made America's radio history. Mr. Evans first became associated with broadcasting in 1921 as operator at KYW, first station of the Middle West.

Leaving Chicago in 1928, he went to New York where he supervised relations between Westinghouse and RCA Photophone, Inc. Then he was transferred to east Pittsburgh and given charge of all radio broadcasting operations of the Westinghouse Co. In this position he supervised the operation of Stations KDKA, Pittsburgh; WBZA, Springfield, and WBZ, Boston, and KYW at Chicago.

For the past few years he has spent much time in Washington participating in hearings affecting his company's radio position. Last Fall he attended the International Radio telegraph conference at Madrid.

Huey P. Long, Senator from Louisiana, will make an address over WJSV at 11 o'clock tonight. His subject is "Our Unsolved Problem."

THROUGH the radio the singer and his art have reached those who would never have been able to hear the great artists of this time, A. Atwater Kent observed in a broadcast under the auspices of the American Academy of Teachers of Singing yesterday.

"Never before have truly great singers been appreciated so thoroughly and never has the influence of the artist been so wide as it is today," Mr. Kent, one of the shyest speakers in the industry, declared. "Radio has added new laurels to those blessed with unusual voices and has glorified the art of song as never before in history.

"Will it bring about a renewed interest in the art of singing? Many are confident it will. There is every reason to believe that the emphasis which radio has put upon singing is producing a good result. We know that a greater number of persons have spent more time listening to masterpieces of song writers than ever before. This is bound to have a far-reaching effect upon our people.

"What the National Radio Auditions may have meant in the way of a definite contribution to singing in this country, it may be too soon to say. However, I sincerely hope that from the many thousands of young contestants who strove for honors in the several auditions, many excellent voices may develop for the enjoyment and delight of the radio audiences for years to come.

"A feeling that I always had about our national radio audition was one of hope that the contests, conducted in hundreds of communities, would encourage young men and women to try to sing—to strive to develop their natural singing abilities. I always felt that the capital prizes, won by the ten final competitors, were less important than the seeds of ambition and progress which may have been sown among thousands of boys and girls as a consequence of our auditions."

RADIO paradoxes:

The "Easy Aces" program originates in the Chicago studios of the Columbia network, but its theme song is "Manhattan Serenade."

Edwin Hill, whose faultless speech has brought him radio fame, never made a platform talk in his life and refuses to be lured into one.

Dick Mansfield, band leader, who is an admirer of Will Osborne's crooning, is a dead-ringer for Rudy Vallee.

Jane Froman, who once wanted to be a "sob-sister," now runs away from interviews and newspaper people.

Bing Crosby, Kate Smith and Morton Downey never took a singing lesson in their lives.

Fred Waring sings and conducts his vocalists in college glee club specialties over the radio, but he was refused membership in the glee club at Penn State.

Weather Doubles Post Home Crowd

Many Visitors Go to Spring Valley Residence and Enjoy Sunshine.

Bright spring weather doubled the number of visitors to The Washington Post model home in Spring Valley yesterday.

This home, at 3641 Forty-ninth street northwest, is one of the city's interesting places. Many have been delighted with its charming individuality, its pleasing arrangement and substantial construction.

Designed and built by W. C. & A. N. Miller, creators of the beautiful residential subdivisions of Spring Valley and Wesley Heights, the display residence has been opened to the public as a demonstration of the finer art in home building and interior decoration. The latter is by Charles Gallery, Inc. The home boasts of an ultramodern General Electric kitchen, made possible by the cooperation of the National Electrical Supply and Potomac Electric Power companies with the exhibitors. The home will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Jig-Saw Puzzle Leads to Blast

Thrown Into Stove With Dynamite; Man and Wife Are Hurt.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 2.—Jig-saw puzzles and dynamite don't mix very well, according to a report received here today from the town of Friendly.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Williamson, of that neighborhood, worked a jig-saw puzzle until, growing tired of it, they decided to throw it away. The pieces were scooped into an old dish, in which some dynamite caps had been placed several months ago, a fact Mr. Williamson had forgotten.

When the contents of the dish were thrown into a closed stove there was a terrific explosion, which blew pieces out of the stove that struck and injured both Mr. and Mrs. Williamson. At a hospital, where they were taken, it was found that neither was seriously hurt.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia, holding a Bankruptcy Court. In the matter of Philip T. Hall, Inc., bankrupt. In bankruptcy No. 2729. Notice is hereby given that the above-named bankrupt has filed its petition, praying for a discharge from all its debts in bankruptcy, and that its creditors and other persons in interest are required to file their appearance in opposition, if any so desire, in the clerk's office of said court on or before the 1ST DAY OF MAY, 1933. FRED J. EDEN, Referee in Bankruptcy.

LEGAL NOTICES

MAX H. ARONSON, Attorney.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia. In the matter of Rexford's, Inc., bankrupt. Bankruptcy No. 2690. Notice is hereby given, as follows: On January 24, 1933, the Court made an order in the above-entitled cause, appointing Max H. Aronson ancillary receiver to take charge of the assets of Rexford's, Inc., located at 1333 F street northwest, Washington, D. C.; and thereafter said ancillary receiver, under the authority and direction of the Court, sold said assets for the sum of $2,100.00 net cash. On March 1, 1933, the Court referred said cause to the auditor "to state the account of the ancillary receiver, consider claims which may be proved before him of creditors in the District of Columbia, allow reasonable compensation to the ancillary receiver, and expenses of administration of the estate of Rexford's, Inc., in the District of Columbia, and report his findings and recommendations to the Court." In pursuance of this reference, I have fixed and appointed WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1933, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the time and the Auditor's Office in the Courthouse, Washington, D. C., as the place for a hearing and the taking of testimony, at which time and place all persons having claims against said Rexford's, Inc., are hereby warned to appear and prove the same. A. LAFFERTY SINCLAIR, Auditor of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. 20,27,3

RULER of a population more than three times larger than that of the United States today, Pu Yi was placed on the throne as Emperor of China in 1908, after the death of Kwang Ksu. A nephew of the childless former emperor, Pu Yi's own father, Prince Chun, acted as regent for his son's reign, called the Hsuan T'ung reign, Pu Yi at the time was 3 years old.

He remained nominal head of the Chinese people during less than four years of civil war and revolution and abdicated February 12, 1912, when Premier Yuan Shih-k'ai signed an armistice with the republicans—an act that ended the Manchu dynasty. The Manchus had, since the conquest in the seventeenth century, lived in and ruled China as a standing army of occupation. After their passing, Premier Yuan Shih-k'ai became president under the republican government, and in 1915 he accepted the throne of China, only to abdicate early the following year, before his coronation.

Pu Yi, the child emperor, lived in seclusion until the conquest of Manchuria and the establishment recently of the so-called puppet state there by the Japanese. He was made ruler of this territory.

ELMER TWITCHELL, inveterate investor, today denounced President Roosevelt's proposed bill to protect the public in its security purchases.

* * * *

"I think I speak for the average American when I say I demand my right to lose my money," said Elmer, clearly aflame with indignation at Government interference.

* * * *

"No government has the right to tell me I can't be stuck if I insist on it!

* * * *

"When the President proposes to safeguard the average man against losses in the stock market he proposes something that will deprive him of that inalienable American privilege—the right to buy something on rumor and gossip.

* * * *

"Do you realize that this bill will practically abolish whispering? Do you realize that it will take from millions of citizens the time-honored privilege of gathering in alcoves and making mysterious gestures? Do you realize that it will make wrong guessing so difficult that nobody can enjoy it any more?"

* * * *

Mr. Twitchell was so excited it was necessary to push him into a chair and fan him with a blanket before he could continue.

* * * *

"We are a people who love to live on guesswork," he resumed. "It is the mystery of the thing that draws us into speculations. Half the fun of playing the market rests in thinking that we have some inside information of which the other fellow is ignorant. And the President of the United States proposes to change conditions so that there will be no inside information? Imagine it!

* * * *

"The bill provides that whenever a new stock or bond issue is floated all the inside information be given to the public. The broker must publish all the data so that a customer may know exactly what he is buying! Why, my friends, the public will never stand for it! Never! Never!

* * * *

"It's terrible," concluded Mr. Twitchell sadly. "It's bad enough losing your money on a flotation statement that you couldn't understand. But imagine getting stuck after reading a statement that made everything perfectly clear in the first place!"

THE EMBATTLED PRINTING PRESSES.

Lloyd George says that all the nations of the world will soon be at war again. In the present state of finances it seems unlikely, but it may be a scrip scrap.

GIVE THIS BOY A HAND.

(From the New York Times.)

A WEEK from today the hot breath of the wolf will be on my neck, but I've fooled it before and I'll do it again; I've spent three years in the Royal Flying Corps, lost my shirt in Miami, bought grain in Saskatchewan, organized the Long Island Aviation Club, went to Yale but still must eat; curiously enough, my friends still think I'm a gentleman; my sense of humor is still intact; so make me any legitimate proposition outside of selling refrigerators, vacuum cleaners or taking the dog for a walk. Does anybody need a head man in a candor factory?

A NEW HARDSHIP.

The Federal securities bill requires that all houses floating new issues publish statements giving all the facts in complete detail. This makes the outlook pretty terrifying to the average man. Now he will feel it necessary to read the statements carefully before buying anything, instead of giving up in the middle of the first paragraph.

President Roosevelt is proceeding on the curious theory that the investing public could ever be made to read the provisions of a foreign bond issue from start to finish.

Manager of Oil Station Robbed of $52 by Pair

Forced to the curb by two armed colored men early yesterday, Shelby Cox, manager of a gasoline station at Nineteenth and M streets northwest, reported he was compelled to drive his car to a secluded spot near the Washington Monument, where he was robbed of company receipts totaling $52.

Cox told police he closed his station and was en route to his home in College Park, Md., when a man leaped to the side of his machine. He drove several blocks at the point of a gun before reaching a secluded section of Potomac Park, where he was robbed, Cox reported.

TUBERCULOSIS CUT DRAWS HEAVY FIRE FROM DR. COULTER

Letter to Buchanan Claims $1.69 Patient Allowance Disgrace to City.

Claiming a situation bordering on public scandal confronts medical agencies fighting to control tuberculosis in the District, Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, chairman of the tuberculosis committee of the Columbia Medical Society, last night assailed the action of Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, in his slashing of the appropriation for local tubercular treatment.

In a letter to Representative James P. Buchanan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Dr. Coulter pointed to the urgent need of more money and requested all factors be considered in noting his appeal.

$1.69 Per Day.

An estimate approved by the Seventy-second Congress and pronounced by the Board of Public Welfare and the District Commissioners as the minimum appropriation needed to carry on the work, was cut more than $15,000, Dr. Coulter said. The original appropriation was $147,050. It was cut to $131,500.

"This present estimate for carrying on work in the District," Dr. Coulter declared, "which is even now bordering on public scandal, is a matter of deep concern to practicing physicians in Washington. Should this present budget be approved, the amount per patient per day would be approximately $1.69, although $3 per day for each patient is recommended by all authorities. The District, in its appropriations, has never even attempted to make adequate provision for its tubercular patients."

Blamed for Deaths.

With an ever-increasing death rate from tuberculosis, Dr. Coulter charged that those directly in charge of the budget are responsible for many added deaths.

He pointed to a statement by Senator Bingham, whom he quoted as saying "the District institutions for handling tuberculosis are a disgrace to the District."

"No money," Dr. Coulter said, "is ever saved by cutting public health appropriations. It is all well and good to slash estimates for the erection of monuments to departed heroes or for the placing of gold fish in public parks, but nothing can be saved by hindering the battle against disease."

Lost-Identity Man Comes Here Today

Westlake, Who Has Found Long-Lost Sister, Will Arrive by Plane.

This is the day of days for James Hoy Westlake, a State game warden of Minnesota. He arrives at Washington airport at 5:15 p. m. to meet a sister, Mrs. Madge Sheridan, of 1361 Fairmont street northwest, the first of kin he has known in 40 years.

Westlake was mysteriously taken from his family at the age of six months. Life in an orphanage, cruel treatment by Indians and others into whose hands he fell, and a lifelong struggle to learn his real identity are parts of his strange existence. Known as "Jim Wesley," he finally reached his sister through a newspaper story.

MISERY MAN-MADE, MINISTER DECLARES

Repent as Did Those of Old Day, Rev. C. C. Rasmussen Urges in Sermon.

"The world's misery is man-made, made by man acting in superficial self-esteem, greed and hardness of heart. There can be no deliverance without a new spirit," said the Rev. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen yesterday at Luther Place Memorial Church.

"The recognition is gaining ground that both the cause and the cure of our ills is spiritual. In that recognition at least the world has taken a step toward Jesus. Through the ages he has called for a new spirit. Repent!"

Taking as his text "Repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven Is at Hand," Dr. Rasmussen said, in part:

"The people of Jesus' day were yearning for the coming of the Kingdom of God. Life has proved hard for the 'chosen people.' There had been invasion after invasion and bondage upon bondage. Hope for better days refused to die. But it was recognized that they could come only by the hand of Jehovah. God would set them free. Why did he wait?

"Then there appeared in the land a strange man of the great solitudes, like a prophet from an earlier day, John the Forerunner. When the multitudes went out to hear his strange challenge, he warned them that their own sins forestalled the Kingdom for which they yearned. Repent! Repent! With what unsparing severity he warned them of the wrath to come upon a generation of vipers.

"His fury seems in striking contrast to Jesus. Jesus, we think of as the Gentle Galilean, who loved children, rejoiced in friends, had compassion on the distressed, pitied the erring. But it is significant that Jesus took the very words of the text from the lips of his stern forerunner. In so doing, He made them His own warning, too. Repent! Repent! The Kingdom waits on repentance.

"And Jesus saw much that called for repentance. We tremble before His dreadful words of woe upon hypocrisy in places high and low. And we are startled at His repeated warnings of 'outerdarkness' upon the complacent and self-indulgent. 'There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.'

"This is a very timely modern message, too. We see a world that yearns for the Kingdom of God, or at least for the bounties that come from God's hand! The world needs to know that the need of the hour is for a repentant spirit."

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Bad brakes and rainy weather form one of the greatest combinations for causing accidents. Motorists should see to it that their brakes are in perfect condition and remember that it is inadvisable to drive at the same rate of speed in inclement weather as in fair.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IF this column went in for such things, it would be one of Monday morning's philosophical deductions that there are two sides to every question. Such a pioneering profundity might even turn out to be susceptible of partial demonstration if not conclusive proof.

Morton Downey

The case of Morton Downey, head man among the lyric tenors of both the radio and stage, now appearing before cheering crowds as headliner of the stage bill at the Earle, might be taken as a convenient example.

Mr. Downey, those addicted to the wireless and the theater rostrums would almost be convinced, is more or less rolling in wealth, with no idle time on his hands and the money pouring in to him in a gushing, golden stream. They would cite as evidence on their side that Mr. Downey, upon the conclusion of his engagement at the Earle Thursday night, will board a de luxe train for Los Angeles, where he will open a week's engagement at the Paramount Theater on April 18, then hop up to San Francisco and Oakland for two weeks more, grab another luxury limited for Chicago, warble a week there, and thence dash to London for a six weeks' engagement at the Cafe de Paris and contiguous spots—all of which, they would tell you, looks to them suspiciously like steady work, what with his broadcasting and all.

There is, however, the reverse side of the picture. That adds up something like this: The depression having ended long ago—to make way for the panic — the Morton Downey weekly envelope has kept step with the times by including a 25 per cent cut among its contents; on the Downey pay roll, despite the fact that he is a "single," are an even dozen employes whose incomes are subtracted from his own—business manager, personal secretary, office girl, personal press agent, accompanist, valet, operator for public address system (mike, to you), chauffeur, &c., &c.—the expenses of his New York home continue whether he and Mrs. Downey and their baby son are there or not and then, I am told, there is a daily ice cream bill that runs into important dough all by itself!

It is not only true, as Edward Eggleston wrote in "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," that "them as has, gits," but seems to be equally demonstrable that "them as has, gits socked!"

Mr. Downey's song, "We're On the March," by the way—a number he not only sings inspiringly, but also helped to write—has a rousing swing that lends itself splendidly to all the fortissimo that can be given it. The more ta-ra, ta-ra and rat-a-tat-tat it can build up, the better it gets. Realizing this fact after Friday's first performance, General Manager John J. Payette of the Warner interests in the Washington territory, instructed Manager Harry E. Lohmeyer, of the Earle, to man the pipe organ and give the piece everything the house had.

This, ladies and gentlemen, is why you who have been attending the Earle since Saturday have recognized Nell Paxton at her formerly accustomed place at the console of the Earle's triple-manual Wurlitzer—if that is what it is. This is Mrs. Paxton's first public appearance since Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink's notable engagement at the Earle, when she similarly saved the day and revived many warm memories in the minds of those who enjoy music with their movies.

When Mr. Lohmeyer called Mrs. Paxton Saturday morning, I understand he was at first given an enthusiastic Bronx cheer—but then, you know what day Saturday was!

It is Mr. Melvin D. Hildreth, the Capital's encyclopedic oracle of the circus, who calls up, as these vagrant notes are being made Sabbath evening, to say that the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus train, en route from winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla., to New York City, will arrive in Potomac Yards tomorrow morning at 6 and lay over several hours while the stock is being watered and fed. If you have never turned out for a matutional ceremony of this kind, you have missed one of the biggest kicks life has to offer.

The show train—all in silver this year in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the circus on May 19, 1883, which, as I remarked to Mr. Hildreth, sounds more like a golden than a silver jubilee to the casual bystander, to which he agreed, adding, "Well, anyhow, the train's a silver train this year"— arrives in New York Wednesday and the circus begins its season in Madison Square Garden on Saturday, April 8.

In case you had forgotten, the Ringling-Barnum show will play Washington under canvas on May 31 and June 1.

It is Dot Lewis, of The Post's reviewing staff, the press galleries and the indefatigable Underwoods, whose generosity is always touched by the spectacle of a young man—sort of—face to face with a desperate poverty of ideas, who remembers that carrying the restoration of Williamsburg's antiquity into the theater, the Little Theater League of that historic Virginia city will revive the comedy, "The Way to Keep Him," by Arthur Murphy, on April 28, which would be of a Friday, the anniversary of its performance there by the American Players in 1772.

It just goes to show how they like screen musicals. I mean the way the public has gone for "42nd Street." Having played a record week at the Earle, two weeks at the Metropolitan and three days at the Tivoli, Fourteenth street and Park road, where two-day runs are the rule, the Warner Brothers' smash is being brought back to the Tivoli for two more days, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 11 and 12. Or so Manager Steve Eilbacher whispers over the phone.

Which uses up all the space and leaves a couple of items to go over until Tuesday—which is fair enough.

Boy, my gondola!

CONGRESS OF D. A. R. OPENS ON APRIL 17; PROGRAM IS LISTED

Reception at White House on Following Friday Will Close Sessions.

The Forty-second Congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will open Monday, April 17, in Constitution Hall, and continue through Friday, concluding with a reception at the White House at 4 p. m., when the national officers and delegates will be received by President and Mrs. Roosevelt. It will be the first Congress of the president general, Mrs. Russell William Magna, who was elected without opposition last year.

The program has been arranged by the committee of which Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen is chairman, and Mrs. G. Wallace W. Hanger, of Washington, vice chairman. The President will not, as at first believed, be able to address the Congress, on account of the heavy press of official duties, but it is hoped by the committee that he may be able to pay an unofficial visit to the Congress. Other members of the committee are Mrs. William A. Becker, Mrs. James Shera Montgomery and Mrs. Charles W. Richardson.

To Report at Opening.

Mrs. Magna will make her address and report as president general at the opening session and will be followed by greetings from the representatives of other patriotic organizations. The evening session of the first day will be given over to addresses by Secretary Wallace, Senator Tom Connally and Mrs. Owen.

On Thursday afternoon, Maj. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua, chief of Infantry, will speak on "The Nation's Present Need for Our Army," and the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University and regent of the School of Foreign Service, will give an address on "Soviet Russia and the United States." On Thursday night Secretary Perkins will make an address. Seth W. Richardson, Assistant Attorney General, also will speak, as also will Rear Admiral Wat Tyler Cluverius, who has chosen for his subject, "The Nation and the Navy Today."

Reception on Tuesday.

The outstanding social event of the congress will be the president general's reception on Tuesday night, at which time the thousands of delegates will greet Mrs. Magna, her national officers and the regents of the several States. The committee in charge of the arrangements for this function comprises Mrs. Adama M. Wyant, chairman; Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose and Mrs. Joseph H. Frelinghuysen, vice chairmen, and Mmes. Frank H. Briggs, John Laidlaw Buel, Cassius C. Cottle, William F. Dennis, Robinson Downey, Samuel William Earle, Horace Martin Farnham, Duncan U. Fletcher, Miss Isabel Wyman Gordon, Mmes John Brown Herron, Charles E. Herrick, Robert G. Hogan, Livingston L. Hunter, Stephen P. Hurd, Charles B. Jones, Jacob P. Marshall, Charles B. Matthews, George E. Matthies, Frederick W. Millspaugh, Frank W. Mondell, James T. Morris, Alexander Enos Patton, James Charles Peabody, Percy Edwards Quin, William N. Reynolds, Miss Janet Richards, Miss Aline E. Solomons and Mrs. Frank E. Taylor.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Magna, as president general, will lead the pilgrimage to Arlington and Mount Vernon, where wreaths will be placed at the grave of the Unknown Soldier, and at the tomb of George Washington and Martha Washington. The ceremony at Arlington will be in charge of Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, representative from Massachusetts, as chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, vice chairman, while the exercises at Mount Vernon will be arranged by Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, honorary chairman, and Mrs. Willoughby S. Chesley, chairman.

Memorial services will be held next Sunday afternoon, preceding the opening of the congress in Memorial Continental Hall. Tribute will be paid to those who have passed away since the last congress.

Child's Arm Is Broken As He Falls From Auto

Tumbling from his father's automobile as they drove through Bethesda, Md., last night, 4-year-old John M. Foley, jr., of 1309 Longfellow street northwest, suffered a fractured arm and severe lacerations.

The child apparently seized a lever on the door, his father said, and, when the door swung open, he fell from the car. He was treated by a private physician.

Jewelry and Money Stolen From Home

Meade told police entry was gained through a kitchen window. The loot was taken from a cedar chest in the rear hall of the first floor.

Plane v. Car

Lawsuits Loom as Result of Aircraft Crashing Into Parked Auto.

It doesn't happen every day, this thing of an airplane and an automobile crashing head-on, but it looked for a while as though the crash would end the way many automobile accidents end—in the courts.

Taxiing across the Congressional Airport, Kenneth Clow, aviator, of 3360 Eighteenth street northwest, crashed his plane into the parked car of Roland E. Denham, 2407 Eighteenth street northwest. Both the plane and the automobile were damaged, but no one was injured.

Airport officials and Mr. Clow say the automobile, with several others, had passed the safety line established on the airport and were 400 feet inside the runway. The aviator was unable to see beneath his plane, but assumed the field was clear of vehicles.

Mr. Denham intends to see his lawyer this morning, residents of his home said last night. Mr. Clow was in conference with his attorney last night, but said he believed the matter would be compromised.

DR. HARRIS SCORES MATERIAL OUTLOOK

Foundry Minister Decries Present Method of Raising Taxes.

To an audience filling Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church this morning, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, minister, preached on "Seers or Slaves." His text was, "We were in bondage to material ways of looking at things."

He stated, "Our whole social order now is the victim of a material way of looking at things, which reveals itself in business, which has been but a competitive game, a battle of wits; business which has been considered decent if it avoided the penalties of the law, but business that wants and takes all that the traffic will bear. The profit motive which has been dominant looks at men and women under bondage of the material way of looking at things and treats men and women and little children as pawns in a selfish game. God keep us from ever going back to prosperity on that basis.

"Then in a political sense there are those who are slaves of the material way of looking at things. When legislators vote to legalize the sale of body and soul-destroying poison, and do it to help balance the budget, they are slaves of the material way of looking at things. Regarding the liquor taxes from that point of view they can not see the curse which the New Testament puts on all tainted money: 'It is not lawful to put it into the treasury, for it is the price of blood.'"

Clergyman's Residence Ransacked by Burglar

The home of the Rev. Benjamin H. Whiting, 621 Third street southwest, was yesterday reported ransacked. The burglar made off with about $5 in cash taken from a bureau drawer on the second floor.

GLINCHY DISCUSSES DECLINE IN PRAYER IN MUDDLED WORLD

Men and women in modern days have largely lost the ability or the willingness to pray, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, said yesterday in a sermon at that church on "The Ability to Pray in a Modern World." Increased knowledge of the greatness and the minuteness of the universe has caused people to be lost in an attempt to comprehend the vastness surrounding them, and the particles of which that vastness is made, Mr. Clinchy declared.

"Is it any wonder," he continued, "that when men and women of the modern world have been brought face to face with these physical realities they have given up all idea of prayer to a God who was assumed to care for a man on one of the planets?

"We have also lost the possibility of prayer through the sense of immutable law. For many centuries men believed that the actions of the physical world were at the mercy of the whims of God or the desires of men. Then science began to demonstrate the immutability of physical law.

Mankind to Blame.

"Tears, the needs of men, beseechings, or even correct ecclesiastical ceremonies will not alter any law of the physical world. Immediately, great numbers of men and women who devotedly believed that prayer was something which could change these laws, began to believe that all prayer was futile. Our age has abandonad prayer because it discovered the immutability of law.

"But men themselves have been the chief cause of their own disbelief in prayer. They discovered their physical and mental powers which made it possible to do many things that would have been proclaimed miracles in any other age. Secure in the power to make what we wished come true, we gradually gave up all prayer, because prayer was mainly the asking for things.

In Midst of Realities.

"In doing away with prayer we have become ill at ease about our understanding of the framework of life. We have lost a powerful sense of the meaning of life. Instead of the old Puritan idea of God being in the judgment seat, we have put ourselves there. We are the ones who are passing out the opinions and judgments, even upon God. But as modern experience proceeds, we are at a loss concerning the ultimate meanings of life, and the glib opinions are not coming so fast from our lips.

"We have come to the place where we must learn how to pray in the midst of the realities of the modern world. It must be prayer which can be expressed in the full consciousness of all knowledge that can be expressed as to the nature of the world we live in, and the laws which regulate life within it. It must be prayer which produces a reliance that will not shift with changing experience. We are willing now to find prayer which is not what we might like it to be, but is rather that which is usably apparent."
